SKETCH OF THE SPIRIT LAND.

COLD SPRING, L. I., August 18, 1872.

Few of the thousands who, at this glad and glowing season of the year, pass and repass daily the entrance of this little-known and altogether neglected inlet of Long Island Sound, dream of the strange old mysteries that linger by its woody shores and haunt its dark everglades, where the long, reedy grass keeps time to the low, wailing monotone of the evening winds. Since coming here my mind has been filled with the singular traditions that hang around the region of Fort Hill. I have paid the old fort—a relic of the Revolution—and the house that stands upon its site several visits. I have used up the whole topography of this spirit land, wandered on the verge of twilight through the forest that surrounds it, trampling over monstrous toadstools, passing beneath whitened willow trees and startling the big bullfrogs by the horrible lake that lies in the deep glen below the ruins of the fort. The fort stood upon a high hill looking obliquely across the waters of the Sound. In the quiet of these Summer evenings the view from the sea wall of the fort, now converted into a smiling garden, out upon the distant headlands, is perfectly enchanting. You may sit there for hours and find new beauties to admire; now it is the play of golden sunlight on the tree-topped hills yonder, then a gallant fleet of yachts fading, like a fairy vision, into the far-off purple. You may indulge in retrospections of the past of Fort Hill if so disposed, and thus engaged it is marvellous how the spirit of the hour and of the place conjures up that which is weird and mystic. I am little astonished that the natives all around this region believe the place is haunted; that from us on the right shrieks as from a drowning woman come up loud and piercing on the midnight air; that horsemen, with streaming hair and naked swords, engage in combat by the lake shore; that sounds of revelry are heard coming from the house on the hill; that bodies of men have been seen pitched headlong from the fort into the lake and never after been found, and human heads, devoid of trunks, rolled through the woods in the gloaming, scaring the poor Long Island farmers to death. Talk to the old fellows around Huntington, along Lloyd's Neck, Horse Neck, over at Bayville, at Oyster Bay, around Cold Spring and to the people of that ancient village and you get pretty strange impressions of the credulity of the human mind and the quantity of tomfoolery, humbug and superstition in the world. The Long Islander who knows anything of the mysteries of Fort Hill cannot be prevailed on to approach the place at night for any consideration in greenbacks or otherwise. Some, it is said, are afraid even to pass it in a boat, or even in a balloon half a mile away. Nothing is so hard to kill as superstition and humbug. Prejudice, faith itself or political virtue may be destroyed, but superstition clings for ever, sticks like a pitch plaster to a pine plank, or as the aroma of the rose hangs to the fragments of the shattered vase.

THE FORT AND ONE OF ITS STRANGE TRADITIONS.

The fort on Fort Hill was thrown up by the British to guard Long Island from an attack by a part of the French fleet under Rochambeau. The French failed to reduce it; but, as one story says, a small force of Americans, landing in small boats, and aided by some of the Wauwepek tribe of Indians, a very interesting people in their day, stole a march at midnight upon the defenders, and disposed of them according to the prevailing fashion. One tradition has it that a Captain Flanders, afterwards in command of Fort Hill, with a party of his men abducted a daughter of Tecumwah, a big gun among the Wauwepeks, who lived in the neighborhood of what is now known as Jones' dock. The girl, as usual, was young and very beautiful, and Captain Flanders gave her the name of Viola. Tecumwah for a long time was ignorant of who stole his daughter—it was as much a puzzle as "who struck Billy Patterson"—or to what point of the compass she had been taken. From what was subsequently revealed Flanders succeeded to some extent in weaning Viola from her natural attachment to the old man. She could have readily escaped or contrived to convey news of her whereabouts to the camp of Tecumwah. The distance to day from Fort Hill to Jones' Dock is only about three miles as the bird flies. Flanders was a splendid horseman and marksman, besides having some knowledge of the Indian language, and showing, by constant word and action, the most devoted attachment to his protégé. The story goes that one day out hunting through the woods Tecumwah came suddenly upon his daughter and Flanders, courting as usual. There was instant flight to the fort on the part of the clandestine lovers, who reached it in time to shut the gates on their fierce pursuer. From that day forth Tecumwah addressed himself to the task of and revenging himself upon her abductor. He made a trip across the Sound to where there was a small encampment of American soldiers on the site of what is now the Neptune House, at New Rochelle. He enlisted them in his plan to surprise the fort besides exciting their sympathy on behalf of his child.

The attack was a stealthy one, Tecumwah himself leading the way through the trackless wood surrounding the fort. The wooden abattis and the adjoining buildings were set on fire, and as the flames rose the attacking party jumped from their hiding place and poured a volley through into the scattered ranks of the surprised and staggering defenders. According to the narrator of this veracious history, who appears to have been one of the attacking force himself, it was at this moment that Tecumwah caught sight of his daughter clasped in the arms of her lover. His blood was up. It was but a brief space. Raising his tomahawk and flinging before him

AN APPALLING YELL,

Tecumwah jumped over the burning wall and plunged forward through smoke and flame. Flanders had in the meantime thrown himself, sword in hand, in front of Viola, unconscious of who was coming, while she, recognizing the familiar voice and war whoop of her father, swung herself round to implore mercy for her lover. At that instant from out the temporary curtain of smoke burst Tecumwah like a tiger, and, aiming his terrible tomahawk at Flanders, missed him and

SEVERED HIS DAUGHTER'S HEAD

from her body. In the next moment—for all these incidents were but the work of moments—Flanders' sword went plunging through the savage chieftain's body, and father and daughter were left dead on the floor of the fort together. Unnerved and overthrown the Captain was made a prisoner, and on being told that he had killed the father of his Viola he burst from his captors, plunged through the woods and drowned himself in the dark lake in the valley. His body was never found and now the rural superstition, believed in as true as Revelations, is that at midnight the awful tragedy is enacted over again, and the air filled with the wild grief of the father and the ill-fated lover, while the severed

HEAD OF THE HAPLESS MAIDEN

rolls with lightning speed up and down the woods. This is the most ancient of the traditions connected with the fort, but the crop of modern yarns is past counting, and the fun is, the more outrageous they are the sooner believed. Years rolled by when one fine day a party of young bloods from New York, who had been out fishing and caught enough to make a meal, hauled up their boat at the spot where Lloyd's dock now stands. They proceeded a short distance north on the strand of Lloyd's neck to select a good place for cooking an al fresco supper. All unconscious, and it is to be presumed equally unconcerned about the fact that they had pitched their tent directly

UNDER THE HAUNTED FORT,

they started to cook their piscatorial meal and open their hampers of champagne, if they had any. The time passed pleasantly until nearly sundown, when one of the party, named Alick Gadsden, who is still living, proposed to climb the steep hill above to catch the last glimpse of the setting sun. He had a poetic taste. The rest had little turn for sentiment, and Gadsden was left to make the ascent on his own hook. It was a tiresome job, as anyone may find who essays the task to-day. An hour rolled by and gave no sign of Gadsden's return. It was growing late, and a controversy sprang up as to which was the most active man of the party to start and summon the truant fisherman back to his boat. Being more or less cheerfully disposed at this stage of their picnic, it was finally concluded that all should go together. The head of the column, on reaching the front ditch of the fort, hallooed for Gadsden, but no response came back. The party then scattered to explore, and soon was heard from one who had proceeded to the extreme limit of the fort overhanging the lake, where an old bewitched apple tree now stands. There was Gadsden hanging by his heels from the branches, stark naked, and a corn cob stuck in his mouth.

A YELL OF HORROR

He was taken down and found utterly unconscious. Strange hieroglyphics, done in something like burnt cork, were distributed over his skin. His almost lifeless body was hurried at great speed to the boat, and by a vigorous use of stimulants—brandy principally—he was brought to before reaching New York. Gadsden's story was that he was seized, the moment he put his nose inside the fort, by a pack of what looked to him like devils, such as are seen in the neuralgic pills circulars. They danced round him, kicked him unmercifully in the bulbous part of his anatomy, stood him on his head, pulled off his store clothes and then pitched him three times into the old apple tree, so that he might hang by his heels, an attitude that struck them, no doubt, as being supremely ludicrous. Then Gadsden, being nearly unconscious, thought he saw them vanish in smoke—very likely

That is over a quarter of a century ago. We now come down to later times, when the mysteries of Fort Hill present us with phases alike of tragedy and comedy. Here I might as well indicate the

and the inlet on which it stands. The D. R. Martin, Capt. Clhrke, which leaves the foot of Market street, on the East river, every day at four P. M., proceeds through Hell Gate and along the Sound, stopping first at City Island, where the negro pirate was hanged many years ago. The scenery along the way is too familiar to need any description. Presently, however, at a distance of about thirty miles from New York, we sight the bold headland of Lloyd's Neck. The stranger on the boat at some distance fails to observe the presence of several deep indentations of the coast line. Near us is the inlet that takes its devious way to the beautiful villages of Oyster Bay and Bayville,

Half lost in the liquid azure bloom of a crescent of sea,
The silent sapphire-spangled marriage ring of the land.

We soon come abreast of a deep, wide, naked declivity of land, from which the vesture of emerald earth has been incontinently stripped. A landslide must have occurred here at some not remote period, and exposed a huge sandbank, dipping abruptly into the sea, leaving no beach whatever. In the dark and silent night it is almost as luminous as a lighthouse beacon to the wayfaring mariner. Now the steamer wheels to starboard, and before us we see, piercing far into the land, Cold Spring Harbor. To our left, as we glide fast and smoothly over the liquid mirror of the inlet, is the steep elevation where the Jesuits' summer residence stands, and this is Fort Hill House, the famous haunted house, standing on the ground that Rochambeau's fleet sought in vain to capture; where Tecumwah fell in the furious struggle for the rescue of his daughter Viola; where Gadsden, filled with his love of sunset glories, found himself stripped and half hanged on a sour apple tree by a mysterious and blackguard set of imps; where innumerable farmers have seen their favorite horses turned into rooting hogs, cows disappear up maple trees, goats mounted on snake fences reading the NEW YORK HERALD by moonlight with gold-bowed spectacles, mules taking lessons in gymnastics, the old spring well turned into an everlasting barrel of whiskey, and innumerable incidents beside, that are familiar as household words to the natives of Lloyd's Neck and to those for forty miles around.

GOING UP THE INLET.

The steamer stops at Lloyd's dock to relieve herself of a dozen or so of passengers, some of them belonging to the proud old families that lie scattered about here, whose hands are generally in their pockets, and nothing in their pockets but their hands. The rest are New Yorkers, a few who dabble at farming and make a poor fist of it, and others who seek in the mystic atmosphere of this strange land rest and bodily resuscitation. We are now moving directly inland, with a slumbrous summer shore on either hand. A pity it seems to break the exquisite calm of this hallowed azure inlet. The shores begin to narrow, both are equally attractive, and we are in a puzzle to say on which we should care to cast our lot for life. A pier to the right, and a brilliant white quadrangle standing above it on the hillside, tell us we are coming to a spot where some among the passengers, eschewing the gayeties and fashion of the regular summer resorts, will disembark and rest contentedly for a time. The pier is freighted with an expectant group of lightly-costumed ladies, who have run down from the hotel to gratify an innocent curiosity or to meet a father, husband, beau or brother. Eight or ten well-dressed males go ashore, and presently the steamer, like a well-trained driving horse, wheels away from her moorings, and makes a crescent line for Jones' dock, near Cold Spring. Here is the last landing in the inlet and the most interesting. The sun is dipping low. A tender haze rests softly as angels' wings on the distant horizon of the Sound. Before us, as we steer straight for Jones' dock, is a high and wavy range of hills. The line breaks in front of us; a glen appears running low down to the water's edge, and here, nestling amid the hill peaks, half hid amid the foliage, is the Wauwepek Hotel. The flag above its summit defines itself brightly against the background of the green hillsides. No other house appears near. It is alone amid the silence of the woods; but the crisping ripples of the sea are at hand, and up and down stretches the calm blue inlet, inviting peace, repose and heavenly harmony. There is bustle for a while on the long pier. There is a coming and going of vehicles, a streaming out of passengers, a shoving to and fro of freight for this little place and that. The hotel has sent down all its human life to witness the great event of the day—the arrival of the steamer. The old Frenchman who has been trying for years to master the linguistic difference between "How is that for high" and "How is that for myself" is on hand, clad in a linen suit and a pair of spectacles. Now we are on shore, with Cold Springs village a mile and a half to our right, up where the waters of the inlet lose themselves amid sandbars and glittering green marshes. Closed up like a wild flower in the depth of a mountain gorge is the sweet little almost two hundred years old, bigger a hundred years ago than when it was first established, but no bigger to-day than a century since. It is delightful to get from the fresh paint of our new creation, our second Genesis—all brick, brass vanity and hollowness—down to this little gem of antique stillness, where the currents of life feel no artificial stimulus to exertion, but where "all is afternoon" and all things always seem the same. The old trees on the high hillside bend down and clasp in sympathetic embrace the old houses built when they were in their green and youthful prime. The seeming slumbrous ether floating over the venerable village lanes and streets disposes to obliviousness of the active present, and takes the fancy back to the early days of small contentments and large measures of happiness and virtue. A mile away from the village we strike two chalybeate springs within a few hundred feet of each other. They are at the extreme end of the inlet, and have been running for generations, free to all, rich and poor alike. They are on the property of a great man in these parts named Jones, who, wrapt up in the self-conceit of obstinacy that comes of secure broad acres and long lineage, makes himself the incubus on the land around. He is a dog-in-the-manger kind of man. He will not improve the prospect himself nor will he give an opportunity to others to do so. Sentiment aside, Cold Spring might have a great, prosperous present but for Jones. It might be known as extensively as Long Branch and its beauties have as many admirers but for Jones. For our part we should prefer to see it as it is; but in the unselfish interest of its inhabitants and the public generally we ask Jones to raise the blockade to this sweet retreat and render it the resort of thousands, in place of the handful that now seek by dusty roads and ill conveniences to make acquaintance with one of the oldest and not least interesting places on Long Island.

VILLAGE OF COLD SPRINGS,

THE FORT HILL PROPERTY.

But back to our story of Fort Hill. As we said before, it stands upon Lloyd's Neck. Lloyd, who gave next to nothing and his name to this headland, has been long since gathered to his fathers. The gentleman who now owns what is left of the original Lloyd's principality is Mr. Henry D. Lloyd. He lives in the old Lloyd homestead on the slope of a hill separated by a shallow valley from Fort Hill. He is a gentleman of leisure, and, though his baronial hall has had some rude buffetings from time and the seasons, and its style of architecture has been sadly eclipsed in splendor of design by more modern structures of the kind, it still preserves an air of aristocratic dignity. It is a small model of Washington's wonderful house at Mount Vernon.

THE LADY WHO BUILT THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

Some years since the wife of Mr. Lloyd conceived the idea of building a residence on Fort Hill. No one, for obvious reasons, had yet ventured to think of erecting a private residence on this the finest site along the Sound. Mystery piled upon mystery shrouded the old fort, until its ruins seemed to wear as fearful memories as clustered round the Castle of Dunkeith. The brave lady, familiar with every rood of land on the whole area of Lloyd's Neck, fearing nothing and determined that such a splendid situation should no longer remain a howling and dreaded waste—a scandal and reproach to human intelligence—built a dwelling of no extraordinary pretentions, yet still imposing and comfortably laid out. It was a square house, windowed on all sides and surmounted by a cupola. It looked open, fair, frank and hospitable to the eye, and the last house in all the neighborhood a stranger would be apt to credit was disturbed by supermundane agencies. How long Mrs. Lloyd lived there I am unable to say. The time, however, was very brief. Mr. Lloyd himself never spent a night under its roof. Long before a year had elapsed after its completion it was deserted, and time rolled by without ever seeing its doors opened again. The ghost stories of former days were soon revived with tenfold intensity all over the Neck, permeating into the surrounding villages, chilling the hearts of village swains and maidens. After a time the dwelling on Fort Hill was pointed out to every stranger passing by on the boats as the haunted house. After dark no man in his average senses would venture even on the extensive grounds around the place, not to speak of entering the house.

TWO FESTIVE GHOST SEEKERS.

Two men named Collins and Lambert, of Brooklyn, who happened to be passing a brief season at Oyster Bay, determined one evening to venture over and tempt the terrors of the haunted house. They were eulogized as two very brave men and the best wishes of Oyster Bay, drunk standing, accompanied them on their departure. Instructions were left the boatmen who landed them at Lloyd's dock to call for them next day at noon if they failed to make their appearance. The precaution proved needless. They started, provided with a liberal demijohn of whiskey, brace of revolvers and pipes. They returned at different hours next day and their stories proved of the wildest character. Collins said when he got in front of the house, with the intention of giving a loud knock at the door, he was struck in the back with a cannon ball, and he brought back the ball to corroborate his story. He also showed the mark it made on his back. Lambert, however, rallied Collins on this incident and declared he only fell on a cannon ball and then picked it up to see what on earth it was.

HOW LAMBERT BID THE GHOSTS DEFIANCE.

Lambert said he went to the back of the house while Collins remained in front, pulled his revolver and swore loud enough for half the ghosts in Christendom to hear him that if any son of a seacook attempted to escape that way he would shoot him on the spot. At the same moment he heard a slight noise behind him like the filing of old shoe leather, and, turning, saw a cow chewing away and moving over towards a barn. He said he experienced a slight shiver just then, as it was a pure white cow and looked ghostly. Directly followed another black as the ace of spades, another red as the comb of a turkey gobbler, and still another exactly red, white and blue. They walked into the barn, though he could swear on a stack of Bibles the door was closed. This he determined to test, and taking one extra stiff six-inch horn of whiskey he went for the barn door, and, sure enough, it was closed and locked. Here he tried as he vowed he should see if the cows were inside or perish. The door was unloosened, but he found it hard work to open it wide enough to get in. He leaned against it with all his might, crying out, "Open it, you sons of ghosts, or I'll shoot every mother's son of you!" The door finally gave way. Lambert fell partly in and was struck on the back of the neck and top of the head with a pile of rubbish, old boards, tubs, buckets, saddles and what not. He fell down unconscious and was found by Collins under a mountain of old truck. Collins said after getting into the parlor through the window he heard chains rattling in the next room and low, angry growling, like a dog's. He cleared that window still quicker than he went in by a long shot, dropping his revolver in the room, where it was afterwards found. The renown of their exploits went all over Bayville and Oyster Bay, and ghost stories were served up as regularly as the oysters every evening. In this way the house was attaining a fearful reputation. Nobody cared to venture near it without carrying just as strong a force of spirits in a bottle as he thought himself likely to meet at the dwelling on the hill.

ANOTHER HORN OF WHISKEY,

THE VENTURE OF POOR PAT M'CABE.

An Irish pilot, named Pat McCabe, from New Rochelle, started on a wager of $10 to explore not alone the house, but the lake. It is said Pat's hair was white the next morning, not from what he saw, but what, through the means of an accident, he suddenly expected to see. Pat passed the front of the house in safety and crossed the old fort to see the lake. The way down is steep and rugged, and Pat was a little the worse of the distilled spirits. He missed his footing at the very top and tumbled clear down into the horrible waters below. When he reached the surface he was sober as a judge, yet all the worse for his peace of mind. He lost his bottle in the tumble, and was left to the indescribable horrors of his normal imagination. No wonder Pat's hair turned white.

A PANIC-STRICKEN FARMER.

The road to Fort Hill is winding and puzzling. A farmer from Huntingdon, with his wagon, was caught there one night after sundown, while it was raining. He got out to reconnoitre, to see if a friendly house was anywhere in sight. He had his umbrella up, and his mind was in no enviable mood. Suddenly the umbrella was caught and held on the outside as if by an invisible agency, for the trees were wide apart. Feeling sure one of the ubiquitous ghosts of Fort Hill held it in his grasp, he started fast as a deer from under and never stopped till, with torn clothes and terrified looks, he reached, through fences and marshes, a friendly shelter. The umbrella was found hanging there next day, caught by some brier brambles depending from the branches of a tree.

FINAL FATE OF FORT HILL.

Finally the Jesuits of Sixteenth street heard of this remarkable place, its splendid situation and its valuable area of a hundred acres underwood. They wanted some spot where their overworked professors and teachers might retire and recuperate for a few weeks of the Summer. The Jesuit order is not given to extravagance in the expenditure of money. They found this place could be had for a mere song if they took it. They have made its immediate surroundings cheerful and lovely. They fell the forest trees themselves, sow and reap the corn, milk the cows and do all the menial labor of the farm and household. They sent a man to take possession of the place after they had made the purchase. Somebody advised this gay pioneer to take with him to drive the ghosts away. He slept in the house all alone, but a subsequent examination of the bottle he took along revealed the fact that the liquid it contained owed its potent influence to purely secular sources. The only ghosts now that can be seen are these ghostly Fathers of the Jesuit persuasion. They seem to be no wise disturbed in mind or manner by the stories that still keep floating over the neighborhood about the haunted house of Fort Hill. In a few years from now the plastic hand of art will mould the grand forest around to a picture of light and beauty. We may expect to see noble lawns where the dark woods, the toadstools and ghosts lived together in the past, and with the spread of science and civilization even the Long Islanders will cease to put their trust in ghosts.

A BOTTLE OF HOLY WATER

CHAMBERS AND EDWARDS.

The Coming Fight for the Light Weight Championship.

Notwithstanding the fiasco attending the second attempt of the heavy weights, O'Baldwin and Mace, to decide their superiority in the prize ring, there is much discussion in the sporting world regarding the coming light weight fight between Arthur Chambers and Billy Edwards. This combat will take place on the 4th of September for $1,000 a side, and the championship of America. Yesterday the men with several friends assembled at the Clipper office to make the final deposit of $500 a side and toss for choice of ground. Among those present beside the principals were Jim Coburn, Barney Aaron, Bob Smith, Jem Mace, Dooney Harris, Sam Hurst, George Seddons, Patsey Hogan, and others not unknown to pugilistic fame. The money was promptly deposited and the men without argument mutually agreed that representatives should select the place of fighting.

There is no question about the desire of these men wanting to come together. They will certainly fight; and the battle will be scientific and stubborn. Edwards has a capital record as a pugilist, some fighting men looking upon him as a wonder. Chambers in England stood at the head of the list of his weight; and since his sojourn in New York has made many friends by his quiet demeanor and straightforward conduct. Of him Bell's Life says:—"Chambers stands 5 feet 3¾ inches in height and can fight at 120 pounds. He is a good two-handed fighter, and having immense stamina is a dangerous customer to tackle. He is as game as the great Tom Sayers, and a glutton to receive punishment. In fact, at his weight, he appears to have no rival, and although a young man he has a flattering list of performances placed to his credit."

FIRE IN THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.

While lighting up the Olympic Theatre about half-past seven o'clock last evening one of the employés accidentally set fire to the curtain of one of the private boxes. For a few minutes it looked as though the fire would be a disastrous one, but by dint of a little energetic action the employés about the building succeeded in extinguishing it before any material damage was done.

Philanthropy and Liberality of Our Citizens.

PRINCELY GIFT OF MR. JAMES LENOX

Presbyterian, Hahnemann, Homœopathic and St. Francis' Hospitals.

The attractive force of large cities, causing the gathering of vast bodies of human beings, and with its constant tendency to still further increase, is a prolific source for the necessity for hospitals in such places as New York. The philanthropy and liberality of all classes of our citizens are constantly in operation to make provisions for this want. Within a few weeks an institution has been opened for the reception of patients, without distinction of creed or nationality, under the auspices of the Jewish denomination, and early in the present year the Roosevelt Hospital was also thrown open for the protection and relief of the suffering sick. Several other enterprises, which it is our purpose to notice in this article, are now in progress, and when finished will be the means of adding to the facilities for the prompt and skilful treatment of all classes of diseases, particularly among the poor. Large cities have been designated "the graves of mankind." Vital statistics go to show that the population of several of the larger cities of the world is only maintained by the influx from healthier districts. In this respect New York, with its large foreign immigration, is hardly an exception. As a general fact cities are the resort of many friendless strangers; casualties are frequent in the crowded streets and in various industrial pursuits; sickness in its prevailing forms there finds the most numerous subjects among the poorer classes, who are least able to procure or bear the expense of proper medical aid and attendance. Hence the necessity for places of refuge and relief for the sick and suffering in large cities is universally acknowledged. And on reference to foreign cities it appears that wherever the government has not undertaken the collection and control of the alms of the community for such purposes, nor the ministers of religion by consent or appointment assumed the charge, the necessity has been met by organized action and the liberality of the people. Indeed, it is admitted that but for the private charities in New York, aided as they are by State and city donations, there would be a vast amount of sickness and suffering go unrelieved.

Foreign and American Hospitals.

In London and Paris the hospitals both care for out and indoor patients; New York hospitals, with a few exceptions, for indoor patients only. There the hospital and dispensary being united under one general system and order, constitute one establishment. Here the dispensary is separate, where the outdoor poor resort for medicine, medical and surgical advice and treatment, which are gratuitously given. The immense burden thus lifted from the hospitals by these admirable institutions will appear by the following statistics:—

	Patients.
Five general hospitals, under control of the New York city government, reported in 1871	18,919
Five for special diseases	4,405
One for emigrants (Ward's Island)	7,904
One for colored persons	435
Eight for denominational and foreign nationalities	6,065
Total	37,728

This shows twenty hospitals now in effective operation in this city. There are eight minor hospitals for special purposes, having an annual aggregate of about one thousand patients. There are also in operation eighteen dispensaries, including four homœopathic institutions, which reported for 1871 an aggregate of 250,000 patients. According to the foregoing official figures the dispensary patients in the same number of institutions were nearly sevenfold greater than the number of hospital patients.

The Presbyterian Hospital.

On the 28th February, 1868, an act was passed by the Legislature to found a Presbyterian hospital in this city. The object of the society incorporated was to establish and support an institution to afford medical and surgical aid to sick or disabled persons, and to provide them while inmates of the hospital with the ministrations of the Gospel agreeably to the doctrine and form of the Presbyterian Church; but it is proper to remark that although the hospital is called Presbyterian, no distinction will ever be made as to applicants for admission. It will only be under Presbyterian auspices, the same as St. Luke's is under Episcopalian auspices. The act of the Legislature named James Lenox, John Taylor Johnson, Robert L. Stuart, Morris K. Jessup, Marshall S. Bidwell, Edward S. Jaffray, James Brown, William A. Booth, Aaron B. Belknap, William E. Dodge and a number of other gentlemen as a Board of Managers. Rev. Messrs. William M. Paxton, William Adams, Thomas Dewitt and John N. McLeod were associated as members of the Board.

MUNIFICENT GIFT OF MR. JAMES LENOX.

Visitors to the Central Park must have noticed the handsome structure running from Seventieth to Seventy-first street, between Madison and Fourth avenues. This comprises the Administration building and one pavilion of the Presbyterian Hospital, the ground for which and the principal funds for erecting being the gift of Mr. James Lenox—a gentleman who has already provided for the erection of a magnificent public library in the same locality. Mr. Lenox has had the co-operation of a number of leading citizens in the philanthropic design, some of whom have contributed large sums. These gentlemen can now point to a noble pile of buildings consecrated to the sick and suffering as the realization of earnest purposes and long-cherished hopes. To a large majority of the patients the hospital will be a pure charity. Persons suffering from severe accidents are to be admitted at any hour of the day or night. Other patients must apply in person, when they will be examined and admitted by the House Physician. A certain number of free beds are provided for, and there is also a certain number reserved for pay patients.

THE SITE AND BUILDINGS.

The ground upon which the building stands, and made over by Mr. Lenox forever to the corporation, covers the entire block, and is 400 feet by 200 feet. On account of the prevalence of southerly winds during the summer, the south side of the block will present as few obstacles as possible to the free circulation of air, which disposition will obtain also the greatest amount of sunlight—two points of vital importance. The administrative building (one of the three central buildings), now completed, fifty feet by ninety-two feet, is three stories high, with basement and attic, in Mansard roof; has the middle portion projecting, in order to gain a carriage porch to main entrance, above which is the chapel, with its tall spire. Side entrance porches are also provided. The basement of this building contains the kitchen (which extends through to the second floor), the bakery, ice, bread and store rooms. The first story is occupied by the receiving and examination rooms, superintendent's and matron's rooms, the pharmacy, staircases, &c. The second and third stories afford accommodation for the house physician and other officers. Directly over the carriage porch is the committee room. The chapel occupies the central portion of the building in the third and fourth stories, with spacious staircases on each side (the main staircase, in the middle, not extending beyond second floor). In the attic, at either side of the chapel, are the servants' rooms.

BOILER HOUSE.

The boiler house, in the rear, thirty-four feet by sixty feet, contains in the basement story (about ten feet below basements of other buildings) a laundry, and a boiler and engine room. The drying and ironing rooms are on the first floor. All the heating and steam power required throughout the hospital is to be furnished from this building. The main chimney shaft, 100 feet high, has air chambers around it for the purposes of ventilation. Between the north pavilion (finished) and the boiler house is an open court, with entrance from Seventy-first street for supplies, leaving as much space as possible for the patients' airing ground, which is on a high level.

NORTH PAVILION.

In the north pavilion we find the wards subdivided in order better to provide against the spreading of contagious diseases. There is accommodation for 100 patients. Day rooms are located in the middle portion under the amphitheatre. Fireplaces are in the wards, and the wings of this pavilion are fireproof. As regards the interior construction, the walls and ceilings have received a perfectly smooth, hard sand finish; hard woods, waxed, have been employed in trimming, thus avoiding the use of paint. The basement story is devoted to the accommodation of hot air chambers, engine rooms, fan rooms, &c. The first floor is occupied by private wards, with all their necessary accessories; the three upper stories contain the public wards. A spacious and well lighted amphitheatre (for surgical operations) occupies the third and fourth stories of the middle portion of the north pavilion.

VISIT OF MANAGERS.

The hospital when completed will have two additional pavilions. The portion above described—the administrative building, the boiler house and north pavilion—were visited last month by the Board of Managers and the various departments examined. The arrangements for ventilation—for supplying fresh air through the wards and for conducting the foul air to the lofts above the attic story—are very complete. It is expected that the hospital will be ready to receive patients about the first of next October. Philadelphia brick and Lockport limestone have been used in the construction. The plans for the building were prepared by Mr. R. M. Hunt.

AN ENDOWMENT FUND.

The Board of Managers, with a view to a permanent income sufficient for the scope of the hospital operations, have determined to effect its endowment. In accordance with this design the President, Mr. James Lenox, at a meeting of the Board of Trustees in February last, inaugurated a movement for that purpose by announcing his intention to contribute $50,000, $100,000 or $125,000 as soon as a like amount shall have been contributed by others. Mr. Lenox has already contributed $250,000, and there is no doubt that his munificent offer will soon be made available. The entire cost of the building will be $350,000.

The Hahnemann Hospital.

About three-quarters of a century ago Dr. Hahnemann, a German physician, originated the homœopathic system of treatment in medical and surgical cases. It did not meet at first with great encouragement, but it found devoted disciples, and after a time the remarkable number of cures effected brought the system into favor. Drs. Gramm and Herring were the pioneers of the practice in the United States. There are now nine or ten colleges in different parts of the country, and the institution in New York graduated thirty-nine students at the conclusion of its last term. The Hahnemann Hospital, which now affords medical treatment to about fifty patients, has been for some time temporarily located on Fifty-fifth street, near Second avenue, but it has been found necessary to obtain larger and more suitable accommodations. The officers, directors and Medical Board are among the most prominent and philanthropic of our citizens and physicians, and through their exertions a grant of fourteen lots as a site for the erection of a new hospital has been obtained, at a nominal rent, from the city, and a sufficient fund raised to enable the work to be at once commenced. The success that has attended the treatment of the suffering sick under the homœopathic system has set at rest all doubts as to its excellence, and as the pavilion system, which is conceded by the best authorities to be superior to all others for the protection it affords, is to be fully embodied in the new structure the happiest results are confidently anticipated. Mr. Hiram Calkins is the President, and Messrs. D. D. T. Marshall, William Radde and R. B. Connolly Vice Presidents. The Medical Director is Dr. F. Seeger.

LOCATION AND DESIGN.

The new Hahnemann Hospital is to be situated on the east side of Fourth avenue, between Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth streets—the site granted by the city. According to the plans prepared by Mr. George Hathorne, the architect, it is to consist of a central building, with two wings, one on each side, which are entirely isolated from each other and from the centre building, with the exception of a corridor to be on the first floor, running the entire length of the block and uniting the three buildings. This will give a frontage on the avenue of nearly two hundred feet. The hospital is to be in the mediæval, picturesque style, with handsome towers crowning the centre and corners of the edifice. The administrative building, between the two wings, is to be slightly advanced, in order to give it greater prominence. It is to be three stories high, with a front of fifty feet on the avenue and a depth of sixty feet. It is to be approached by a covered carriage way and road and will form the main entrance to the hospital. The interior distribution is to be in spacious and well-lighted rooms, to contain all the conveniences required. Besides offices and apartments for officers in this building there are to be library room, two private wards, a professors' room, museum and a large clinical lecture room and operating theatre.

A SPACIOUS LIFT

or elevator for patients subject to operation is to be provided near the operating table and opening into the lecture hall. It will run to the different floors, opening at the central corridors. By this means there will be a perfect connection between the operating theatre and clinical lecture hall with the wards of the pavilions. This hall is to be arranged with circular and rapidly descending seats toward the lecture table, without obstructing columns to interfere with a full view of the table from each seat. The hall is to have a domed ceiling, with light from above immediately over the operating table. The different stories of the administration building are each fifteen feet in height, with the exception of the upper, a lecture hall, which has a height of 25 feet, as it extends to the domed roof.

THE PAVILIONS.

The pavilions are to be north and south of the administrative building above described, and connected on the first floor by the corridors to the wards. The male and female departments must be placed one in each pavilion, thus making the most complete separation. These pavilions are to contain the wards for the sick, located on the first, second and third stories respectively. Each ward is to be 70 feet long, 25 feet wide and 15 feet in height. There is to be accommodation in each of them for twenty beds, thus giving each patient over one thousand three hundred feet of cubic air.

INTERIOR ECONOMY.

A small kitchen and a dining room are provided for each ward for convalescent patients, thus avoiding the disagreeable and injurious alternative of taking food constantly into the wards. The baths, lavatories, &c., are arranged at the rear of the wards and are to be so planned and ventilated that they can in no way affect the air. At each corner of the ward is an opening for a fireplace. A small passage or hallway is to connect the corridors of the pavilions of each floor with the circular balconies or verandahs across the front or Fourth avenue face of the pavilions. These are to be broad and ample, with a protecting roof, and are for the use of convalescent patients. As they are to be removed from the main wards, they can be used without causing annoyance to the sick, and will not obstruct the air and sunlight of the wards. On the third floor, and stretching across the entire front, and opening on to the balcony, is to be a cheerful room, intended for a ward library. It is also intended to be used as a social or amusement hall, to contain newspapers, a piano, easy chairs, and pictures—in short, everything conducive to the relief and comfort of the patients, mental as well as physical.

VENTILATION.

The Hahnemann Hospital will be constructed of double brick walls, enclosing an air space to protect the interior from the sudden changes of temperature and from dampness. Within the walls are to be series of tubes or flues intended for the wards, one for each bed, with openings at the floor and at the ceilings. These ventilating ducts are to terminate in the attics in large reservoirs for foul air. This system is similar to the one in operation in the Presbyterian Hospital. The reservoirs are to contain coils of steam pipes to further rarify and accelerate the removal of the air through the ventilation of the roof. The great importance of pure air has received special attention from the architect.

HEATING.

The heating of a hospital is a question involving much of importance. Defective arrangements for this purpose must result in atmospheric deterioration or contamination. The new building is to be heated by steam, to be conveyed in pipes to the sub-cellars, which are to contain the air reservoirs and the coils of steam pipes. From these run the ducts containing the heated air intended for the different wards and departments. These are to be controlled and regulated by valves in the rooms, and are to be so constructed as to admit cold as well as warm air, according to the season and the temperature required. The air for these reservoirs will be supplied from a large shaft, specially constructed outside the buildings, and which is to take the air from a height where it is not liable to contamination.

CAPACITY.

The capacity of the entire hospital is estimated at 150 patients. This number can be easily increased to 200 if thought desirable to add an additional story to the pavilions. It is considered that 150 are as many as a hospital should contain. The tendency now seems to be to break up large institutions and construct smaller ones at points more or less remote from one another. According to Mr. G. Hathorne's plans, one of the pavilions of the Hahnemann Hospital may be constructed without the centre or administrative building, and answer all immediate purposes, administrative as well as ward work. It thus avoids a large present outlay until such time as it is convenient for the building of the whole, and enable work to be commenced at once and the hospital put in early operation. Admission to patients will be free. The estimated cost of the first pavilion is $80,000; of the entire building $300,000.

Homœopathic Surgical Hospital.

At the last session of the Legislature a new charter was granted to this institution. The incorporators have secured a site adjoining the Ophthalmic Hospital, corner Twenty-third street and Third avenue, and the preliminary work, now in progress for the erection of a new building, is to be vigorously prosecuted until it is finished. It is expected to be in readiness for occupation in about four months from this date. The institution commends itself to the benevolent, for it will establish upon the line of one of our greatest thoroughfares, and in the immediate vicinity of a crowded manufacturing district, a hospital in which the victim of an injury or an accident may receive both immediate relief and permanent treatment. Those especially who have learned to attach a high value to the homœopathic treatment of disease will feel that this charity is highly deserving, since it offers to the maimed and suffering poor, free of charge, advantages which are now for the first time in this city placed within their reach.

THE BUILDING.

The building will front twenty-five feet on Twenty-third street, and is to be so arranged as to form a continuation of the Ophthalmic Hospital. It will be uniform with that institution—five stories high, with basement and Mansard roof, and eighty-five feet in height. Philadelphia brick with brown stone trimmings are the materials to be used. The wards are to be large and airy, furnishing accommodation for about fifty patients. In addition the top story of the Ophthalmic Hospital is to be added as a ward, and in this way thirty additional beds will be at the disposal of the managers. Two other stories of the same building are to be used as lecture rooms, offices, &c., for the Homœopathic Medical College. An advantage of no small importance is that the kitchens, laundries, heating and ventilating apparatus of the Ophthalmic Hospital are to be used in the new edifice. In fact, when completed, the three institutions named will be under one roof, connected by interior openings, but under separate and distinct management. Although controlled by an independent organization, this hospital will be so far connected with the college that its wards will be open for surgical instruction, so that students may observe practically the homœopathic medical and surgical treatment of disease. An elevator has been introduced into the Ophthalmic Hospital, so that patients can be conveyed from one floor to the other with ease and comfort. The proposed building will be erected under the direction of Mr. Cornelius O'Reiliey; and as the late fair realized sufficient funds for the work, it will, as remarked before, be vigorously prosecuted to completion. The medical staff consists of Dr. J. W. Dowling, Superintendent, and Surgeon William Tod Helmuth. Cost, $30,000.

St. Francis' Hospital.

This institution, where poor, sick, aged and infirm persons are received without any distinction as to religious opinions or nationality, has been in existence several years. It is under the charge of the Sisters of the Poor of St. Francis, a religious community of ladies, originally founded in Germany, who devote themselves, with the most unselfish devotion, to works of practical charity. The hospital was first opened in Fifth street, between avenues B and C, and has grown from very small beginnings to a position of great and needed usefulness in the locality where it is situated. No charge whatever is made for the support and medical treatment of the patients admitted. The community have now nearly completed a large and handsome addition, about in extent equal to the present building, which contains one hundred beds. The addition is five stories high, with basement and Mansard roof. It fronts fifty feet on Fifth street, and is forty-five feet deep. There is besides a small two story building in the rear, also nearly finished, capable of accommodating ten to twelve patients.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

The arrangements of the interior correspond with the hospital now in use, with which it is connected by spacious and well-ventilated windows. In the upper stories are large, well-lighted wards and rooms for the accommodation of patients who require seclusion and quiet. Surrounding the rear portions are balconies, from which a fine view can be obtained and an abundance of fresh air enjoyed. An elevator serves to relieve the feeble and old from the fatigue of ascending the staircases, which are wide, and also serves to convey supplies, meals, &c., from the lower to the top stories. Nearly the entire interior is occupied for the purposes of the hospital. The dining and reception rooms, the apothecary's shop, laundry, kitchen, &c., are in the basement and first floor. The ladies have reserved for themselves but the scantiest space. There is, however, a handsome chapel, tastefully furnished and provided with a very pretty altar.

THE SISTERS.

Eighteen professed Sisters and six postulants attend to the sick. They depend solely upon the charity of the public for the support of the institution. There are several benevolent persons who make annual donations; but the chief revenue is derived from the appeals made directly by the ladies themselves. Two of their number daily, in their turn, visit the residences of citizens and solicit contributions on behalf "of the sick and suffering poor, whose servants they are." It is to the credit of New York that these appeals are heard, and much good is effected by the liberal contributions given. The mother house of this order is in Prussia, but there is a provincial house in Cincinnati that controls the other establishments in the United States. The hospital is visited several times daily by a number of experienced and skilful physicians, and it may be added that the whole establishment presents a remarkably cheerful, airy and neat appearance. The patients, both men and women, are from the humbler walks of life, and all seemed contented with the treatment they receive, which they described as kind and considerate. The new wing or addition will be ready for occupation in about a month, when at least one hundred more patients can be accommodated. It will cost about $45,000.

YACHTING.

The Toms River Regatta.

The second regatta of the season of the Toms River catboats was sailed last Tuesday on Barnegat Bay. The weather was pleasant during the first part of the race, but in the afternoon the yachtsmen were caught in a heavy rain squall and drenched to the skin. The course was from the starting point to a stakeboat five miles distant and return, and was sailed twice over, making twenty miles in all. The following yachts started in the regatta:—

Maggie	Captain F. Grant.
Charrie Hooper	Captain John Grant.
Haze	Captain C. W. Patten.
A. J. Finn	Captain Samuel V. Pirsson.
Lu Lu	Captain A. Birdsall.
Vapor	Captain J. Falkenburgh.

A large boat was chartered by the club to take the invited guests over the course, and commanded by the old veteran, Captain Amos Grant, who ably fulfilled his charge and brought them safely home about nine P. M. The prizes were won as follows:—

Haze	First prize	Silver cup.
A. J. Finn	Second prize	$25.
Charrie Hooper	Third prize	$10.
Maggie	Fourth prize	Set of colors

The regatta proved a decided success, and the guests passed a very pleasant day witnessing the able seamanship exhibited in the handling of the saucy little catboats.

Yachting Notes.

The Yacht Columbia, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. Lester Wallack, left the lightship off New London at nine o'clock Friday morning, and was off Land's Point at twenty-eight minutes past three in the afternoon, thus making the distance (over eighty miles) in the wonderful time of six hours and twenty-eight minutes, probably the fastest time on record.

The sloop yachts Maud, B.Y.C., and Walter F. Davids, of New Rochelle, sail a match race on Tuesday next for $2,000, from New Rochelle harbor, at twelve o'clock.

Two Men Charged with Violating the Person of a Young Widow.

BOSTON, August 24, 1872.

Frederick Payrow, formerly a Boston police officer, and the present proprietor of the Mystic Hotel, in Medford, and George A. Emerson are under arrest charged with abducting and violating the person of a young widow, residing in Malden. The plaintiff alleges that she was assaulted and chloroformed in the street, lifted into a carriage and taken to the Spot Pond Hotel, and kept there all night. The defendants allege that she went voluntarily.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 24, 1872.

The facilities for the transportation of the new wheat crop are wholly inadequate. In many sections of the State where the crops are very large the farmers will be unable to get the bulk of their grain forward before the rainy season sets in.

The Colorado steamer Mojave has been wrecked. No lives were lost.

The democrats of Washington Territory will probably nominate Judge McFadden for delegate to Congress.

GETTING SQUARE.

While passing the corner of Broome and Elizabeth streets last evening Jacob Elkin, of 105 Essex street, was severely stabbed in the right arm, near the elbow, by John Walsh, a resident of 58 Mott street. At Elkin's instigation Walsh was arrested last Thursday on a charge of petit larceny, but was discharged by Judge Dowling, there not being sufficient evidence upon which to hold him. For the purpose of "getting square" with Elkin he assaulted him as above stated and then made good his escape.

ACCIDENT TO AN ACTRESS.

Mrs. Wallace, mother of the Wallace sisters, sustained a painful injury, on Friday night, through the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of her daughter Maud. The parties had returned to their hotel from performing in the hall, Easton, Pa. Maud took up a revolver which lay in the room and playfully remarking "Is this loaded?" pointed it at her mother, pulling the trigger. The pistol was discharged, the ball wounding Mrs. Wallace in the thigh, causing her to fall to the ground. She was placed under surgical care immediately and was doing well, after a very narrow escape from death, yesterday.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Portsmouth was put out of commission at New York yesterday. She is to be refitted for surveying service in the Pacific, and will be recommissioned about the 1st of October next.

Immortality of the Soul.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In your valuable paper of Sunday, August 4, I read an article, written by "F. C.," advocating the doctrine of "Cato," who believes in God and the Bible, but denies the immortality of the soul. I cannot understand how a person can believe in the Bible, but still deny one of its greatest lessons. It is not a mere sceptical belief, but is believed in by Christian and Jew, Moslem and heathen. Though the religion of the Hindoo is so degraded they still believe that the soul is immortal. The savage Indian is an example on our own Continent. Even his religion teaches him to believe that his soul is immortal. When our Saviour came upon earth He took upon Him the nature of man, and therefore as a man had to die and pass through the dark valley in the same manner as a human being. Now, when David prophesies concerning the death of Christ (Psalms xvi., 10) he says, "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt Thou suffer Thy Holy One to see corruption." The Apostle Peter, when the Holy Ghost was first poured out upon him on the day of Pentecost, quoted the very same words. The place spoken of here as hell was not the abode of the damned, the proper translation of it being "the place of departed spirits." From this we can draw the following conclusion:—If the souls of men died there would have been no such place made, and David could not have spoken about it. Therefore, as the inspired Psalmist writes about it, it is a proof of the existence of the place, and also a proof that the souls of men do not die, but occupy this place which was prepared by God for them. We find that David himself is comforted by this very belief; for when his beloved child lay sick he fasted and put on sackcloth, humbling himself in the dust. But when, after a week of suffering, his soul took its flight, he left off fasting and put off his sackcloth, happy in the thought that, though he should never more see him in this world, he would go to him when he died. Think you that David could have comforted himself thus if the soul of his child had died? We also read that Samuel came from the grave and conversed with Saul and was seen by him. Also at the transfiguration of our Saviour on the mount there appeared Moses and Elias talking with Him. Now, if the souls of these men had died, how could they have come from the grave and been both seen and heard by men? Likewise at the death of our Saviour many bodies of the saints arose. In many places in the Bible the words used to denote the death of a person are, "He gave up the ghost," showing that the soul does not die, but only leaves its tenement of clay. Solomon, speaking concerning death (Ecclesiastes xii. 7), says, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." If the soul died, why did the martyr Stephen, when being stoned to death, cry out, saying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!" When the dying thief on the cross cried out for forgiveness, our Saviour, answering, said, "This day shalt thou be with Me in Paradise." Our Saviour also said to his disciples, "Fear not those who kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul." These are conclusive proofs, for they are uttered by the Deity Himself. There are many other texts that I could give you attesting the fact that the soul is immortal and does not die, but rests in the place prepared for it while the body sleeps in the grave awaiting the glorious morn of the resurrection, when it shall rise and be again joined to the spirit never more to be separated; for then death will be conquered and the body, the mortal part of man, will put on immortality.

W. H.

The Efficacy of Prayer—John Bull's Most Serious Joke.

LONDON, August 3, 1872.

The English journals have been discussing for the last few weeks a very queer theological question. Your readers are aware that one of the fundamental doctrines of the Positivists and other anti-religious thinkers is a denial of the efficacy of prayer. "Things," they say, "obey natural laws, and these laws cannot be interfered with." Professor Tyndall, who holds a position of some eminence among English scientific men, has lately brought forward a rather startling proposal to this effect:—"Let," he says, "an hospital be founded in which there shall be two wards. Let prayers be offered up for the inmates of one ward and no prayers for the inmates of the other, and then, let us at the end of a certain number of years, compare the mortality of the two wards and thus test the efficacy of prayer."

Captain Galton, in this month's number of the Fortnightly Review, takes up the question and deals with it very fully. He goes much beyond Dr. Tyndall; for he says that prayer has already been tried and already found wanting. He points out that though, in both Protestant and Catholic nations, the sovereign is more constantly prayed for than any of his subjects, seeing that public prayer for him is included in every ritual, the average life of royalty in Europe during the past century is only 64.04 years, whereas that of ordinary gentlefolk is 70.22. Moreover, it would be expected that clergymen, whose profession it is to pray, and who certainly are not likely to forget themselves in their devotions, would live longer than licentious lawyers and sceptical doctors, who neither pray for themselves nor have any special litanies for their benefit; but an examination of the lists of "persons of sufficiens note to have had their lives recorded in a biographical dictionary" does not prove it. "The value of life," says Mr. Galton, "among the clergy, lawyers and medical men is as 66.42, 66.51 and 67.04 respectively, the clergy being the shortest lived of the three. Hence the prayers of the clergy for protection against the perils and dangers of the night, for protection during the day and for recovery from sickness, appear to be futile in result." Mr. Galton goes on to say:—"It appears that, in all countries and in all creeds, the priests urge the patient to pray for his own recovery, and the patient's friends to aid him with their prayers; but that the doctors make no account whatever of their spiritual agencies, unless the office of priest and medical man be combined in the same individual. The medical works of modern Europe teem with records of individual illnesses and of broad averages of disease, but I have been able to discover hardly any instance in which a medical man of any repute has attributed recovery to the influence of prayer. There is not a single instance to my knowledge, in which papers read before statistical societies have recognized the agency of prayer either on disease or on anything else. The universal habit of the scientific world to ignore the agency of prayer is a very important fact. To fully appreciate the 'eloquence of the silence' of medical men we must bear in mind the care with which they endeavor to assign a sanatory value to every influence. Had prayers for the sick any notable effect it is incredible but that the doctors, who are always on the watch for such things, should have observed it, and added their influence to that of the priests towards obtaining them for every sick man. If they abstain from doing so it is not because their attention has never been awakened to the possible efficacy of prayer, but, on the contrary, that although they have heard it insisted on from childhood upwards, they are unable to detect its influence. Most people have some general belief in the objective efficacy of prayer, but none seem willing to admit its action in those special cases of which they have scientific cognizance."

Now, I do not think it is at all necessary to point out at any length to your readers the inherent fallacy of argument like this. In the first place it assumes that God's will and the will of the creature who prays to him are one and the same. It assumes that God thinks as we think, that long life is a great blessing; but are they not innumerable, those to whom long life has been a curse, not a blessing? And may not God, therefore, be frequently consulting our own real happiness—which is really what we ask him to do—in refusing to grant our prayer for long life. And again, if God be omnipotent is it not a contradiction in terms to propose that we should coerce Him into granting our prayers. The Spectator of to-day contains the following excellent comments on Captain Galton's prayer:—

"We will not answer this astounding argument, as we might at first sight feel inclined to do, by declaring it physicism gone wild, a direct attempt to weigh mental consequences in a pair of brass scales, or by pointing out that, according to the Christian belief which Captain Galton is attacking, God has expressly declared that He does not limit His benevolence by men's deserving, raining equally on the just and unjust, or by asking Captain Galton for proof that his pious persons ever pray earnestly without the earnest addition of a prayer that God's will shall be done and not theirs, but will meet him face to face on his own ground, with his own method and with a blank denial. In two cases, so large and so visible as to be better than any of his own, persons about whom the presumption alike of prayer and of a prayerful spirit is greater than it is about any of those he names, have been enormously, almost miraculously successful. If it can be asserted of any human beings that they prayed for the diffusion of their ideas of faith it can be asserted about the early Christians. If it can be asserted about any prayer that it involved an antecedent improbability of realization, it can be asserted about that particular prayer. And in spite of all circumstances, of the reluctance of mankind, of the horror-struck resistance of princes, of the antagonism between those ideas and the instincts of mankind—of the weakness, as Captain Galton would say, of those ideas—that prayer was heard, those ideas were diffused, that faith is the faith of the peoples who control the world. It is not we who are pressing that kind of evidence for prayer; we are simply accepting Captain Galton's method and giving him an overwhelming instance of a cause which was hopeless, which was prayed for and which did win. The other instance is an even stronger one on Captain Galton's system of proof. He says that God is incessantly asked to grant Sovereigns long life, and they die quicker than other people. We say in return that God is perpetually asked in the same formal way to protect the Papacy, and that in spite of all circumstances, of all oppositions, of, as we think, its own inherent and necessary tendency to death—its pretensions being baseless—the Papacy endures through the ages, and seems, as Macaulay said, as if it might survive all existing institutions. We do not say post hoc, ergo propter hoc—in the second instance we could not say it—but Captain Galton, by the law of his method, is bound to say it for us. If the absence of protection for churches from lightning and of kings from early death are proofs that prayer is useless, then the victory of Christianity and the durability of the Popedom are greater, because more certain and visible proofs that prayer is useful."

Immortality Taught in the Bible.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

There has been in several of the past editions of the Sunday HERALD a discussion on the immortality of the soul, which has had but one defender, "W. C. D.," on whose side and in defence of the truths, "in which we so surely believe," I enroll myself. To begin with, we will assume as a fact, as he draws all his proofs from Holy Writ, that "F. C." (your correspondent) believes in the divine origin of the Bible, as being God's word and written under the guidance of His Holy Spirit; as such its histories, its prophecies, its promises and its threatenings must stand or fall together. We must also understand the Bible acceptation of the terms "life" and "death." "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory."—Colossians iii, 4. This text contains a double proof. Christ is the life of the soul, as the soul is the life of the body; withdraw Christ the soul is dead—is given over to the darkness of sin; the soul leaves the body, the body dies—is given over to the darkness of the grave. The second proof is that "we shall appear with Him in glory." The body decays, the immortal soul of the righteous passes into Paradise, there to await the resurrection of the body (not the resurrection of the soul), to be joined to it again at the judgment day. We know from I Cor. xv., 42-44, that the body raised is not the same body, being a spiritual, yet being a reproduction of the natural body. Now, if the soul had ceased to be and had been recreated an immortal soul, this would not be the same body and soul that lived upon the earth—was saved by Christ's atonement—but an entirely new created being, which interpretation is opposed in every sense to the words, "Ye shall also appear with him in glory." Take next the term "death." "The soul that sinneth shall surely die," was said under the Old Testament dispensation. At first glance this seems a most positive proof of "F. C.'s" doctrine, it being proved the soul of the righteous is immortal, at least, the soul of the sinner is lost; it must die! But when a man commits a sin does he fall dead? No; it is too opposed to the reason of the most thoughtless of human beings to assert such a thing as a fact. It is universally acknowledged that the soul of man gives life to his body, and also that that alone raises him above the brute creation, so as his body neither falls dead nor becomes a beast of the field when he sins, we must suppose the word meant a different kind of death from the word we use to express the extinction or cessation of life. God meant us to explain one portion of Scripture by another. "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." Christ is the resurrection of the body, the life of the soul; he that believes in Him, though through his sin his soul had died, yet on accepting Christ as his Redeemer, and thereby submitting to His commandments, life should be imparted to it again; and he whose soul had thus gained life and belief should never die—that is, never in this world or in the next be separated from Christ. Life and death to God, then, means but this:—To live, to be be one of those embracing Christ on earth, "to appear with Him in glory;" to die, to refuse the salvation offered on earth, to go away into everlasting punishment in hell when the earthly death, "the second death," is over—for there are three deaths, the death of the soul that cares not to know God, the death of the body when the soul parts from it and the death of the soul and body when sent into everlasting punishment with the devil and his angels. Time and space would fail me to write the number of texts that prove the immortality of the soul, and with this one I conclude, "God will render to every man according to his deeds; to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor, and immortality, eternal life"—Romans ii., 7. If we sought for the immortality of the soul when there was no such thing, we would scarcely be rewarded with "eternal life." Let "F. C." and his adherents, who fortunately are born some eighteen hundred years too late for the spreading of such pagan theories, read First Thessalonians iv., 15, 16, 17, and Matthew xxv., 31-46, and if then they can prove by God's word the soul dies with the body, ceases to be with the body's decay, then of all men are we who have believed most miserable! for no compensation have we for the sufferings of this present time, no support in the hour of temptation, no joy in the hope of a new Jerusalem; we look with horror, not love, upon a God who formed us for suffering and total destruction, and when we close the eyes of those we love in the last sleep, we bid them farewell, forever! Man a Mortal—Immortality Only Through Christ.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

If the discussion in which I have been engaged for the past few months in your valuable paper would admit of it, I should in the beginning of this article betake myself to the pleasant duty of thanking you for the gracious privilege of giving to the world the truths I have been trying humbly to defend; and those who have from time to time thrown themselves within the breach and in helping me have also vindicated the true doctrine of the mortality of man against the rampant but harmless assaults of orthodoxy. But here it is out of place. I have been frequently assailed with the charge of inconsistency in believing the Bible and denying the immortality of the soul; but all of my accusers have signally failed to show the point wherein the inconsistency lies. On the other hand, the Bible, which is given to us to show us the way of salvation, which is the way of life, becomes clothed with a greater beauty and a greater glory when considered in its efficacy as being able to bestow eternal life upon beings who are in every particular subject to death and decay in the most absolute sense of the terms.

The great desideratum in the purview of man's existence is life—with life there is hope, at least, if not happiness. In death there is despair and oblivion. The loss of life is apparently man's greatest affliction; the enjoyment of life his greatest blessing. In the good book which has been given him, called the Bible, he is assured of his mortality, and promised, on certain conditions, the gift of immortal existence. Without this view of the subject, the Gospel loses its charm, its declarations become meaningless and at variance with all the phenomena of nature; and the Bible as a whole, a tissue of falsehoods and absurdities. It seems to me only to require a little divesting of old prejudices, and the exercising of a little reason and common sense, to be able to see the force of this plain statement. If it be true that man is inherently immortal, and must and will live forever, what use is there of the plan of salvation, the resurrection from the dead; and of what utility is the whole scheme of the redemption of our race?

Again, a part of infinity is equal to the whole. God cannot punish himself. If we are equal to Him in the infinity of our being, when once the soul were free from its earthly thraldom it would leap into perfect equality with Divinity and assert its peerage According to the popular theory, then, living, we are men; dying, we become gods! Such, I have before said, was the superstitious belief of the anti-Christian world; and such the rational conclusion of any honest mind that investigates and assumes as true the principles of the prevailing Christian faith. If this philosophy of the Greeks had never become an appendage of the Christian Church in the days of its spiritual darkness the idea of Purgatory would never have entered into the mind of the believer in Jesus; and if men and women of a later period in the history of the world had not suffered themselves to be led by despotic priests and fanatical preachers the humbuggery of Spiritualism would never have become an attaché of Christianity. For once assume the immortality of the human soul, and ten thousand wild and baseless theories founded only in the fruitful imaginations of the visionary, start into life. Men, in the hallucinations of their morbid fancies, cease to deal with things as they are, and walk the earth with their heads in the clouds. Restless ghosts haunt the quiet dwelling places of sleeping humanity and make the sweet and quiet night hideous with the appearance of their frightful apparitions. Clairvoyants, like heartless vampires, invest the abodes of the ignorant and prey unmercifully upon the fruits of their hard-earned toil. Communicating mediums throw out their business cards with impunity among the credulous masses of our crowded cities, and reap a rich harvest from their work of deception and fraud. Taken in its best and purest form, this dogma can only raise us to that unstable and ethereal height of civilization attained to by the heathen fathers of our ancient literature, from which the world relapsed into a still grosser condition of confirmed and hopeless superstition, but "the times of such ignorance God now winks at." The whole mystery of our being, having displayed its key in the person and offices of Jesus Christ, is now becoming unravelled, and old ideas and old theories are toppling to their fall. Are we so blinded by the prejudices of education or so bigoted in the pride and arrogance of our hearts that we will not heed the light of truth? A baseless fabric is our boasted civilization, a reeking sacrilege our canting religion, if built upon a foundation so treacherous and a faith so untrue.

Spiritualism, True and False, Good and Evil.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Your correspondents "Jerome Ross" and "Bible Spiritualist" both have admitted, in your columns, that there are two kinds of spiritualism; the one good and true, the other evil and false.

In the First Epistle of John we are directed to "believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God;" and the following is the criterion:—"Hereby know ye the spirit of God: every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God;" and we are told that every spirit that confesseth not this doctrine is not of God. And in First Timothy we read:—"That in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." The divinely commissioned seer for the New Jerusalem dispensation, which is now being established on earth, Emmanuel Swedenborg, assures us from actual observation in the spiritual world, and from a most intimate knowledge of the laws of that world, and of spiritual intercourse with and influx into this world, "that to speak with angels of heaven is granted to none but such as are grounded in truths originating in good, especially in the acknowledgment of the Lord and of the divinity in His humanity; this being the truth in which the heavens are established. For the Lord is the God of heaven; the Lord's divine sphere constitutes heaven, and the Lord's divine sphere in heaven is love to Him and charity towards the neighbor derived from Him." Swedenborg found in the spiritual world, and described carefully, three heavens, all the inhabitants of which acknowledged the Lord Jesus Christ as God, the sacred Scriptures as revelations from God, and were actuated in all they did and said by either love to the Lord, charity to the neighbor or love of obedience to the Divine commandments. He also found three other societies opposite the heavens, which he denominates hell, all the inhabitants of which deny the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ, deny that the sacred Scriptures are the Word of God, and are actuated in all that they do by some form of selfishness. He found intermediate between heaven and hell what he calls the world of spirits, which is the common receptacle for all men when they leave this world, where their ruling loves are developed and they are prepared to enter either heaven or hell. He assures us that the world of spirits is like this world, from which it is constantly peopled to a great extent, filled with lying and deceiving inhabitants or spirits, who deny the Lord, the necessity for regeneration and heavenly truths. Unless guided and protected by the Lord and His angels for a special purpose a man in open intercourse simply comes in contact with his associate spirits, or those like himself, in a similar faith and life; consequently, when a man is believing false doctrines, and actuated by evil loves or perverted affections, if he has intercourse with spirits, he necessarily comes in contact with evil spirits. Therefore, says Swedenborg, "to speak with spirits is at this day rarely granted, because it is dangerous; for the spirits then know that they are present with man, which otherwise they do not, and evil spirits are of such a nature that they regard man with deadly hatred, and desire nothing more than to destroy him." Especially do they strive to destroy all heavenly truths and affections in his soul. Such destruction is spiritual death—not annihilation—the death which was pronounced in Eden.

Your correspondent, "Jerome Ross," recognizes most distinctly and clearly the great law of spiritual association; that like dwell with like, and that like attract like, which Swedenborg so fully illustrates in all his writings; consequently, that man, while here, attracts to himself spirits like himself, both as to principles and life; therefore, in open intercourse he only comes in contact with his like. Now, if your correspondent will stop and use the reason to which he appeals in the case of the Bible he can but see the impropriety and danger of seeking intercourse with spirits. Let us look at this subject for a moment from his own standpoint, or the law of affinity, the truth of which he admits, in the light of reason; for I fully agree with him that the sacred Scriptures, even in order that they may retain their hold upon an enlightened age as special revelations from God to man, must stand the severest tests of reason; and I know that when interpreted in accordance with the grand science of correspondences between natural and spiritual things revealed through Swedenborg, they will stand the test and shine brighter and brighter as the ages roll on; for the thoughts and affections of the Creater are manifested alike in His word and works, and can never conflict when correctly interpreted. Can modern Spiritualism stand the tests of enlightened reason? Let us see.

If this life is but the beginning of an endless life, it is manifest that doctrines, thoughts, words and acts, which tend to subdue our evil inclinations, and to lead us to love the Lord and our neighbor supremely are of first importance, for they tend to unity and peace, happiness and heaven. But with multitudes to-day selfishness and sensualism rule, and they must be born again or put away their supreme selfishness and come to act from higher motives or it is manifest that they can never enter the kingdom of heaven, for heaven is not a pen or place into which a man can be let as a matter of favor. Heavenly principles must rule us before we can enter the gates of the celestial city. Now let the man who is ruled by either the selfish love of power or money, or who is vain, licentious, or given to drunkenness, jealousy, or envy, seek communications from spirits, and what is the inevitable result? Remember like attracts like. Being swayed by evil motives his associate spirits are necessarily evil, and evil spirits are in false doctrines, therefore they deny the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ, for they hate him. They deny the necessity for regeneration, in fact deny that man can live from any higher motive than selfishness, and, if the man harkens to them, they will use every effort and art to hold him in his present state of life and to destroy all reverence for the Lord and His word as special revelations from Him, for, if the man change for the better, they are repelled and have to leave him. Thus by seeking and hearkening to spiritual communications the evil or unregenerate man confirms himself in his evil loves, his spirits justifying him by every seductive argument imaginable, and thus even the prospect of his future regeneration is destroyed. Could a greater misfortune befall an evil man here below than this? Again, supposing a man has commenced living a new life, the work of regeneration is not accomplished in a day; but regeneration results from the warfare of a lifetime. Little by little are his evil inclinations and thoughts put away; evil inclinations and thoughts are prompted by evil spirits, and supposing while temporarily harboring such the man seeks and heeds communications from spirits, these evil spirits will necessarily use every art to destroy the new resolutions for a better life, by, as rapidly as he will bear it, denying all heavenly doctrines and confirming him, if possible, in his evil states. Could a greater misfortune befal him? Once more, there are three heavens, seen and carefully described by Swedenborg, within the reach of men, and whether a good man shall reach the lowest, middle or highest depends upon the progress made here in the regenerate life. Supposing a good man, in a good state, seeks communications from spirits. His associate spirits are no better than he is, and open vision with them or communicating with them will tend to fix him in his present state of life and prevent his progress towards a higher life, thus checking the great work of regeneration. How serious the injury to the man! The following statements by Swedenborg appeal to our highest reason:—"Good spirits and angels," he says, never induce any dogmatic principle of religion, "for the Lord alone teaches a man, though mediately, through the Word in illumination." "Nor do they say anything which takes away the freedom of reason," such as dictating or attempting to control his actions, for this would impair his manhood if he were to obey such dictations; only evil spirits attempt such interferences with man's freedom.

In conclusion I will ask Mr. "Ross" if enlightened reason, and even the common sense with which God has endowed man, do not condemn in the most earnest and positive manner the seeking of open intercourse with spirits, or the obtaining communications from them? The sacred Scriptures, as interpreted in the writings of Swedenborg, reveal to us a knowledge of a higher and nobler life than it is possible for our associate spirits to comprehend or unfold to us; and if anyone is anxious or curious for a knowledge of the spiritual world, or of spirits or even of modern spiritualism, he can only obtain reliable information by reading the writings of the Swedish seer.

Mr. Hepworth's New Church.

Rev. Mr. Hepworth's new church (Church of the Disciples) is now being erected corner of Forty-fifth street and Madison avenue, and the builder, Mr. John Sniffen, promises to have it ready for occupancy by next January. The architect is Mr. Laurence B. Valk. The church will be one of the largest in the city, having accommodation for 3,000 persons, and particular attention has been given to the proper ventilation and acoustic requirements of so large an edifice. The congregation of which Mr. Hepworth is pastor will renew their religious services in Steinway Hall during September.

Spiritual Retreat of Catholic Priests.

The Catholic pastors of the archdiocese of New York will enter to-morrow on their biennial spiritual retreat at St. Joseph's Provincial Seminary, Troy, N. Y. The spiritual exercises are to be conducted by the Rev. Father O'Shea, S. J. During the "retreat," which will continue until Saturday next, an unbroken silence will be preserved by the priests, each holding communion with God and his conscience, and begging for himself grace to discharge his ministry as he should, and for his flock the choicest blessings of heaven.

A Praying Machine in China.

[From the Shanghae Budget, July 6.]

We have been favored with an opportunity of inspecting a Mongolian praying machine, "Hu-lung-tung," recently received by Mr. George Stent, along with other literary treasures, from a friend in Pekin, whose zeal in exploring the less frequented byways of Chinese and Mongolian literature is worthy of all commendation. The meaning of the name "Hu-lung-tung" is said to be "Mongolian Dragon Cave;" the idea appearing to be that the use of the machine is to gain access for the aspirations of the person using it into the secret retreat of the sacred Dragon. The machine itself is a red copper cylinder about five inches long and three inches in diameter. The bottom and top, of the same material, are both removable; in the centre of the bottom is a hole, through which a copper pin about seven inches long passes and fits into a socket in the centre of the inner surface of the lid. Holding this pin in the left hand, and giving to the machine a revolving motion with the right, it can be kept spinning rapidly round by the same rotary action of the one hand, as an acrobat uses in supporting bowls, saucers, &c., on the top of a wand. The outer surface of the cylinder is divided by chased scroll-work into five panels, on each of which is a Sanskrit character standing out in bas-relief, the whole forming the Buddhist ejaculatory prayer:—O mi pat ma hom; of the precise significance of which we must confess our ignorance. Of course the idea is that the more frequent the revolutions of the machine the greater the merit of the revolutionist. Accompanying the machine are an immense number of paper slips on which are printed prayers in Sanskrit. There are also two volumes which are filled with a catalogue of various titles and attributes of Buddha, printed in Sanskrit, Mongolian and Chinese. Of these the following may serve as specimens:—"Pearly bright Buddha," "lion-jawed Buddha," "golden mountain B.," "peacock-voiced B.," "lightnings' brilliance B.," "Peachy moon B.," "Ox king B.," &c.

Ministerial Movements, Changes, &c.

METHODISTS.

The several Methodist bodies in Canada are harmonizing differences and appointing committees to prepare bases of permanent union among themselves. Such a union would probably make a union with American Methodists impracticable, if not impossible. The Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Bond, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, one of the ablest writers and preachers of the Methodist Church South, died at his home in Baltimore, Md., on Monday last. The Advocate is consequently in mourning this week. Bishop Pierce, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will leave Georgia on the 26th instant for his tour of Episcopal visitation of the Western Conference. Dr. L. M. Lee, Presiding Elder of the Richmond district, is seriously ill. Bishop Keener is to be at the Monticello District Conference, Little Rock Conference, at Keener camp ground, September 13. Bishop Wightman, after a brief visit to his home in Charleston, S. C., will leave for a visitation tour among the Western Conferences, Methodist episcopal Church South. Dr. McFarrin, the Missionary Secretary, will accompany him. Rev. John W. Sullivan, D. D., Chaplain of Indiana State Prison, has returned from Europe, and gone to his home in Jeffersonville, Ind. Rev. S. L. Baldwin and family will return to his mission in Japan about the first of October. He will be accompanied by Miss Carrie E. Reed, appointed to the mission in Kise King, China. Rev. Dr. H. B. Ridgeway, of this city, preached last Sunday in Newport, R. I., on his way to Martha's Vineyard Camp Meeting. Rev. F. A. Crafts has removed from Middletown to Collinsville, Conn., where he has been appointed pastor. Rev. D. O. Fox, of Sprout Brook, Montgomery county, N. Y., and Rev. Albert Norton, of Alabama, Genessee county, N. Y., and Rev. H. M. Bradley, will sail early in September as missionaries to India. Rev. Dr. A. Webster, President of Claflin University, South Carolina, is seeking aid in New England for educational interests in the South, and especially for the institution over which he presides. A Methodist Church edifice has been commenced at Arthur's Landing, on Thunder Bay, Lake Superior. Bishop McTyeire, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is in Oregon holding conferences. Bishop Simpson is to dedicate the new Methodist Episcopal church at Fort Wayne, Ind., September 8. At Huntingdale, Mo, a new Methodist Episcopal church has been organized. Rev. J. H. Martin has resigned the presidency of Moore's Hill College to accept the superintendency of the public schools in Macon, Mo. Rev. F. A. Hester, D. D., of the Connersville district, Southeastern Indiana Conference, has been elected to and accepted the Presidency of the college. The Mount Vernon Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore is having constructed for its new building the largest organ in Baltimore, and one of the largest in the country, at a cost of $12,500. It has fifty two stops and three banks of keys, and is to be worked by two hydraulic engines; it is to be completed by October. The Broadway congregation have also furnished their church with a handsome new organ, without debt; it cost $2,800. Rev. Dr. Nelson, Book Agent in this city, has gone to San Francisco, Cal., and Portland, Oregon, to look after the book depositories in those places. Bishop Bowman is to dedicate a new Methodist Episcopal church near Greencastle, Ind., September 15. He is to take up his abode permanently in St. Louis about October 1. Rev. Joseph Cummings, LL. D., President of the Wesleyan University, accompanied by Mrs. Cummings, sailed for Europe on Saturday last by the steamer Atlanta. He goes out on a year's leave of absence, granted by the trustees of the University. President Merrick, of the Ohio Wesleyan University, is recruiting at Put-inBay. Rev. L. M. Albright, of the Central Ohio Conference, has been elected to and accepted the superintendency of the Union Schools, Upper Sandusky, Ohio. Rev. R. Rust, D. D., Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, has spent his vacation in New England. Rev. S. J. Huffaker, of the Missouri Conference, has resumed charge of Richmond College. Rev. Robert Hazleton, of the Irish Wesleyan Conference, is expected to join one of our Northern conferences in the Spring. The revival spirit is spreading among the Texas Methodists, the preachers are at their posts, and the people in answer to their call, are gathering around the cross and penitents are joining the happy company. The new edifice of the Southern Methodist Publishing House, located at Nashville, is rapidly progressing. It presents a front on the public square of 116 feet, and runs back 224 feet to the river. It is five stories high, and is valued at $150,000. The ground is valued at $100,000, making a total of $250,000. The contributions in aid of the building fund amount to $42,023, of which about $33,000 have been given by the citizens of Nashville.

BAPTIST.

The Texas Baptist General Association has denounced dram-drinking for the gratification of the appetite as positively sinful, but the manufacture of liquors is, in their opinion, much more sinful. The Rev. James Wall, Baptist missionary in Rome, is now in London soliciting aid to build a church in the Eternal City. "Close-communionists are degrading the ministry, says the Freewill Baptist Union. And this in the face of the fact that Baptist pulpits present some of the highest ministerial types in the world. Rev. N. H. Ward, pastor, calls for help in the erection of a Baptist house of worship for the church at Elk Falls, Howard county, Southern Kansas. Rev. J. A. Nash has accepted the Presidency of the University of Des Moines. Rev. Jirah D. Cole, D. D., having closed his labors at Atlanta, Logan county, Ill., on account of the burning of the house of worship there, has become pastor of the Baptist church in Lockport, Will county, Ill. The Baptist church at St. Cloud, Minn., has invited the Rev. Daniel Correy, of New York, to become their pastor. He has not yet signified his purpose to accept. Rev. J. C. Nye, has been holding a series of meetings with the Pine Creek First Baptist church, Scioto county, Ohio, with good results. Ten have been baptized. The meeting house of the First Baptist church in Fall River will be dedicated on the first Tuesday evening in September. It is said to be one of the finest houses in that part of the State. Rev. W. M. Jenkins has resigned his pastorate of the First Baptist church at Commerce, Mich. Professor W. T. Stott, late of Franklin College (Baptist), has accepted the Professorship of Natural Science in Kalamazoo College. The Rev. M. J. Knowlton has been appointed missionary to Ningpo, China, and will sail for that point from San Francisco about October 1. The Shiloh Baptist church of Camden, N. J., are about to build a new house of worship; Rev. M. Wilcox pastor. Rev. L. M. Woodruff, after supplying the pulpit of the First Baptist church of Detroit for two years, has now declined a call to the pastorate. The call, it seems to us, came rather late. The Baptish church at Baldwin's Prairie, Mich., are erecting a new brick meeting house at a cost of $4,000. Rev. G. W. Gardner, D. D., of Charlestown, Mass., has been elected Secretary of the Baptist Missionary Union. Rev. Thomas F. Curtis, D. D., for many years a resident of Cambridge, Mass., died on Friday at the age of fifty-six years. Dr. Curtis was formerly Professor of Theology in the University at Lewisburg. A colony of Baptists from the Twelfth church, Philadelphia, have established themselves at Shober's Hall, on Girard avenue, above Palmer street. They have engaged Rev. C. Wilson Smith to preach for them. Recently, Rev. M. B. Wharton, pastor of the Walnut street church, Louisville, baptized a convert from Romanism, a lady, who, for many years, had been a prominent "Sister of Charity," and the Baptist papers are crowing over it. Rev. R. M. Dudley, formerly editor of the Western Recorder, has accepted the professorship of History and Social Science in Georgetown College, Ky. The Rev. Andrew J. Hay, pastor of the Baptist church at York, Pa., having conditionally accepted a call to preach for the Baptists of Rochester, Minn., his York parishioners met and unanimously declined to accept his resignation. Grace Baptist church, of Philadelphia, have pitched a tent, forty by sixty feet, on lots on Berks street, above Eleventh, where they design to build. The tent will be dedicated to-day by Revs. H. Malcom, D. D., D. Spencer, A. J. Rowland, L. B. Hartman, the pastor and others. Rev. D. F. Carnahan has resigned the pastorate of the North Baptist church, Springfield, Ill. He has not yet decided upon his future field of labor. Rev. A. Martell, formerly of Park Hill, Ontario, has accepted the unanimous call to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Romeo, Mich., and has entered upon his labors. Rev. T. F. Borchers, late of Marengo, is now pastor of the Baptist church at Moline, Ill. The Baptists are building an asylum in Brooklyn. The Rev. B. F. Ashley has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church in Kankakee, Ill., to take effect on the last Sabbath in September. Rev. William Everett has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Brussels street Baptist church of St. John, N. B., and it is expected that he will enter upon his duties in this connection early in the coming month.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Rev. W. G. Moorehead, of Xenia, Ohio, has declined the call to the Third United Presbyterian church of Allegheny City, Pa., lately under the pastoral care of the Rev. J. R. Kerr, of Philadelphia. The Associate Reformed Presbytery of Kentucky, at its late meeting at Mount Zion, Lincoln county, Mo., resolved to institute legal proceedings, if necessary, to gain possession of the minutes of the old Associate Reformed Presbytery of Kentucky, now in the keeping of the Rev. T. S. Lee, the church belonging to the congregation of the Rev. Gilbert Gordon, in Louisville, Ky., and Ebenezer church, in Jessamine county, Ky. Rev. Henry Fowler, late pastor of the Central Presbyterian church in Auburn, N. Y., being in feeble health, went to Vineyard Haven, Mass. (on Martha's Vineyard), recently for his health. Shortly after bathing on the beach he was attacked with apoplexy and died in a few hours. Canon Kingsley is reported to be the chosen editor of Good Words, to succeed Dr. McLeod. The Presbyterians in West Philadelphia and the Episcopalians are moving for a clergyman's retreat in New York. The Presbyterian Board is sending out a new class of missionaries—female physicians; thus showing that religion, especially the cause of foreign missions, is to be benefited by the opening of the professions to American women. The Woman's Board has sent out three who have received a medical education, and are preparing to send others. The First Presbyterian church at Nashville has invited the congregation of the Cumberland Presbyterian church to participate in their services, the ministers to alternate in the pulpit, during the erection of the proposed new Cumberland Presbyterian church in that city. Rev. Samuel B. Bell, D. D., of Lyons, New York, has accepted a call to the First Presbyterian church of Lafayette, Ind., and will assume the pastoral duties there September 15. The Rev. N. M. Sherwood, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Elmira, N. Y., returns to his people much improved in health by his five months' vacation. During his absence his pulpit has been most acceptably supplied by Mr. S. L. Conde, of the present senior class in Auburn Theological Seminary. The Presbyterians of Dansville, N. Y., have engaged Rev. John Jones, D. D., of the Geneseo Academy, to supply their pulpit for some months, with a view to call Mr. George K. Ward on the completion of his studies at Princeton. The Rev. Ogden Henderson has accepted a call to the Presbyterian church in Nashville, Tenn. Rev. J. A. Ranney of Three Rivers, has gone to Michigan Female Seminary, Kalamazoo, Mich. Rev. T. P. Sankey, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Rochester, has received a call to the United Presbyterian church of Buffalo.

EPISCOPALIAN.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York have responded to Earl Shaftesbury's circular permitting clergymen of the Church of England to dispense with the Athanasian Creed. Bishop Howe, of South Carolina, has decided, with reference to the choral service, that where the rubric says "read" the ritual may be sung; but that where it says "say" the musical rendering is excluded. This is drawing ritualism very fine. The Board of Managers of the Free Church of the Redeemer for seamen and their families, maintained by the Churchmen's Missionary Association of the port of Philadelphia, are now engaged in an effort to raise funds to purchase a church lot on South Front street, on which a church and Sunday school building will be erected with the proceeds of the present lot when sold. About $15,000 will be required. The Bishop of Huron (Dr. Helmuth) frankly declines, upon doctrinal grounds, the adoption of "Hymns, Ancient and Modern," as they boldly teach the Romish doctrines of transubstantiation, the real presence in the sacramental bread and wine, the adoration of the elements, invocation of saints and other kindred and false doctrines which caused our separation from the Church of Rome at the cost of England's "noble army of martyrs." The Bishop admits the general beauty and soundness of the collection, but pronounces the whole box of ointment tainted by the false doctrines here and there insidiously introduced.

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society have cordially welcomed the proposal of the venerable Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts to set apart December 20, 1872, as a day for special intercession with God for the supply of missionary laborers in the field occupied by the Church of England. Rev. S. R. J. Hoyt, formerly of Griswold College, and now a missionary in China, has returned to this country on account of the health of Mrs. Hoyt.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

The Roman Catholic cathedral at Newark, N. J., is to cost $1,800,000, and the bishop's house $300,000, and nearly all this money has been obtained, or is to be, from the church members in small subscriptions. The expelled German Jesuits are to be disbanded that they may re-enter the Empire in other existing and tolerated religious orders. The Freeman's Journal, on the strength of two Italian exchanges, confirms the report of Bishop Bayley's exaltation to the archiepiscopal See of Baltimore, and calls upon the faithful to offer up prayers and supplications to God for the prelate's spiritual guidance and success in his new field. The total amount subscribed toward the Catholic Protectory to date is $2,945 72. The temporary buildings erected are sufficiently far advanced to enable the 314 girls who are in the care of the Protectory to be lodged in them. They will be completely finished in the course of a few days. The Holy See has named Mgr. de la Bouillerie, hitherto Bishop of Carcassonne, to be Coadjutor of the Cardinal Archbishop of Bordeaux, Mgr. Donnet, who is nearly seventy-seven years of age. Mgr. de la Bouillerie, on this transferral, is named Archbishop of Corinth, in partibus. A layman of Moscow replies to the proposal of Dr. Döllinger that the old Catholic, the Episcopal and Greek churches should unite. He claims that all should join the Greek Church as the only true Church on earth. The old Catholics are to hold a grand council at Cologne, September 21 and 22. The Catholics of Clermont, N. H., are building a fine church, which is nearly completed. It has been two years in process of erection. Rev. Father L'Hiver is the pastor of a new Spanish Catholic church to be erected in San Francisco. The proceeds of the grand concert in the Coliseum, Boston, to-day, are to go toward paying off the debt upon the House of the Angel Guardian, a Catholic institution. Thirty thousand voices, the big organ and a grand orchestra are to make a great and harmonious noise on the occasion. Rev. George F. Haskins is at the head of the institution. The Right Rev. Bishop Gibbons, now Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina, was consecrated Bishop in August, 1868—just four years ago. Before that he was Secretary of the Metropolitan See of Baltimore, and greatly venerated and beloved by clergy and by laity. As he is in the full vigor of his age it is very probable that, as Bishop of Richmond, he will still continue administrator of the Vicariate Apostolic of North Carolina. The Rev. Father Boylan, of Cavan, Ireland, has again crossed the Atlantic to America on a collecting tour for his diocese. To-day being the Feast of St. Louis will be appropriately observed in Catholic churches. The Rev. John McNamara, C. C., of the Cathedral North Parish, Cork, has been raised to the dignity of Canon, a vacancy in the chapter of the diocese having been occasioned by the death of the late Rev. Canon Horgan, of Ballincollig. The Catholic church in Stoneham, Mass., is to be moved to the north side of Pomeworth street, and an addition of about thirty feet put to it. The work will be begun in a few weeks, and pushed forward as fast as possible, as the building is too small for the rapidly growing congregation.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Some of the Western Israelites are forming colonization societies for the purposes of relieving their Roumanian coreligionists, by bringing them to America and providing employment for them in the Western States. A Mr. Franklin, of Pine Bluff, Ark., has agreed to take 200 emigrants to work on his estates. The Home Missionary says that the West is producing a much larger ratio of effective ministers than the East. Among the veteran clergymen of Boston should be named Rev. Dr. Kirk, who has been settled there thirty years; Rev. James Freeman Clarke, who has been pastor of the Church of the Disciples thirty-one years; and Rev. Nathaniel Hall, whose devoted ministry in the Sixteenth ward reaches back to 1835. The Jewish order of Bnai Brith has a general fund for benevolent purposes of $54,000, which it is proposed to increase to $100,000, with which sum it is designed to erect an orphan asylum, in connection with a home for aged and homeless brethren. The realization of this plan in the near future, and even on a small scale, it is argued, would contribute materially toward knitting closer the tie of brotherhood and shed glory on the order. Rev. Dr. Chapin preached a very eloquent discourse in the Shawmut avenue Universalist church, Boston, last Sunday morning, on "Touching Christ, or Personal Relations with the Saviour." The attendance was so large that seats were placed in the aisles. In the evening Dr. Chapin preached upon "The Hidden or Inner Life" to a congregation that completely filled the church. The Municipal Council of Paris has voted the amount of 350,000 francs for the completion of the synagogues now being erected in the Rue de la Victoire and the Place Royale. The National Conference of Unitarian and Liberal Christian churches will be held in Boston, in the South Congregational church, October 22. Professor C. C. Everett, D. D., of Cambridge, will preach the biennial sermon before the Conference. Rev. W. H. Cudworth conducted the religious services last Sunday evening in the hall of the Boston Young Men's Christian Union. He took for his subject, "What is it to experience religion?" He presented Paul's experience as the standard, considering his conversion not as an ordinary incident, but as a radical transformation of character or new direction of life. The Dundee (Scotland) Presbyterians can't get over the insult they think themselves and orthodoxy have received by the Rev. Mr. Knight, of the Free Church, preaching recently for the distinguished Unitarian divine, Rev. James Martineau. They still keep up the agitation. The Free Church Presbytery have not only censured Mr. Knight, but they now require him to hold and teach that Unitarianism is not a branch of the Christian Church. The reverend gentleman cannot see as the Presbytery wishes, and refused to admit that he committed any offence by preaching for the distinguished Unitarian. English Presbyterians also feel scandalized. They are very frequently confounded with Unitarians and represented as such. Many of their churches have passed into the hands of Unitarians, and they look upon Mr. Knight's act as calculated to perpetuate a state of things which they have found unpleasant and sometimes disadvantageous. In India there are about 30,000 females under instruction at mission schools. Dr. Falk, the new minister of worship and instruction in Berlin, is winning golden opinions by the publicity which he is giving to all proceedings that affect his department. This is in such striking contrast to the secrecy which marked the operations of his predecessor—the unpopular Von Muhler—that the people are beginning to lose their fears of a reaction. The Lutheran congregation at Savannah, Ga., have purchased a parsonage at a cost of $8,400 and furnished it entire for their pastor, Rev. D. H. Bittle. Rev. M. W. Fair has resigned the charge of the Lutheran Church at Woodsboro, Md. Some of the New England churches are holding peace festivals for the purpose of raising funds to carry on their charitable labors. The Netherland Committee, in regard to the Jewish persecutions in Roumania, is now completed. Not only the most prominent clergymen, judges, lawyers, professors and bankers of the Jewish faith take part in that committee, but several Christians also, among whom are the Mayor of Amsterdam, and a member of the First Chamber in the Hague. Several excesses against the Jews have lately taken place in Bohemia. The Jewish paper published in Prague attempts to excuse them on the plea that such excesses were directed against individuals for other than religious reasons. The Bohemians have been agitated not by religious principles, but by their national hate against the Jews, because the Jews rather affiliate with the German element. Rev. Dr. M. Elkin, recently from Liverpool, was last week installed as minister of the Jewish Congregation House of Israel, at their synagogue in Crown street, below Vine, Philadelphia. Dr. Elkin fills a vacancy caused by the death of Rev. Gabriel Pape, who had been minister of this congregation for over thirty years. Rev. Mr. Wright, of Boston, thinks that Sabbath-breaking is fostered by the fact that Saturday is pay-day. Workmen are generally "flush" on Sunday, and, having plenty of leisure, are tempted to dissipation. This hint certainly deserves attention. Professor Charles L. Balch, formerly an Episcopal, but afterwards a Universalist clergyman, died in this city last Monday. There are said to be 2,000 converted Jews in London and about the same number in Berlin. In the University of the latter city there were, three years ago, twenty-eight Jews who had become Christians. It is estimated that there are 20,000 of these converts in Europe. The degree of D. D. has been conferred by the West Virginia College on the Rev. W. W. Belden, of Bristol, Mass. The congregation of Hollanders at Sayville, L. I., have just had their second pastor, Rev. G. Van Emmerick, installed over their infant church. The Broadway Tabernacle is expected to be ready for public worship again about the middle of October. It has not been decided yet where services will be held in the meanwhile. Rev. Dr. Taylor, pastor, has been spending part of the Summer at Lake George and the White Mountains, preaching on Sundays with his usual force and earnestness. Dr. Cather addressed the Irish Wesleyan Conference at its recent sessions in July. He has determined to merge the "Systematic Beneficence Society of the Church Moral Science Association" into the Instructional Christian League. The Rev. Clement C. Dickey, has resigned his pastoral charge in the city of Brooklyn, to accept a professorship in Lincoln University. Rev. C. F. P. Bancroft, late of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., after supplying the Congregational church in Amherst, N. H., during July and August, intends sailing with his family for Germany September 7, for a year or two of travel and study. Rev. George T. Ladd is the successor of Rev. W. D. Love, D. D., in the pastorate of the Spring street Congregational church, Milwaukee. Professor Franklin W. Fisk, of the Theological Seminary of Chicago, who has been spending a year abroad, arrived here last week.

THE CASE OF MR. DUNGEE.

Mr. Thomas H. Dungee, the Franklin street merchant who made such a desperate attempt on his life on Friday afternoon at his boarding house, 39 West Washington square, and elsewhere, as heretofore published in the HERALD, died in Bellevue Hospital about three o'clock yesterday morning. After his admission to the hospital, Mr. Dungee, who was a large man, weighing nearly two hundred and thirty pounds, watching his opportunity leaped from a third story window to the ground, a distance of forty feet, thus fracturing both legs, and receiving severe internal injuries. Yesterday afternoon Deputy Coroner Cushman, being notified of Mr. Dungee's death, permitted his friends to remove the remains to the late residence of deceased, and Coroner Schirmer will hold an inquest. Mr. Dungee was a single man, forty years of age and a native of England.

A CASE OF MATRICIDE.

Mrs. Margaret Dykes, late of 443 West Twenty-eighth street, who two weeks or more ago was terribly beaten with a club in the hands of her son, Joseph Dykes, died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital, as alleged, from the effects of the injuries received. Dr. Joseph Cushman, Deputy Coroner, will make a post-mortem examination on the body, and on Tuesday next Coroner Schirmer will give the matter a thorough investigation. In the meantime the brutal son remains in custody awaiting the result.

ALLEGED CRUELTY TO SAILORS.

Another of those cases which are of such frequent occurrence came up yesterday in the United States Court. John T. Arnold, captain of the ship John M. Byrnes, was charged with having, while on a voyage from Galveston and the West Indies to New York, cruelly treated several of his crew, and also with having put them in irons, so that they could not make their complaint to the American Consul at Matanzas. He was held in $1,000 bail for examination on Monday by Commissioner Osborn.

A SMOKING CONCLAVE.

Arguments of the Village Throng—"Doan't Turn the Good Old Horse Away"—The Quakers of Quaker Street Declare Themselves for Grant—The Old Men for Greeley—The Young Men Against Him.

The Pastoral of the Petty Politicians—Its End Not Yet.

TOAD HOLLOW, August 22, 1872.

Unknown to any annals of fame, honored with an unexampled title, which calls up images of bog-ponds overshadowed by willow branches, and wherein the sonorous bullfrog nightly carols with hoarse trails and trills to his love, and where the tree toad gives shriller melody to the same worthy purpose, this is indeed a very pleasant valley. It lies between broad, sombre-wooded hills in the western part of Schenectady and in the eastern part of Schoharie county. The land is not highly cultivated, but the soil is strong, as is evidenced by the general dark shade of the landscape, and gives generous rewards to the toil of the husbandman. Here are houses nestling in among the fields and woodlands which lack beauty but look comfortable, and have done well as the shelter of the succeeding occupants for many generations, wherein the seeker after knowledge of public opinion must go to be truly well-informed rather than to the semi-rustic towns and cities along the highways of travel. Among these rough, rock-ribbed hills the ordinary hamlet contains but two centres of interest—the inn and the country store. The popularity of the latter is more general than that of the former, as the majority of the farmers here are temperance men, who abhor "dram shops."

THE COUNTRY STORE

of the chief village of this neighborhood, on Quaker street, is worthy of a pen picture. It is an ancient structure, weather beaten and unique; in front a broad stoop and two small show windows. The interior is darkened and stained from floor to ceiling with tobacco smoke and spittle. Shelves are filled with bright rows of dry goods, spice boxes, knick-knacks, hats, shoes, boots, crockery, jackknives, chewing gum, slate pencils, school books and all manner of "flummery-diddlery." Scythes, hoes, shovels, barrels of flour and fish and various other things block the way. In front of the counters is a small space. It is occupied by a dozen strong, leather-upholstered chairs. Keeled up in these against the counters, at an angle of less than forty-five degrees, congregate at eventide such of the latter as have reached the age at which swearing and tobacco smoking become signs of manhood.

THE RUSTIC FATHERS AND SONS,

The innocent HERALD correspondent was in a strange sphere when he entered this realm of moral argument and suffocating clouds of smoke. The stoop was occupied by a throng of men, all of them coatless. In the middle of the road or street a game of croquet was in progress. The players were not, as is usual in the metropolis, composed of ladies and gentlemen, but altogether of the latter, who seem to monopolize the amusement here. The sides ranged against each other were known respectively as "the Greeley" and "the Grant" party, and mimic exultation followed the victory of either among those of the spectators who were of the political stripe which the victors represented. Ladies passing through the street cast amused glances at the contests, but never participate, having apparently resigned it entirely to their serious-minded lords. A farm wagon will drive into the village with one or two fresh arrivals, perhaps, at sundown; a new company takes possession of the field and the battle is renewed. Thus pass the slow hours; thus being symbolized, while the political topics of the day are vociferously discussed by the idlers.

THE GENTLE GAME OF POLITICAL CROQUET

One of the most demagogic (sic) men of this region, of small consideration publicly, but of much to himself, and wont to affect prominence in the politics of the county, town and village, is Mr. Addison Wilbur, at present truly entitled to be called Esquire, being Justice of the Peace. His little history has been that of a radical democrat from his earliest meddling with ambition, and at the beginning of this campaign he was with appropriateness numbered among the "Bourbons." But alas! how hath his firmness faltered! His intense love for popularity and safety of position quickly showed him the way that his party was treading and the way that the majority of the rural districts would go. So he came forth from his intellectual seclusion, and right valiantly did swear by the white-haired Sage of Chappaqua, whom hitherto he had sworn at. He proved an apostate to his former oaths, but had a host for company, and in his small village was popular with the crowd. This crowd, however, is leavened so much by contrary-opinionated individuals, both democratic and republican, that the scenes of discussion, where it assembles, are scenes of very hot strife of the tongue. Squire Wilbur, Alonzo Macomber, ex-State Senator Edwin Wilbur, a wealthy politician, who was once a power in the County Republican Committee; Ebenezer Wright, the Postmaster, whose fair daughter acts as his deputy; Dr. John Hill and other "smaller fry" engage on adverse sides in which one might suppose, if he listened to it, was to determine the fate of half a dozen nations at once.

Sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain, never saw more earnest controversy under her wide-spreading yew trees, where the pedantic pedagogue ruled by his eloquence. Nowadays the schoolmaster remains as modestly as any one in the background, and the moneyed men hold the golden thread of discourse.

It was a sunny Saturday, late in the afternoon, when I went to the village and approached the "store." I was stared at by all the inhabitants. After awhile I managed to form some acquaintance with one of the bystanders. Seated in the middle of a circle of bronzed faces of old and rough-mannered farmers was Mr. Edwin Wilbur, the political prognosticator and sage of "these parts." The whole circle were listening intently while he was reading aloud in the distinctest tones delivered a month ago, in opposition to the administration. Running comments upon its most striking points issued from the lips of both the reader and his listeners, and cutting remarks were "sandwiched in" by the belligerents in argument wherever there was opportunity. As the afternoon verged into twilight the crowd of loungers was greatly increased and the debates raged more hotly and without ceasing.

Mr. Edwin Wilbur knows perfectly the temper and prejudices of this section. He was one of the strongest republicans for a good many years prior to the liberal movement. Only a week or two ago he changed his allegiance; and when I was talking with a stout, old-fashioned democrat to-day he remarked in regard to him that he could give no good reasons for the change. It is stated, however, that he was snubbed by the Republican Committee of the county, and in consequence became indignant. They ceased a while ago to give him notification of their meetings, probably upon learning that he was wavering in his political opinions.

CUSTOM HOUSE WIRE-PULLING.

He claims that the affairs of the republican party in this county are sought to be controlled entirely by the office-holders, supplied with money from the Custom House Department. He said to me that he knew that the regular nominations were made by officials from the New York Custom House. His tone is not bitter, but he seems rather piqued. The wires are pulled here in the smallest town or district election as vigorously as they are in the metropolis.

"Mr. Wilbur," said one of the smoking and besmoked throng the other evening, at the "store," "I heerd tell on as you had gone over to the rebels. Don't you think that Grant is as good a man for President as he was four years ago? I don't see enough agin' him, for my part, to 'casion much talk."

VICTORY NO MORE TO THE WISE THAN THE SWIFT.

"No, he is not as good," answered Mr. Wilbur; "at least not as honest and trustworthy. I tell you, Jacob, his elevation to the Presidency was something that could not be helped by the leaders of the republican party, if they would. His glories won in the war got for him a storm of enthusiastic devotion that lifted him high above the heads of wiser, abler, if not truer, men. They knew it, but in this emergency could not guide the people. Such, I believe, were Charles Sumner and Chief Justice Chase."

"But why did you support him, then, Ed?"

"Had to, or leave the party that won in the great battle for national existence."

"But, Edwin," said an old man, with a wrinkled face and a white crown of age adorning his bent brows, "you have now left that party, and I should like to know why Horace Greeley can be better for us than General Grant. It doan't seem to me," speaking slowly, and with lips puckered up with an air of precision and solemnity, "but what the old horse's good as the new, or better, if he has rode well so fur. He haint kicked nor cut up much to speak on, more'n any nag would as felt kinder proud of the estimation placed upon him by so many folks, has he?"

A general laugh greeted this original simile.

UNCLE SAM'S SKITTISH HORSE.

"You just read the speech of Charles Sumner over again, Uncle Jim," answered Ed; "and, my word for it, you will find some reasons there for supposing that the 'old horse,' as you call him, has some very skittish qualities—among them that of administering striking rebuffs to his masters, the people, who keep him in his magnificent stable, the White House. He has been known to bite his best friends; but, strange to say, he has never thrown certain small boys who have attempted to ride him. The supposition supported by observation is that they pacified his stubborn temper by plentiful handfuls of oats and barley. He likes negro grooms the best, and these he tyrannizes over. He has run his master into a good many mud-puddles in the perversity of his horsey pride; and I think every sensible man should advise Uncle Sam to get a new steed for his buggy. What do you say, Jot?"

"Wal," said the individual addressed, "I doan't know as he's so dangerous an animal as you say. 'Pears to me that he's driven very well and minded the bit fust rate for these last four years, an' I doan't believe in turnin' off an old crittur who has seen good sarvice into the highway to be abused. Keep him in sarvice an' use him well."

"Well, well, this is begging the question and is foolish kind of talk. For my part, I cannot see how any man who has common sense can vote for the re-election of General Grant. He represents only what should be dead and buried—the vengeance of the people against dead and buried treason. His military character and disposition galls the South every hour of his rule, and should make it plain to you that he is not the magistrate whose policy will ever conciliate and recement between the two sections. See how steadily he has snubbed those gentlemen who were disposed to return the rights of the civilian to the Southerners, through the Civil Rights bill. What enmity he has shown to the Union generals who during or after the war chanced inadvertently or otherwise to cross the path of his ambition history will show. And how he has taken gifts and practised nepotism every American of whatever persuasion knows in his heart with an involuntary sense of shame. These last charges, however, I acknowledge to be comparatively trivial. What we most object to are

GRANT'S JOBS."

"That's so; that's so, Ed. If there's any jobs here let's have them out in the daylight, so that we may know it?"

"Well," said Ed, turning around excitedly, "I would like to know of the man who really believes that there are not. There are 'jobs' in every part of the national government to-day blacker than any of those of Tammany."

"How do you know this?"

"How do I know it? By reading the public prints" (pointing to Sumner's much-read speech).

"Well, if you take Sumner for gospel you must be lost, indeed, and there is no hope for you. I take his famous speech to be one of the most unmanly and undignified attacks that was ever made upon a public person. Why, he treats Grant no better than if he were the very lowest cur—the most contemptible scoundrel and coarse-bred mongrel. This is unjust to him and to the millions who believe in him, and, I think, has done more in his aid than any other event of the campaign. This bitter injustice only excites a sort of heroic indignation which will surely replace him in the magisterial chair."

The last speaker was a young man, with a sharp, peremptory sort of voice, his face all covered with beard and bronzed by toil in the fields. What he said was rather excitedly emphasized, and he seemed to be listened to with that attention which would imply that he was a representative of the political opinions of the young farmers of this section. He acknowledged but thought that they were no more than almost every President had committed before him. He did not believe half of Sumner's nor of any one's accusations.

Isaac Gaige, a well-to-do Quaker, who has retired from agriculture to live quietly in this village, made a remark at this point. He seldom makes remarks when politics are talked of, but sits silently and listens continually, his thoughts being mirrored somewhat in the changing expression of his face.

"I do not see why we should believe Sumner more than we would any other political man. They are all a good deal alike."

THE "QUAKER VOTE."

He supplemented this with a sort of half apologetic chuckle, and rubbed his hands as if with the consciousness of having brilliantly discharged an onerous duty. He is a man who has never yet been seduced into voting the wrong way, speaking from a republican point of view. He is shrewd but silent. So are most of the Quakers hereabouts, where they are quite plentiful; yet most of them have already declared themselves most decidedly as republicans. They were the first to settle the country, and this small cluster of white houses perched on a table-land next the valley honored itself by assuming their name as part of its own. Of the leading Quakers of this place the Grant men are as follows:—Uncle James Sheldon, John Chadwick, Isaac Gaige, Samuel Quimby, Samuel J. Quimby, David Griffith and Ira Estes. The only active Greeley man among them is Nathaniel Meade, who has been a life-long democrat, and was during the war a copperhead. The political complexions of many others I have not yet discovered, but they used to be the most loyal of abolitionists. All but one of those mentioned are venerable men, possessing property and influence. This neighborhood was once one of the many termini of the "underground railroad," by which

THE NEGROES WERE HELPED TO ESCAPE FROM THE SOUTH.

Several of these gray-haired Quakers have given shelter, food and comfort to the fugitives on their way to Canada, and many stories are told of the days when the kidnappers and constables used to ransack the farm houses and barns in search of their human prey. In a spacious old mansion, once partially covered by thick ivy vines so as to be quite picturesque and beautiful, but now rather dilapidated and looking sadly desolate, there died two years ago one of the men who used often to show his friendship for those runaway slaves. He was a Friend, and was remarkable as a sort of oracle of the country side, whose multitudinous proverbs were in every one's mouth. Two sons remain, one of whom tills the old estate. Both of them are Grant men.

Another Quaker, who is familiarly known in all this region as

"UNCLE BILLY,"

because, perhaps, of his patriarchal character, resides two miles from the village. He very seldom votes, and so cannot be said to support any one. He has, however, a certain mythical reverence for Greeley which he himself cannot explain. The feeling of brotherhood mentioned in my former letter is the secret of this strange allegiance. Greeley and he were born about the same time, and while Greeley was plodding through the woods of New York and Pennsylvania, from printing office to printing office, in search of fortune, he was clearing from the land which now composes his fine farm the primeval growth of forest. He leased it from the old patroon, Van Rensselaer, whose grant from the King covered such a wide extent of magnificent country. The soil is now his own, however, or his son's, as is also that for which he at first paid rent to old Jimmie Duane, who owned the whole town of Duanesburg and whose now decayed and empty mansion, built in pretentious style for its day, still overlooks the wide valley. The village of Duanesburg lies at the foot of the hill upon which it is situated, and is quite a pretty place. Here is the owner of the country store, and is the principal and richest resident. He was born in Ireland. Fifty or sixty years ago he came to America, and was buffeted about roughly by the billows of fortune until he secured a foothold in this part of the country. He now owns most of the land that was left by Kate Duane, the latest heir of the name, and may probably be worth more than a million of dollars. All of this wealth has been accumulated penny by penny, and old and rich as he is he still watches every scrap or bit of money that goes in and out of his coffers, sitting in his store from sunrise to sunset, in an old-fashioned leather-bottom chair. He is anything but liberal with his purse, and a proverb about him says that "he begins his giving on Monday morning—the man who comes first being first served—that is, getting all that he will give away, which is—nothing." He is a stanch supporter of General Grant. Squire Case, the Postmaster of the village, is also "on the same side of the fence," as a matter of course.

"OLD JIMMY O'NEIL"

THE YOUNG MEN FOR GRANT.

With a few such exceptions as these, where the men are wealthy or are office-holders, I find that almost all of the old men in the rural districts are in favor of Greeley, while the young men are in the majority for Grant. Of two farm laborers whom I interviewed, one of them, who had worked for wages all his life until he was gray and bent, pronounced for Greeley, with a quiet exhibition of faith, and the other for Grant, with sarcastic allusions to the humorous points of Greeley's character. He seemed to abhor siding with the ridiculous.

Many petty village politicians complain that the county republican politics are controlled by caucuses which might well be denominated "rings," engineered by metropolitan wire pullers. If this is the case throughout the State the Grant party must certainly be well organized.

Great excitement is produced here by the fact that General Grant will be at Saratoga Springs to-day, and a special train which was run there by the new railroad was crowded by rustic sightseers. This eager desire among the farmers to see the hero of Appomattox is somewhat surprising to me and increases my doubt of Greeley's real strength in the State.

COUP DE SOLEIL.

Twenty Cases of Sunstroke in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, August 24, 1872.

Over twenty cases of sunstroke have occurred here within the past three days, the majority of which were fatal. The weather has been excessively hot during the past week, the mercury ranging from 95 to 100 degrees in the shade in the middle of the day.

GREELEY IN THE WOODS.

The Picnic of Typographical Union No. 6—The Sage of Chappaqua on the Labor Question—What He Knows About Wages and the Eight Hour Movement.

The fifth annual picnic of Typographical Union No. 6 was held yesterday afternoon and evening at Jones' Wood. The attendance was very large and of a highly respectable character, the appearance of the printers with their wives and sweethearts reflecting honor on the craft. Dancing commenced at three o'clock in the afternoon and continued until six, when a recess was taken for supper. The affair of the evening was the expected arrival of Mr. Greeley, who had promised to a committee that had waited upon him to be on the ground punctually at eight o'clock. A display of fireworks which was to have taken place at seven was delayed until his arrival, and the dancing was also suspended.

At twenty minutes past eight o'clock Mr. Greeley arrived upon the ground and was greeted with hearty cheering. A balloon was sent up and the band with vim played the popular melodies, "Up in a Balloon" and "See, the Conquering Hero Comes." Mr. Greeley was escorted to the ballroom by the members of the Reception Committee, and on ascending the platform was greeted with another round of applause, mingled with a few hisses. The Sage was attired in a black alpaca coat, black pants and white vest, and in his hand he carried the traditional white hat. He took his seat among the musicians, who were now playing "Hail to the Chief," and looked around upon the assembled crowd with the expression of the very picture of good nature and benevolence. At the close of the uproar the President of the Union said it gave him great pleasure to introduce to the audience one, who, if he was not the best printer, was, at least, the best known printer in the country, Horace Greeley.

MR. GREELEY'S SPEECH.

Mr. Greeley, in rising to respond, was received with cheering. As he was commencing to speak a voice called for "Three cheers for General Grant," which was put down with tremendous hisses, groans and cheers for the Sage of Chappaqua. After alluding in complimentary terms to the honor conferred upon him by the invitation to attend, Mr. Greeley proceeded thus:—We are not the oldest craft in the world—ten or twelve others went before; but we have a higher honor than that of antiquity, under an intellectual body. A printer, from the very nature of his calling, should be able to explain and intelligently elucidate the great questions and problems of the day, in which the labor question stands conspicuous. The matter of wages is receiving considerable attention, and it should be gradually, calmly and coolly brought to a satisfactory close, receiving the attention which experience, study and observation alone can give. The abolition of slavery was only the beginning of the solution of this great problem, and much yet remains to be done. This is also the matter of the hours of labor. This, in my opinion, has been presented at an unfortunate time and without due consideration; but I have no doubt in the end everything that is just will be achieved. (Cheers, and a voice, "You did not talk that way in 1864.") There are other great questions of the time upon which you will be called upon to pronounce, and I have no doubt your intelligent judgment will be productive of some good. I will not detain you with any further observation. Mr. Greeley resumed his seat amid loud cheering.

The Sage was then escorted to the committee room, where he engaged in conversation with several gentlemen. Mark Twain's name having been mentioned, a gentleman remarked he thought him a great wit and asked Mr. Greeley's opinion, who said:—"Well, I can't appreciate wit stretched out to three or four hundred pages; wit should be like a flash, but when a man attempts to sustain it all through a large book he generally fails. There are some quaint conceits in 'Innocents Abroad,' but I think Brown is the best of that class of writers." After some further conversation Mr. Greeley entered his carriage and drove off amid cheers.

After his departure the dancing was recommenced, the fun grew fast and furious, and it was not until twelve o'clock that the festivities were brought to an end, and the most successful picnic yet held by Union No. 6 terminated.

THE POLITICAL HEADQUARTERS.

There was an unusual dearth of business at all the political headquarters yesterday. At the Liberal Republican Headquarters at the Glenham there was a more cheerful aspect, though there was no more business transacted than usual. Among the notable visitors were Colonel James Cavanaugh, of Montana, and General McMahon. Among the visitors at the Spingler House Democratic Headquarters were Senator Casserly, General Neil, and Senator Moore, of Alabama. There was positively nothing of the remotest interest going on at the Fifth Avenue Grant Headquarters. Mr. Chandler, the cheerful chief of that establishment, is still absent from the city.

CHARLES E. LOEW'S FIRST CARD.

The residents of the Eleventh and Seventeenth Wards last evening carried out their well-concerted plan to nominate Charles E. Loew for Mayor. There was erected, corner of Seventh street and avenue C, a stand, from which ex-Alderman Henry C. Waltman, ex-Coroner Grover and Thomas D. English addressed a congregation of fully two thousand men, women and children. After the speeches the banner was thrown to the breeze, and the spectators retired to their houses. Mr. Woltman, who in the last election ran against Dr. Weismann for Senator and was defeated, entertained the party at his elegant residence, 96 avenue C.

PROSPECT PARK.

How the Fourteenth Saturday Concert of the Season Passed Off.

The delightful weather of yesterday had the effect of attracting to Prospect Park thousands of people. The Park, ever worthy of a visit, has this summer added to its attractions by giving concerts every Saturday afternoon. Yesterday was the fourteenth regular musical treat accorded the Brooklyn public at their beautiful pleasure ground, and a thorough appreciation of the event was manifested by the select attendance. The programme, which consisted of admirable selections, was creditably gone through by the Twenty-third regiment Band. The music stand, which is only a temporary arrangement, is located in the woods adjoining Nethermead Concourse. Hundreds of settees were arranged beneath the shade of the trees, and afforded comfortable resting places for the lovers of music. The latter, however, in many instances, showed that they were not averse to the promenade, even at the risk of straying beyond the range of the "soul-stirring strains" which enlivened the grove, and seeking acquaintances among the moving multitude about the lake or along the glen. It happened, of course, in the usual way, that many agreeable salutations were exchanged between the belles and beaux and charming little conversations were enjoyed by the young people, which gave greater zest to the enjoyment of the closing summer hours of the Park concerts. The oldsters, too, radiated in all directions from the music stand, yet the audience never once appeared to diminish in its proportions during the two hours' performance, from four to six o'clock. Croquet parties kept the balls and the mallets agitated on the Common, and children, bright-eyed, light-hearted and guileless, gambolled on all sides. The row boats on the lake did a thriving business the entire afternoon and evening. The Shelter Cottage, an admirable restaurant immediately opposite the point selected on the lake for the construction of the permanent music stand which is to grace the Park next year, was well patronized. The Dairy, on the route from the plaza entrance, at the head of the glen, was also thronged by milk bibbers. Taken as a whole the scene at the Brooklyn Park yesterday afternoon was such as could not fail to gladden the heart of even the casual observer, and "drive dull care away." With regard to the facilities of travel on the routes conveying to the Park much fault is to be found, because of the stupidity or indifference of the horse railroad companies, in not providing proper accommodation for the people, and each and every car over the Coney Island and Smith street and the Flatbush avenue lines, between the hours of three and seven o'clock, was crowded to excess, being literally packed. There is no excuse for such niggardliness on the part of these railroad companies, and it should not be tolerated longer.

CRICKETING IN CANADA.

The Match Between the Montreal Club and the English Eleven.

TORONTO, Ontario, August 24, 1872.

The second innings of the English Eleven against the Montreal Cricket Club was played to-day. The Montrealers went in, making only 67, which, with their score of 48 yesterday, leaves them, with two innings, 140 behind the English Eleven score in the first inning of 255.

CONFLAGRATION IN CANADA.

The Business Portion of the Town of Mitchell Destroyed—$100,000 Worth of Property Destroyed.

MITCHELL, Ontario, August 24, 1872.

The principal part of the business portion of this town was burned this morning, including the Post office, telegraph office and several stores. The loss is $100,000; insurance $15,000.

STATE AND CITY POLITICS.

A REVIEW OF THE POLITICAL FIELD.

The Utica and Syracuse State Tickets Contrasted.

The Democratic-Greeley-Republican State Nominations.

THE CITY AND COUNTY ELECTIONS

The Mayoralty and the Candidates—Ex-Sheriff James O'Brien and Ex-Sheriff John Kelly.

The Court Vacancies—The Congressional and Legislative Contests.

The Liberal Republican and Anti-Grant Democratic Convention, to be held in Syracuse on Wednesday, the 4th of September next, will, in a great measure, bring the rival political parties of this city and State into a hand-to-hand election conflict. The Grant republicans threw down the gauntlet to their opponents at Utica a few days since. That gage of battle will be brought to Syracuse and a cartel of defiance drawn up and a plan of hostilities decided upon, and upon which the fate of either party must depend to the close. The cities selected by both parties for the inauguration of the conflict bear historic names, and are suggestive of struggles which involved the fate of dynasties and kingdoms. The Utica ticket is before the people, and all its strength and weakness are known to the other side. The initiative in all conflicts must always be taken by one party or the other, and the first move upon the enemy's works, as, by association, it should be so, was taken by the Grantite republicans, and upon the line they have assumed they are bound to fight it out to the end. In political contests there is some advantage to a party knowing its opponent's hand, as, in this case, the Convention to be held at Syracuse has the Utica ticket before them; and if they can place man for man upon their ticket nominees more acceptable to the people they may gain the day in this State, independent of the principle involved in the Presidential contest. The unanimity with which the first name on the ticket was hailed and accepted at Utica is hardly a criterion of its acceptability to the whole party in the State, of which the nominee virtually becomes the standard bearer. No other ever held in this city or State presents the anomaly that is found in this, for even the Presidential complications are intensified by the disintegration into which the great democratic party of the city has fallen. There are now three democratic organizations, each exercising a certain political influence independent of and at variance with the other. This, in itself, would not be of so much political significance, for the party has been similarly divided more than once before; but, as democrats, they never drifted into foreign entanglements or lost their political identity in giving away their votes to republicans at an election in return for republican votes to sustain the candidates of one wing of the party. In the same way the republican party is divided—one set, the liberal republicans, combining with the Tammany democrats to elect a democratic State ticket, in return for democratic votes for a liberal republican for the Presidency. It is an unprecedented state of affairs political, and will, no doubt, lead to a fierce conflict between the party leaders before the issue is decided.

POLITICAL CONTEST

THE DEMOCRATIC-REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

The Convention to be held at Syracuse will have no difficulty in securing a competent standard bearer to head their ticket. There are more than six Richmonds in the field, one of whom, however, can only, and perhaps does not ask for more, have a complimentary vote in his favor. The strength of the State ticket will, no doubt, determine the vote of the State for the Presidency, and now that the liberal republicans have locked shields with the Tammany democrats on that issue none but the most unobjectionable men from a political standpoint will be selected for the ticket.

GOVERNOR HOFFMAN

has retired from the field, though for a time he contemplated, like General Grant, to run again, just merely to try his popularity and to ascertain if the great bulk of the people believed the charges brought against him by some in connection with his alleged cognizance of the Court House frauds while he was Mayor of the city. He has thought better of it, however. In fact, he could not get the nomination. Even for the sake of getting Greeley the liberal republicans would not put up with him. He found his Sedan in the Orange demonstration of the 12th July, 1871, just as one of his predecessors found his Waterloo in addressing the draft rioters on the 14th July, 1863.

EX-GOVERNOR SEYMOUR

was for a considerable time seriously canvassed, but for somewhat similar and, perhaps, stronger reasons than those which militated against Hoffman he, too, was thrown overboard. A new man must be found—a man as equally earnest and indefatigable in lending his efforts towards the suppression of the rebellion at home as was General Dix, the nominee of the radical republican party, on the field. But as the Convention has yet to make its choice from among those who aspire to head the ticket, and as the electors may desire to know who are these prominent men, one of whom from the 4th proximo will head the ticket, it is but proper that they should be here enumerated. They are as follows:—Augustus Schell, of this city; Francis Kiernan, of Oneida county; Lieutenant Governor Beach, of Jefferson county; ex-Secretary of State Homer A. Nelson, of Dutchess; Judge A. J. Parker, of Albany; Clarkson A. Potter, of Westchester and Henry C. Murphy, of Kings county. The first choice of the leaders would have been Chief Justice Sandford E. Church, but he positively withholds himself from all mention on the matter. The nomination of General Dix by their opponents has given them the cue to guide them to their own selection of a man who will meet the very requirements demanded by the other side of their standard bearer and thus enable him to fight him with his own weapons. They have found their man in the person of

AUGUSTUS SCHELL.

At all events his name will be presented to the Convention, and his nomination will be pressed—in fact, on considerations, if not in so many words as those which secured Dix's nomination at Utica. The question of the ticket was fully discussed in all its possible bearings at Saratoga by the leaders of the party, and for a time it appeared that Lieutenant Governor Beach would have been the man. It was never thought that it was the moneyed interests that was to control the election in the State, and there was not one of the proposed candidates that, under the old political régime, could not have been worthily placed on the head of the ticket, as the standard-bearer of the party. But the turning of the political tide at Utica has shown them the necessity of changing their course, if they desire to be anywhere in the race. All the candidates above named, save one, were for the present counted out and the contingent choice of the leaders fell upon the chief Sachem of reformed Tammany, whose high position in the commercial and monetary world is deemed an offset to those qualifications of a similar character which secured the Dix nomination. This is no doubt a shrewd move, in view of the motives which actuated the other side in their choice of a candidate, and may, as a precedent in the future, be the means of breaking up political rings who would claim for themselves the pre-emptors' right to install in the highest office of the State one of their own favorites, without regard to the interests of the people or their rights of suffrage. Should Mr. Schell receive the nomination of the Syracuse Convention the veteran standard bearers of the party may well survey the coming conflict, in which they are to take so active and prominent a part—

AUGUSTUS SCHELL,

With that stern joy which warriors feel
In foemen worthy of their steel.

It were idle to discuss now the chance or the chances of the other candidates. If the leaders and state makers of the party have concluded that the strong position taken by the other side can only be successfully assailed by Mr. Schell, they must take him as their standard bearer in the campaign and at Syracuse, as at Utica, after complimentary votes, and, perhaps, a few ballots for the several other candidates, nominate Mr. Schell by acclamation. There is another financial or moneyed candidate in the field in the person of a representative of the house of Brown Brothers & Co., bankers, with extensive commercial and financial influence, and who possesses unquestioned qualifications in the direction in which the qualifications for Governor seem to take at this time. But as his principal backer is poor little Sammy Tilden, the marplot of the first reform movement in the Legislature, when the angel of destruction was hovering over the Assembly, Mr. Potter can have but little chance of success with either city or country delegations. The hay-loft and cheese-press democracy would not touch anything recommended by Sammy with the longest possible hay-fork, and Mr. Potter, when he comes to understand this, will probably exclaim, "Save me from my friends!"

CLARKSON N. POTTER,

GENERAL HENRY W. SLOCUM

has a host of friends, both within and without party organizations, who would be glad to see him at the head of the State ticket. As an ex-general, as Dix is, he would, perhaps, have a greater claim upon the soldiers' votes, if that was an element entering into a State or city election, than the republican standard bearer. Indeed, his strong claims upon the party and his general popularity drew early to him the attention of the leaders; but, like the claims of the other influential parties referred to, it was deemed that they should be held subordinate to the hoped-for success of the ticket under a more prominent and better known political leader.

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP.

The two most prominently spoken of candidates at present for Lieutenant Governor are Thomas G. Alvord, of Oswego, candidate for Speaker in the last Legislature. A strong opposition was found to him in the fact that it was not deemed advisable to fasten upon the ticket any of the responsibilities attaching to the members of a previous Legislature.

The other candidate spoken of is De Witt Littlejohn, of Onondago, ex-Speaker of the Assembly for a couple of terms, a man eminently qualified for the office from his great experience as an executive and administrative officer.

THE MAYORALTY.

There will be a fierce internecine war over the Mayoralty prize. This, in fact, exercises the minds of the local politicians to the exclusion of the other more important questions at issue. As was before stated in these columns, on local issues the democratic party is wofully divided. On the one hand the still powerful Tammany party have endorsed the anti-administration ticket, and for the support they proffer to the Greeley republicans on the national issue they have bargained for a quid pro quo on their votes for the

NOMINEES OF TAMMANY

on the democratic State and county tickets. This is a pretty strong team and promises to give the regular republicans and their allies of the Apollo Hall democratic stripe hard work to pull through on the day of election. Of course it is not admitted that there is such an alliance, and ostensibly there is not. But the effort to pull the political wool over the eyes of the democracy enshrined in the Temple of Apollo, of which Senator O'Brien is high priest, is unavailing, and when they go the administration ticket they do it with their eyes open. The Apollo Hall organization, or rather its leader, has but one ambition to gratify—that is, to secure the Mayoralty. To attain this all party principles must be sacrificed. The Grant republican County Convention will put a dummy in the field for Mayor to cover their tracks in voting for Senator O'Brien, should the prospect nearer the goal be favorable to the success of the ruse. There will be no organized machinery apparent, but in the different polling districts of the city the Custom House officials and their party friends will go the O'Brien ticket, on an understanding had with the powers that be.

SENATOR O'BRIEN

has great individual strength among the masses of voters in the city, both of Irish and German birth, but his quondam friends of the reform stripe, and leading members of the Apollo Hall organization are, and were from the start, opposed to his putting himself forward as candidate for the Mayoralty under the auspices of that body. Since the split there some weeks ago many influential members have seceded from Apollo Hall, and without any declaration of their intentions, and, untrammelled by party, will vote as suits their view of the situation. In the conflict of parties, and without, as always heretofore, a rallying central power to direct affairs, the probabilities would be in favor of O'Brien's election, but that one other man is confidentially spoken of as the nominee of Tammany. This is

EX-SHERIFF JOHN KELLY,

who would certainly draw such strength from Senator O'Brien as would leave him in a hopeless minority. Should Mr. Kelly accept the Tammany nomination there is no other man from the democratic ranks round whom the Greeley republicans would more gladly rally. The Brennan influence would be all for him, and there are other great elements of strength associated with him that would attract the Irish democratic votes and make him irresistible in the contest. Here lies the danger to O'Brien. That and his conflict with Tammany and his supposed alliance with the Grant-Murphy republicans must insure his defeat. Charles Loew was spoken of as the candidate of Tammany, but it was feared O'Brien would be too much for him, and hence the desire to get Mr. Kelly to enter the lists. No doubt if a straight-out national democratic ticket be nominated at Louisville, with at its head, O'Brien stock would rise amazingly, and would secure him such popularity as the straight-out democratic candidate as would carry him into the City Hall as Chief Magistrate over all opposition, even despite the odium attaching to his supposed affiliation with the radical wing of the republicans.

CHARLES O'CONOR

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRACY,

the inception and bantling of the brothers Fernando and Ben Wood, is not likely to play a very important rôle in the campaign. From all appearances it was conceived in the sole interests of the brothers themselves, to give them an influence in city politics that might aid Fernando in getting again returned to Congress, the chances for which are all against him. After the Mayoralty there are several important at the coming election. There are two vacancies in the Supreme Court—consequent upon the resignation and removal of Judges Cardozo and Barnard. The vacancy in the former is temporarily filled by Judge Leonard, appointed by Governor Hoffman. It will be to fill this vacancy that an election will be held. The vacancy occasioned by the removal of Judge Barnard will not be filled by the people by election, but will be filled by appointment. The constitution on this point provides that the resignation or removal of a Judge must occur three months prior to a general election to leave it at the disposal of the people. So there is but one Supreme Court Judge to be elected and one to be made by appointment. There are a good many candidates in the field, but more are to come that have not yet either declared themselves or been spoken of. The Grant republicans, it is said, will nominate a full ticket throughout, and should this prove so there will be a lovely time of it from the meetings of the county conventions to nominate candidates for these vacant offices to the close of the election. The candidates already in the field are as follows:—

OFFICES TO BE FILLED

FOR THE SUPREME COURT.

The present incumbent ad interim, Judge Leonard, will be a candidate for election. He is, or was, the law partner of Governor Hoffman, to which circumstance he was indebted for his appointment. He was formerly a Judge of the Superior Court, but on presenting himself for re-election he was badly beaten. He never was a favorite with the bar while previously on the bench, and though he has been all courtesy and urbanity during his present ad interim incumbency the old feeling of dislike prevails, and his chances of election are very slim indeed.

ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN,

the popular and indefatigable Assistant District Attorney, is a candidate for the vacancy, with most encouraging prospects of success. He is now working like a beaver for the triumph of the Greeley ticket under the auspices of Tammany. Mr. Sullivan is very gentlemanly in appearance and polished in manner; is a sound and well-read lawyer, and would well become and ably discharge the duties of the bench.

ABRAHAM R. LAWRENCE, JR.,

is also a candidate for the office. Though a young man, he is considered one of the best-read lawyers in the city on the statute laws of the State and thoroughly conversant with the laws framed from time to time for our municipal government. His friends entertain great hopes of his success.

WHEELER H. PECKHAM

is another Richmond in the field for the Supreme Court Judgeship, and will probably receive the support and influence of whatever is left of the old Committee of Seventy. Mr. J. J. Marvin is another aspirant for the office. Mr. Marvin is an able lawyer, in good practice, and would bring considerable experience to the discharge of the duties of the office.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

is also a tempting bait, and, of course, there are many hankering after it. Upon the death of Judge McCunn the vacancy was sought to be filled by the Governor in the person of ex-Judge James C. Spencer, formerly of the same Court, but the Senate did not confirm the appointment. It is likely that the Governor will again present Judge Spencer's name to the Senate in September next, which, if accepted, would give him the office till the end of the year. In the meantime the ex-Judge is a candidate for election. Judge Quinn, of the First Civil District Court, is also a candidate. He will be strongly supported by a portion of the Apollo Hall organization and by Tammany Hall and its republican allies. Before the people he would be a very strong candidate; but, no doubt, the Judge will be guided by the action of the nominating convention. More than one Judge of the Marine Court is spoken of in this connection, and a successful effort will, no doubt, be made to promote one or other of these experienced, faithful and capable Judges to the Superior Court vacancy.

THE CITY JUDGESHIP.

It is generally conceded that the present able and eminently qualified City Judge will be elected for another term. The golden opinions which Judge Bedford has won from all sorts of people, from the fearless discharge of his duties and the success which has crowned his efforts in the suppression of lawlessness through the punishments so speedily inflicted by him upon all offenders, have placed him in the happy position of having no opponent, at least none with any chance of success in an appeal to party or to people. His past record insures the present City Judge another term of usefulness to the public and of honor to himself.

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEYSHIP

is another high and perhaps the most important and responsible office coming vacant and within the gift of the people at the next election. The present able and conscientious incumbent, Judge Garvin, will be a candidate for re-election. His principal opponent will be Recorder James Smith.

THE CONGRESSIONAL TICKET.

There will be a severe contest over the Congressional nominations and elections. The candidates who have popularity and strength in the districts will not be inclined, as in elections past, to submit to the party lash and forego all appeal to the people because the leaders willed that they should stand aside. Nominations will not secure the office in all cases this time. There will be contests in several of the districts, but the plan of battle or the concerted movements of parties have not yet been developed. In there will certainly be a contest, and the erst redoubted chief of Mozart Hall will have to bestir himself and endeavor to make whatever league he can to give him strength through the new National Democratic Committee to beat back the tide upon which Oliver Charlick threatens to sweep the district from him. Fernando is in danger, and hence the old dodge of getting up a new party to enable him to make conditions. Charlick's supporters are sanguine that he will oust the old Representative, able and faithful as he was to the party and to his constituents, and that Charlick will reign in his stead.

FERNANDO WOOD'S DISTRICT

The whole of the city has been redistricted, so that no one of the members of Congress in this city would now know his old representation. Colonel Wm. Roberts' district has not been so much altered or encroached upon as some of the others, but if it were even so his great popularity would secure his return to his seat in Congress.

THE ASSEMBLY CONTEST

will be waged with the same vim as the Congressional. The spirit of insubordination to party dictation is abroad, and every man whose popularity is such as to give him confidence and who has the ambition or desire to run for the Assembly can put himself before the electors without the dread of being either counted out, chalked out or sold out. This altered state of affairs should surely secure an able, honest and efficient Legislature and tend to make the office of State legislator one of the great ambitions of our citizens.

THE JERSEY BOURBON DEMOCRACY.

Convention at Trenton—Election of Delegates to Louisville—Charles O'Conor the Choice of the Delegates, with Hancock for Vice President.

The Jersey straight-outs assembled in their might at Trenton yesterday. One hundred delegates were present. The Convention was called to order by C. Chauncey Burr, and S. J. Bayard was appointed Chairman.

Mr. BAYARD was quickly at his post, and he opened the proceedings by pouring hot shot into the Greeley camp. He said:—Such a large and respectable gathering of the democracy of New Jersey ought to be gratifying to every patriot. The meeting to-day is a homage to principle. The democrats of New Jersey are not all prepared to become Greeley republicans. They have not all bowed the knee to Baal. We still cling to the old altars and to the old faith. There is a grand host, not fully represented here to-day, who will be represented at Louisville, and they have some belief in principle. They are not prepared to follow republican leaders or march under a republican banner. They have faith in Jefferson, Madison and Jackson, but none in Horace Greeley. It gives me great pleasure to assure you that we have satisfactory information that all the States in the Union will be represented at Louisville, and that the democrats of the United States will there repudiate the bargain at Baltimore, where republicans entered into a compact for the re-election of General Grant. It is evident to all that the re-election of General Grant was to follow the nomination of Horace Greeley, and that Convention had that end in view. I read, last campaign, that Seymour could not be elected, and that his being put up was only to insure the election of General Grant. Horace Greeley will look pleased in November over his own defeat, and will then be able, with great glee, to tell what he knows about electing General Grant. At Louisville one object will be to try and escape that calamity. Every day it is beginning to be more plainly seen that the election of Horace Greeley is an impossibility. How, then, will hope rise when this fact penetrates the craniums of the community; how, then, when they find that Greeley cannot be elected and that there is hope for a democrat, will they turn their thoughts to Louisville? Mr. Greeley cannot furnish the republican aid that he bargained to do; therefore both parties should consider that there are no binding obligations. The elections of the 8th of October will demonstrate clearly that there is no show for this new alliance; for honest votes will arise and burst asunder the bonds wherewith they have attempted to bind the Samson of democracy, and O'Conor or Hancock may be nominated, or both of them.

In the afternoon session a fiery speech was delivered by Mr. Burr, in which he said that the democrats had gone to bed with Sumner, but he for one would have no such bedfellows.

Judge J. F. Flanders, of New York, also spoke, and said he would fight to the end against such a lasting disgrace as submission to the Baltimore Convention would involve.

The following delegates to Louisville were elected:—

First District—James Pierson, George Driver. Alternate—Rudolphus Bingham.

Second District—Whitely W. Meredith, Dr. J. S. Adams. Alternates—Joseph Norcross, John S. Cook.

Third District—Dr. John C. Thompson, Julius S. Martin. Alternates—George W. Peterson, Richard Serviss.

Fourth District—W. N. Thiff, Joshua Primmer. Alternates—Cyrus Hintsman, Rockhill Robeson.

Fifth District—James Brinkerhoff, Stephen Burdan.

Sixth District—J. W. Fowatt, Moses P. Smith. Alternates—Theodore Pierson, Louis J. Lyon.

Seventh District—A. E. Gregory, J. W. Bryce. Alternate—G. W. Cimberson.

Senatorial District—Samuel J. Bagard, C. C. Burr, William A. Benjamin and John Kennedy. Alternates—B. C. Potts, Abram S. Cobb, Philip Wentz.

The Committee on Resolutions reported a series, which was a regular platform. They are summarized as follows:—

First—The Convention at Baltimore having nominated an uncompromising and unrepentant radical, the action is invalid and void, and imposes no obligation which democrats are bound to respect.

The second approves of the recommendation of the democrats in Maryland Institute to hold another Convention at Louisville.

The third defines democratic principles as a strict construction of the constitution and opposed to the federal principles of latitudinarian construction and asserts that the nation has prospered under this principle.

The fourth says that they lift aloft the time-honored democratic banner, inscribed with the principles of Jefferson, Madison and Jackson, and invite all who believe in pure government, in wholesome laws, in the greatest good to the greatest number, in equal rights, in free and prosperous trade, in the elevation of the masses, in a speedy return to specie basis, in official responsibility to the people, in a pure and learned judiciary, in a frank and honest foreign policy, and all opposed to the rule of overshadowing corporations, to corruption in Congress and imbecility in the Executive, to an irredeemable paper currency, to packing the Supreme Court to serve executive purposes, &c., to rally again to do vigorous battle under the banner of the democracy, for the preservation of the Constitution and the unity, prosperity and peace of the country.

The fifth asserts that it is the bounden duty of Congress to exercise its power in the interest of the producing and consuming classes.

The sixth that we sympathize with the laboring classes in their labors to mitigate the hardships which high prices on all articles of living have imposed upon them.

The seventh speaks of the commanding talents, stern integrity and unblemished purity of character of Charles O'Conor as eminently qualifying him for the discharge of the high duties of Chief Magistrate, and recommends his nomination at Louisville.

A JERSEY POLICEMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Officer Teeple, of the Second Precinct, Jersey City, was on duty all Friday night and returned to his home, No. 9 Clark place, about six o'clock yesterday morning. He conversed with his wife for a short time in a sober mood, and then handed her two rings, with the remark that he would have no more use for them. After a short time he went into the bedroom, and a report of a pistol followed. He staggered out, and before he could reach his wife he fell. Blood gushed from his mouth, and it was soon ascertained that he had shot himself. He must have placed the pistol in his mouth and fired upwards, for the ball passed just behind the nose and lodged near the base of the brain, producing a contusion in the lower part of the forehead. At first it was believed that the ball had passed out through the forehead, but Dr. Mitchell, who was called on, traced the ball to the base of the brain. He hopes to be able to extract it and there are strong chances for Teeple's recovery. The cause of the rash act is not known. He had been recently suspended for forty days and had just resumed his duty. His health has been very poor for some time, and this, with the deprivation of forty days' pay, led, it is believed, to great mental depression.

THE FEATURE OF THE WEEK in Wall street was the decline in gold, which went off to 112⅝, or three per cent lower than it was a few weeks ago. The money market was unsettled, and, after advancing to seven per cent, declined to three per cent, closing pretty active at four per cent.

MR. CHARLES O'CONOR AND THE STRAIGHT-OUT FARCE.—It is reported on good authority that Mr. Charles O'Conor has addressed a letter to the Louisville Convention of "straight-outs," prohibiting the use of his name by them for the Presidential or any other office. Mr. O'Conor states that "the fee simple of the world" would not induce him to accept the nomination. This certainly is emphatic enough, and while it does credit to Mr. O'Conor's sense, it obliges the side show to look elsewhere for a figurehead. Where will they find one? We suspect every reputable citizen will, like Mr. O'Conor, decline to lend his name for so useless a purpose as that proposed by the Duncanites. Under these circumstances we do not see how the straight-outs can do better than to nominate Blanton Duncan himself, unless, indeed, they could induce George Francis Train to accept the head of their ticket, with the gallant Kentucky Colonel as his second.

THE SPANISH ELECTIONS.—The elections for members of the Spanish Cortes were held yesterday. The citizen political contests passed off quietly. The returns had not been received in Madrid when our news despatch was forwarded in the evening. The indications are that the opinion of the country has been pronounced in favor of the new royalism, and that the people have strengthened the hands of His Majesty Amadeus, and of his ministry, by a vote approving of the policy of the government. The King, accompanied by his wife, returned to Madrid from their tour in the northern provinces just subsequent to the close of the polls—a happy coincidence under the circumstances; one which will be accepted as a sort of formal recrowning of the monarchical edifice in Spain.

The Reform Movement and the Political Conventions—The Opportunity of the Opposition.

While the attention of the politicians has been concentrated on the Presidential contest ever since the liberal republicans at Cincinnati sounded the first note of the campaign, the quiet, undemonstrative voters, who last year inaugurated in this State the great movement against official and political corruption, have not lost sight of the important question of reform. Last November they made their power felt at the polls by overthrowing in a day an organization whose strength had been the growth of years. Their ballots drove from office the men who had betrayed their trusts, and elected in their stead the candidates of a party pledged to the cause of reform. The revolution was thorough. In the city of New York, democratic by seventy thousand, the republican Register was successful by nearly thirty thousand majority, and in the State the entire republican ticket was elected by twenty thousand majority. Mr. Charles O'Conor's timely letter, reminding the people that honest legislation must lie at the foundation of real reform, was not without its effect; and in order to insure such laws as would secure the fruits of the victory won at the ballot box the reform vote gave the republicans twenty-five State Senators out of thirty-two and ninety-seven Assemblymen out of one hundred and twenty-eight. This large majority—over three-fourths in each house of the Legislature—was designed to place in the hands of the republicans the full power of controlling legislation against any opposition, and of overriding, if necessary, the veto of a democratic Executive. In New York city the strongest legislative candidates of the old ring were overthrown. Only one escaped. William M. Tweed, to the disgrace of the city, was re-elected to the State Senate, and the otherwise gratifying victory was felt to have been incomplete. But the honor of the metropolis was to be vindicated. The people were assured that the republican Senators would save the good name of the State by promptly expelling the Tammany leader from their circle.

The failure of the republicans to redeem the pledges made by the party before election is notorious, and it is not necessary to detail the shameless frauds and corruptions of the last Legislature. They have already been exposed by one of the few conscientious members of the most depraved body that ever convened in the State Capitol. In the hands of the lobby from the first hour of the session, seeking to sell their votes on every question that came before them, they rejected almost every reform measure that was proposed and adjourned covered with infamy. As the republican party was responsible for this depraved Legislature, it was reasonably expected that the Republican State Convention would have repudiated and denounced its members and have called upon the republican Senators who hold over next year to resign their seats and suffer the people to elect a new Senate with the new House of Assembly. This expectation was not fulfilled. No word of condemnation was uttered against the men who had betrayed the cause of reform and sunk the State Capitol deeper than it had ever been sunk before in the mire of corruption. Indeed, the Legislature of last Winter was honored in the Utica Convention. One of the Senators was the most prominent candidate for the office of Governor, and would have been the nominee but for the mine sprung under his feet by the father of the lobby, Thurlow Weed, while notorious Assemblymen and lobbyists figured prominently in the proceedings. This was the blunder of the Utica Convention; for the reform movement still lives, and the men who won the victory of last Fall have not forgotten the treachery of the politicians who betrayed them after that eventful election. The least the republican party could have done would have been to denounce the legislation of last Winter at Albany, and wash their hands of its corruptions. Such action would have strengthened their ticket more than all the bids they could make for democratic and negro support.

The Siamese Twins conventions of democrats and liberal republicans are to meet at Syracuse on the 4th of September, and it is probable that they will profit by the omissions of the regular republicans and will enter the field as the reform party of 1871. This is their opportunity, and if they avail themselves of it it will strengthen them greatly in the State. The liberal convention in especial should guard jealously against the attendance of any tainted member of the existing Legislature as a delegate, and should not suffer the name of a republican Senator or Assemblyman to be mentioned for any office. The resolutions should speak out plainly in denunciation of the Albany corruptions, regardless of persons, and should declare against the renomination of any of the present Assemblymen in a single district of the State. The infamy of the State Capitol attaches to democrats as well as to republicans, although the latter had the power of legislation entirely in their hands, and no political considerations should be suffered to silence the voice of the Convention on the subject. No member of the Legislature whose record is not unassailable should be sent as a delegate to either body, or be admitted to a seat if sent. Only by an entire repudiation of the Albany corruptionists, in practice as well as in words, can the Greeley party in this State benefit by the blunder of the Republican Convention in virtually endorsing the infamous Legislature of last Winter.

It will not do, however, for the Syracuse double-headed Conventions to content themselves with a verbal condemnation of the bogus reformers, although they have two tongues to wag in denunciation. The people are suspicious of platforms unless backed up by men whose names are a guarantee that they will carry out faithfully the pledges upon which they are elected. Several names are now mentioned in connection with the office of Governor, and we give elsewhere in the HERALD to-day a graphic account of the gossip and schemes of the politicians in regard to the nominations. Judge Church has declined to run; but for the good of the cause it will be well if he can be induced to reconsider that determination. His nomination would be accepted as a guarantee of honest reform and would give character to the ticket. There are of course other good names mentioned in the list of candidates, but the Conventions should be careful that their nominee is not an old political hack, already broken down in the service of office-seeking, or one whose antecedents will be calculated to revive the dead issues and the sleeping enmities of the past. If the Greeley unionists are prudent on these points they may make a successful fight in the State, in defiance of any opposing combinations in this city.

The municipal and legislative nominations will yet remain to be made by both parties, and to these the attention of the people will be specially directed. We warn both republicans and opposition that it will not do to place a single tainted or suspected name on an Assembly ticket, and the wisest policy to be pursued by all parties will be to reject every candidate who was at Albany last Winter. The people are now more than ever convinced of the necessity of electing honest men to the State Legislature if they desire a thorough reform in the municipal government, and they will not again suffer the character of the State to be blackened by the foulness of the State Capitol. Wherever a citizen of established integrity is opposed by a candidate of questionable honesty the people will vote for the former without regard to politics. If either party would adopt the principle of placing the name of a prominent business man of wealth and position upon every legislative ticket it would sweep the State like a whirlwind. The democrats in this city and in Brooklyn, trusting to their overpowering majorities in some of the Assembly districts, have been in the habit of running and electing candidates whose names are familiar in all legislative jobs. The experience of last year will probably teach them that they can no longer adopt such a policy; but, even should they be strong enough to elect such candidates in particular districts, they must remember that their nomination is a serious damage to the whole of the ticket all over the State. In the selection of a candidate for Mayor similar caution is necessary. The people of New York desire solid and lasting reform, joined with enterprise, energy and liberality in the administration of their municipal affairs. They will demand of the next Legislature a plain, practical charter for the city, giving power to an honest Mayor to make an efficient government and leaving ample scope for the prosecution of all desirable works of public improvement. It is proper that a competent and upright Chief Magistrate should be entrusted with the work of reorganizing the government under the new law, and hence the importance of the present contest for the Mayoralty. We refer elsewhere to the candidates most prominently mentioned for this office, and among them will be found names that commend themselves to the favor of the friends of progress and reform. It matters not on what tickets or through what political combinations the candidates may be placed before the people; the silent vote of the city will be cast independently of the politicians, as it was last November, and the best man will win.

The Western Indians—The Sioux on the Warpath.

From a special despatch, dated at the crossing of James River, in Dakotah, on the 22d, it appears that actual Indian hostilities exist along the proposed line of the Northern Pacific railway. A military force, assigned to the duty of escorting the surveying party engaged in selecting and designating the route between the Red River of the North and the Upper Missouri, was, on the 19th, attacked by a band of Sioux, the tribe of our recent visitor Spotted Tail, who on all sides menaced the expedition. Of course discipline, science and good arms were more than a match for Indian ferocity and savage courage. As is the universal rule, the red men paid the penalty of their temerity by defeat, with considerable slaughter, while our forces were not seriously harmed. There may be more of the bloody work. If so the results will be the same in kind, with varying details. Civilization is too strong for barbarism; its westward march is irresistible, and whatever opposes it will be ground to powder. Not only in Dakotah are there mutterings of Indian trouble; Utah and New Mexico present similar scenes. The Utes protest against white encroachment and ask relief in the State of the Latter Day Saints, while further south Lone Wolf howls for the enlargement of Santanna, imprisoned for murder, and demands the restitution to his unruly band of Kioways of all the territory between the Missouri and the Rio Grande del Norte, a tract six to eight hundred miles wide. If these conditions are complied with the prowling Chief of the Kioways will promise peace with his white brothers.

Our railroads and telegraphs are fast erasing from the map the "Great American Desert," which for centuries sustained herds of countless buffaloes and furnished food for the Indian hunters. White settlers and hunters with plough and rifle every year circumscribe the buffalo range and curtail their numbers; and it is rapidly becoming to the Indians a question whether they will quit predatory life and the chase, go to work like white men, or starve. Their accustomed food disappears. Unwilling to work and ignorant of the methods of industrious life, they are naturally perplexed and quarrelsome. In every encounter with our forces they are defeated. Government offers them reservations where they may be protected from encroachment, and where, if they will work, they may live in peace and plenty. But it is hard to teach the wild men the way of civilization.

Radicalism in South Carolina—A Frightful State of Things.

Our despatches from Columbia, South Carolina, show that the State is in as bad a condition politically as it is financially, if not in a worse. It has been plundered in the most barefaced way by the carpet-bag rascals and their negro allies, and a debt has been piled up that staggers the people by its weight. There is nothing comparable in the history of this country to the flagrant robbery and abuse of power by the radical authorities there. And now, when the time had come that the respectable portion of the community hoped to find a remedy for the evil through the regular Convention of the dominant party and a change of rulers, the robbers have overwhelmed the reformers. By pistols, bribery and vociferous clamor they nominated a most unscrupulous batch of plunderers for all the highest offices in the State. So outrageous was the conduct of the Convention and such terrorism was exhibited that the best men of the radical republican party were glad to escape from the State House to save themselves from serious personal injury. Revolvers were drawn, chairs were raised over the shoulders of members, ready to strike, and bedlam seemed to be let loose. It is really a wonder there was not a general riot and much bloodshed. James L. Orr, United States Senator Sawyer, District Attorney Corbin, and others finally called a separate Convention; but they represent only a minority or faction of the party. The majority appear to go with the carpet-bag plunderers. This is the old story of negro government. History is repeated. Wherever the negroes have attained the ascendancy or the balance of power in any country there everything has gone to chaos and ruin. It was so in Hayti, in St. Domingo, in Venezuela, and in all other countries where the blacks having political power have outnumbered the whites, or where a few knavish whites have used the blacks to ride into power. This should be a solemn lesson for us, but it seems our politicians will not heed the teaching of history. Unless the radical republican party be split asunder and a part of the negroes should have the good sense to go with the conservative and more respectable portion in South Carolina, the State must remain in a most hopeless condition.

Camp Meeting Eccentricities.

It has never been our good or bad fortune to have witnessed an Indian war dance, but from what we have read and heard of such scenes, and from what we have seen and heard at Methodist camp meetings, we should judge that there is not much difference between the two, especially when the latter becomes intensely excited. As a means of social Christian enjoyment undoubtedly camp meetings have their advantages, not only for Methodists, but for all other denominations of Christians; but as a means of promoting spiritual growth they have, like many other means, outlived their usefulness, and have now degenerated into huge land speculations, whereby a chosen few make money at the expense of the many who are called but not chosen. Viewing camp meetings either in their social or in their religious aspects we have never been able to comprehend why such unlimited license of word and deed should be granted to dwellers in the tented grove which would not be allowed nor be expected in the private dwelling or in the church. We cannot see the propriety of a score or a hundred men and women jumping upon the seats in a church as politicians do at mass meetings, and shouting "Hurrah for Jesus," and clapping hands and falling on each others' shoulders and necks and bellowing like maniacs let loose from bedlam. And if there is no propriety in acting thus in a church, by what law and under the operation of what principle of physics or of morals is it permissible in a grove church? The Apostle Paul must have had some experience with highly emotional churches in his day, else he never would have written to the Corinthians as he did, cautioning them against all talking at once. He recommends the Christian brethren when assembled together to prophesy one by one, that all may learn and all may be comforted, and he forestalls the objections of some, who think they cannot repress their enthusiasm, by assuring them that the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets. And there are many in the Church who think they are led by the Holy Spirit into these excesses, and to all such the Apostle declares that God is not the author of confusion, but of peace. While the individual soul may be benefited and relieved by a good shout or a hallelujah once and again, it is unquestionably true that strangers, and especially irreligious persons, are not edified, but, on the contrary, they receive the impression which Paul declared the unlearned and unbelievers would receive upon entering such a gathering of babbling Christians—namely, that they are all mad. This is one reason among many why camp meetings of to-day lack the spiritual power over sinners which they once possessed.

But eccentricity manifests itself in other forms besides these in camp meetings. It is seen and heard in its most ludicrous light in songs and prayers, and sometimes in preaching. Some of the most meaningless twaddle that can be gathered together is heard on camp grounds and passes for sermons. They contain neither the statement of the fact nor the relation of the experience which an eminent minister at the Sing Sing meeting declared constitute preaching. It seems to be taken for granted also that any kind of trashy rhyme is good enough for the camp meeting, and people go to those gatherings surcharged with wretched doggerel. The good old songs of Wesley and Cowper, and Doddridge and Watts, and Montgomery and Toplady, and Newton and their compeers, are too tame, too pure and too poetical to suit the feverish imaginations of the present generation of Methodists. If they could be equalled, or in any way nearly approached by the meteoric poets of to-day, we should not find fault, but it requires very little poetic knowledge to appreciate the superior sentiment and rhythm of the former.

The prayers, too, of camp-going Christians lack that conciseness and purity of diction which a knowledge of the nature of prayer should and does impart. We have sometimes heard men pray that the Lord would knock some certain sinner heels over head, or that He would shake him over the bottomless pit without letting the guilty one fall in. We can scarcely imagine the effect such prayers must have on the souls that feel their burden of sin and are seeking salvation by faith in Jesus Christ; but it seems to us they ought to deter many from seeking, if they do not drive others away altogether, from the Cross. We heard a minister's wife lately, at a camp meeting, tell the Lord in a prayer what a good business her husband gave up that he might enter the ministry, and how rich he might be had he continued in business, and we could not escape the conviction that that much of the prayer was, to use a Hibernianism, no prayer at all. We have frequently heard men and women tell God how much they had done and suffered for his cause, and by implication how much they were entitled to receive from Him in return. And, again, persons praying often indulge in exhortations to the Lord how He should act in given cases, and to the people how they shall perform certain duties. Such sentences and phrases, however nicely rounded, are not prayers. They never reach the throne of God and are never answered to human hearts nor in human experience. The list might be extended almost indefinitely, but need not be. There are a few of the most prominent camp meetings of the country yet to be held, and their managers can make them models of Christian decorum if they will, and not permit a repetition of scenes which have disgraced other meetings, such as jumping about like lunatics, and promiscuous hugging, which is condemned by one of the leading Methodist papers of this city, in its last issue. Such scenes are a blot not only on Methodism, but on Christianity itself, and they give to the public that false impression of camp meetings which so generally, even almost universally, prevails.

The Decline in the Greeley Enthusiasm—The Presidential Balance of Power.

Whatever the causes, it is apparent on all sides that, since the late North Carolina election, there has been a reaction in the tide of public opinion on the Presidential question. From the Baltimore Convention, which proclaimed the Cincinnati liberal republican candidates, Greeley and Brown, the democratic ticket and the Cincinnati liberal resolutions, the democratic platform, down to the election in North Carolina, there were such signs and manifestations of a general popular uprising in favor of "Greeley, Brown and reform" as to justify the impression that we are in the midst of an irresistible political revolution. Nor can it be questioned that the first election reports from North Carolina greatly strengthened this widely pervailing opinion. But when the distant election districts and the back counties were all in, and it was ascertained that the republicans had secured the Governor, which was the Presidential test in the election, and the accepted test on both sides as between Grant and Greeley, there was an abatement in the democratic enthusiasm for Greeley, and the tide of public sentiment began to change in favor of Grant.

The substantial fruits of the North Carolina election in securing the Legislature, which is to elect a United States Senator, and in securing a majority of the Congressmen, were reaped by the democrats; but the Presidential test was upon the Governor, and here the moral result was, as we have indicated, a democratic defeat which changed the whole aspect of the national battle field. The Greeley republicans may have materially strengthened the democratic party in this North Carolina contest; but with the general knowledge of their failure to elect, as the balance of power, the democratic candidate for Governor, began this general decline in the democratic enthusiasm for Greeley. In the outset, among the young and progressive democracy the novelty of Mr. Greeley as the candidate of the democratic party for the Presidency was so fascinating as to carry with it the idea that "the fountains of the great deep were broken up," and that a deluge was rising which would overwhelm Grant, his administration, his party and all their great expectations and calculations in connection with another four years' lease of power. But this sudden flashing up of democratic enthusiasm has died out, and the fear is gaining ground that the republicans, brought over to the democracy in support of Greeley and Brown, may possibly be outnumbered by those old line Bourbon democrats who are resolved to vote for Grant or to stay at home on election day if they cannot get a straight-out democratic ticket on the platform of "the time-honored democratic principles of Jefferson and Jackson."

Seeing is believing; but until we see that these anti-Greeley Bourbon democrats can do, are doing and intend to do something in this campaign, which will compel their recognition as a balance of power, we shall continue to hold them as belonging to the same class of makeweights or political guerillas as the temperance reformers, the labor reformers and the women's rights reformers. The democratic party adopted the Cincinnati Presidential ticket under the impression that from the republican camp it would bring them the balance of power in the election; but against all the reinforcements to the democracy within reach of Greeley and Brown, the probabilities, since the North Carolina election, have changed in favor of General Grant. Senator Schurz, as a bolter against the administration, has been hailed as a hero by the democrats because of the balance which it is supposed he may reach, here and there, in the diversion of the German vote; but the German, as a rule, is very apt to vote according to his own ideas of the fitness of things; and so nothing decisive has been gained by Greeley and Brown in gaining Mr. Schurz. Again, it was supposed that the fame of Mr. Greeley, with the great name of Mr. Sumner, as the black man's friend, would bring over to the opposition alliance ticket the balance of power from the colored element, which, in the Presidential election, will poll probably seven hundred thousand votes or more; but along the lines of the African legions the word has been passed for General Grant, so that there is no hope in that quarter for Greeley and Brown.

Our Irish-born fellow citizens in many places, and especially in this city, constitute an important democratic balance of power; but it is by no means certain that the Irish element of this island will be a unit in our November national or local elections. In our municipal complications of parties, rings, factions, cliques and coteries, we shall probably have the confusion of Babel, a demoralizing confusion, which, to the regular democrats, may imperil the city and the State. In short, from the present outlook the prospect from every point of view is growing somewhat gloomy for Greeley, and unless in the results of the coming State elections he shall make a break in the apparently compact lines of the administration party, the Philosopher of Chappaqua, as a pilgrim for the White House, may

Lay down de shovel and de hoe,
And hang up de fiddle and de bow.

THE AMERICAN FLEET IN BRITISH WATERS.—A correspondent of the HERALD at Cowes, Isle of Wight, furnishes a bright gossipy letter, which we print this morning, giving an account of the honors shown our flag by our English cousins. The Prince and Princess of Wales paid a visit to the fleet and Admiral Alden and General Sherman were received on board the royal yacht with due honors. The stay of the fleet in British waters will be long remembered, as it will be associated with memories of right hearty and royal welcomes, brilliant scenes and warm friendships.

The Telegraph and Our Weather Watchmen.

The country is now looking daily with great interest for the general breaking up of the fiery season through which we are passing, and all classes are deeply interested in the daily reports of our weather watchmen. Although the equinoctial season is usually supposed to commence only when the sun is vertical upon the Equator in September, it must be remembered that the atmospheric forces which then engage in tempestuous battle begin to array themselves several weeks previously, and are already deployed. If the Italian astronomer Tacchini is correct, as he doubtless is, in his recently announced discovery of the singular appearance of magnesium in the chromosphere of the sun, and the coincidence between the brightness and broadness of these spectroscopic magnesium lines and the more pronounced and brilliant flames in the eruptions of solar volcanoes, it may be that this year, though somewhat delayed, the phenomena of storm and hurricane will be peculiarly grand. At any rate the arrival of the changed season will be as eagerly looked for this year as the annual arrival of the sun within the Arctic circle is looked for by the Esquimaux or the Laplander. It seems, therefore, a fitting time to call the attention of the public to the conditions which must ever underlie a safe and useful meteorological system, such as that of our Signal Bureau at Washington.

When the almanac maker had the monopoly of weather science it was very natural to laugh at every augury or prediction of what the Roman poet called "varium et mutabile semper." Sensible men knew the difficulties of foreseeing the operations of the atmosphere, and until very recently, when the telegraph spread its network of wires over the world, scientific men dared not undertake a system of storm signals. Experience has, however, demonstrated—nowhere so fully as in America, where the immense territory presents advantages of meteorologic study enjoyed by few other nations—that, with complete and continuous chains of weather stations crossing the Continent on parallels of latitude along which the storms of every country chiefly move, it is possible to announce, hours and days beforehand, the advent and force of these violent meteors, and to forewarn alike the farmer and the seaman. Indeed, it may be safely affirmed that, with the present light now obtained on the law of storms, the chief problem of weather telegraphy is how to maintain a perfect system of accurate and prompt telegrams from the various reporting stations of the Signal Bureau. As long as these tri-daily telegrams are punctually furnished by the telegraph companies to the central office of the Chief Signal Officer no fear need be felt that any dangerous tempest can sweep over the land unheralded. As the graphic weather map of the War Department, issued by the Chief Signal Officer, shows, every atmospheric eddy, every current, every cloud that moves or floats through the deep caverns of the aerial ocean is detected, telegraphically announced and clearly charted for the eye of the meteorologists at Washington who have in charge the deductions and "probabilities" of the weather to ensue. Unfortunately, however, the continuity and completeness of these telegrams have for some months been seriously interrupted and their timely information suspended by the refusal of some of the telegraphic corporations to transmit them at rates within the means of the Signal Office to pay. As long as this evil lasts it must, we presume, frequently occur that at the most critical junctures, as at the present, reports of observations at the different stations will be delayed, and the correctness of the forecast be rendered most precarious, to the great jeopardy of our shipping and of thousands of lives embarked on our coast steamers and trading vessels, and to the annoyance and disappointment of the entire public. It is obviously unjust and absurd to expect successful "probabilities" of the weather, especially in the changes of the stormiest equinoctial seasons, unless the chief Signal Office is enabled—as we reliably learn it is not now enabled—to secure regular and prompt transmission of its bulletins and reports in cipher. The attempt to foretell the weather without previous reports revealing all the varied agencies at work can surely be little more than mere vaticination; and it will be a scandal to the nation if the splendid success which has uniformly attended and still attends the Weather Bureau should for any period of time be marred by such difficulties as now embarrass it. So frequently and gravely do these difficulties now obstruct its work that many of the reports furnished the press state that, during the past eight hours, no intelligence has been received from the majority of its stations. Whole sections, and those often whose reports furnish the key to the weather, are not heard from and their reports to the central office, though always made, are declined by the telegraph companies and refused early transmission. Fortunately for the good of the public and the good name of the Signal Office, which has been won by a series of brilliant successes under a good telegraphic system, the statement of "no reports received," from such and such sections, will be understood to exonerate the office from the responsibility of the work it has thus to do in the dark, and will show those interested that the "probabilities" are then merely conjectural. All that can be expected of the Chief Signal Officer is that, given him all the telegraphic facilities the country possesses, he should, in the present imperfect state of meteorology, furnish generally correct predictions. We earnestly trust these may soon be restored and secured to him for all time. But until this is done all criticism of the weather reports must be unfounded and unjust.

The Religious Press.

Professor Tyndall's proposition to test the efficacy of prayer by setting apart a ward in some first class hospital where patients shall be the special subject of prayer by all the Church during a succession of years, and a comparison of the records of that ward with others under equal circumstances, is receiving consideration by several of the weeklies. The Interior compares the proposed test to that suggested to the Master by the doubting sister of Lazarus that her brother should be reanimated. It doubts the propriety of asking the Almighty to stay the virus of smallpox or decree that water shall not drown—in short, to work a miracle to cure unbelief even in men of pure character and high scientific attainments. It also advocates "old-fashioned preaching;" says, in ecclesiastical language, that "all is not gold that glitters," and that "we want bread, not a stone, though the stone be a diamond," which may be thought a sharp though indirect cut at the recent discoveries of brilliants in Arizona.

Church and State (Episcopalian) discusses the Church and her wayward children, who, in its view, appear the Ritualists. The branch of the Church which holds form and equipage of small account in comparison with a pure faith is lauded, while its brethren who make much of rites are named as "holding Romish dogmas which ought to find no favor in the Church." It thinks there may be worse things than kissing a stole or wearing a surplice instead of a gown, but that those things themselves are no better than they should be.

The Evangelist brings up the recollections of the massacres of St. Bartholomew's Day, three centuries ago, and draws therefrom an injurious inference as to the present character of the Roman Church. It also attacks theatres and their "reform," telling us that seventy cities in this country have theatres, and this city thirteen first class ones. The remark of the editor that you may "cut off the gangrened finger, or even arm, and a sound body might be left; but when the moral dry rot is at the heart what ethical surgery is equal to the treatment of the case?" is doubtless extremely caustic, but just at the opening of the theatrical season it is likely to prove a valuable advertisement for the naughty playhouses.

The Hebrew Leader defends the American Consul in Roumania against the assaults of a foreign newspaper with considerable zeal, and shows itself able to handle the lance of satire with any Christian knight.

The Church Weekly supports the Alt-Catholik movement in Germany, seeing in it many points of similarity with the English Reformation, and favors the sending of an American Episcopal Bishop to attend the German conference soon to be held.

The Baptist Union advises the admission of Christians of other sects to the communion table in opposition to the old rule in that denomination. It says, "Mere love of sect and denominational zeal are rapidly losing their hold on the Christian public," which, if true of the Baptist sect, speaks more highly for its enlightenment and true Christianity than could well be said in other language.

The Standard (Congregationalist) has a liberal article upon tests of membership. While it does not insist very strenuously upon a strict and narrow creed, it urges that before the candidate is admitted to church membership he shall be found holding the pure faith.

The Freeman's Journal alludes to the appointment of Archbishop Bayley to the Primacy of Baltimore, suggesting that, as he takes up the high responsibility, many prayers and many masses be offered for him. The Journal compliments the HERALD for its enterprise in discovering and succoring Doctor Livingstone.

The Golden Age talks about universal religion, but devotes much its largest portion to politics of the pro-Greeley stripe. The Methodist answers a correspondent who is dubious whether croquet falls under the ban as a game of chance. By its decision it is safe, in a spiritual view, for religious people to break their shins over billiards on the grass, and it quotes Martha's Vineyard camp meeting as its authority. The Tablet praises the recent action of the Holy See sanctioning the use of the right of election by the Roman people, and resents the persecution of the Church at the hands of Bismarck.

A LOOK INTO OUR INSANE ASYLUMS.—In response to the demand of citizens, who allege that improper practices prevail in the treatment of persons confined in Bloomingdale Asylum and other houses of detention for the insane, Governor Hoffman has named a commission to examine the matter. This he does without sanction of a legal enactment, but in compliance with the public sentiment. His letter points very clearly to strong proof of wrong at Bloomingdale. It is a private institution. Last Winter a bill was proposed placing it under official surveillance. Governor Hoffman says this was defeated by the personal influence of the Chief Physician of the asylum. Where there is no abuse there is no reason for concealment. Evidently it is high time some authorized power should know by ocular proof what kind of people are shut up in the asylums and how they are there treated.

A COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

Fire-Damp in the Tompkins Mine—A Terrible Explosion—Six Men Injured—Three of the Men Not Expected to Recover.

PITTSTON, Pa., August 24, 1872.

There was an explosion of fire-damp in the Tompkins Mine this afternoon. The Tompkins is near the Eagle shaft, where the terrible explosion occurred last year, and seems to be troubled with the same destructive element. Six men were injured by the explosion, viz.:—John Hughes (boss), in the side; Howell Edwards, Thomas Pointon (boy), Thomas Evans, William Jones and Samuel Monk. The men were engaged in sinking what is known as a "sunk"—a receptacle for the water of the mine, situated at the part of the shaft from which it is drawn off by pumps. The colliery had been idle during the day, and the boss told the men to be careful in their operations. Edwards, it is said, disobeyed the injunction, and by some means brought his light in contact with the inflammable gas. It seems that in this case the explosion was purely accidental. It is thought Edwards, Pointon and Jones will die of their injuries.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

The Fire Fiend at Champaign, Ill.—An Immense Amount of Property Destroyed.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., August 24, 1872.

A fire broke out at six o'clock this evening in the steam flouring mill adjoining the Illinois Central Railroad. The flames soon communicated to an elevator and grain sheds adjoining, and then swept across Main street to an agricultural implement warehouse, spreading thence to a row of six two-story frame buildings, all of which were consumed. For a time it was thought the Doan Hotel and the railroad round house would be destroyed, but by a vigorous use of water and blowing up of an adjoining frame building this disaster was prevented. The fine brick block on Main street was also saved.

The fire was the largest ever known in this city, and the total loss is near $100,000. The mills and elevator were owned by Mr. Carley and operated by Mr. Finch. They were but partly filled with flour and grain. The loss is estimated at about forty thousand dollars. The warehouse was well supplied with agricultural machines, and was owned by Mr. H. McAllister. His loss is about twenty thousand dollars. The frame shops lying west of the warehouse were occupied by Langhen & Loeb, dealers in clothing, G. E. Hessel and other persons engaged in retail business. Their loss is about $15,000. There were also two coal yards burned, but the loss on these cannot be accurately given. The insurance is unknown, as the underwriters have not had time to figure up.

The mill and elevator were pretty well insured, and on the row of houses there are risks amounting to $22,000, $1,000 of which is in the North American of Philadelphia. The Doan House is pretty badly damaged with water, and Bernstein Brothers' clothing house had a number of windows broken by the explosion when the frame building was blown up.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The "Bolters" Convention in Session at Columbia.

Reuben Tomlinson Nominated for Governor.

AN OPPOSITION TRICK.

While the Pennsylvania "Friend" is Returning Thanks the Gas is Turned Off.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 24, 1872.

The "bolters" from the regular State Republican Convention, under the leadership of the ex-Governor, Senator Sawyer and others, have been in session all day, though no business of importance was transacted until to-night. The Committee on Credentials reported about fifty delegates present, two-thirds of whom were colored, and a permanent organization was effected by the election of James L. Orr as President, and four vice presidents and a secretary. Several informal caucuses were held during the afternoon, but until late the bolting members were unable to come to any definite or settled programme, as the regular Convention was still in session and had not concluded their nominations. The fact of the matter is the "bolters" were placed in pledged as they were to nominate honest men only, against whose record there could not be the shadow of a foul or dishonest imputation. Unfortunately for the "bolters," the republican party of the State, after being thoroughly sifted and canvassed, was actually found lacking sufficient material from which to select eight honest men of any prominence to nominate a State ticket. This was a difficulty hard to be overcome, and hence the "bolters" had quietly to await developments and the nominations made at the State House before proceeding to select a ticket. I do not mean to insinuate that there are no republicans of respectability in the State who have not been corrupted, but there are not really a dozen prominent men in the State who could arouse the enthusiasm of the people in a political contest.

BOLTING GUBERNATORIAL NOMINEES.

When the Convention met to-night there was a full representation present, besides a large number of spectators, nearly all of whom were in sympathy with the reform movement. The names of Reuben Tomlinson, of Charleston; United States District Attorney Corbin and C. C. Bowen were placed in nomination for the Governorship, the latter two declining in favor of the former and heartily endorsing him. A vote was then taken, and Mr. Tomlinson was nominated by acclamation, amid the greatest enthusiasm, as the honest candidate of the republicans of the State for the Governorship in October next. Cheer upon cheer testified the joy with which the bolting and honest members received the nomination of a good man, and Mr. Tomlinson was brought per force to the speaker's stand.

MR. TOMLINSON RETURNS THANKS.

He returned thanks for the honor done him, and said that while the evils under which the people suffered were the result of dishonesty or of incompetency, they were patent facts, and he hoped the day was not far distant when the State would be redeemed. The past administration had proved a failure, and the men who proved themselves recreant to their trust should have stepped aside and allowed others to try to reconstruct the interests of the State. This they would not do. The greed of wealth and power was too great for them to resist. If he got but 500 votes he would accept the nomination, and he would not live in the State and submit to the dishonesty and fraud that was about to be renewed under another corrupt administration; but he was satisfied the ticket nominated to-night would be crowned with success in October. The people were and they were fully aroused to the necessity of reform in the administration of affairs in the State. This movement was entirely within the republican ranks, and no matter what charges might be made by the opposition that they were democrats he wanted it distinctly understood that there was no such coalition. They were republicans, in fact, in name, and as such would carry the State in October.

A SCANDALOUS TRICK

At this point some scoundrel of the opposition got at the gas metre and turned the lights off, leaving the bolters in total darkness. This created a good deal of confusion, but, with commendable earnestness in the cause, not a delegate left the house and as soon as candle and lamp lights were produced the proceedings were resumed. Mr. Tomlinson is a native of Pennsylvania and a Quaker, who came here at the close of the war to organize a system of education. He was elected Auditor of the State but resigned after a brief service to give more attention to his private business and the school system he had established. He has the universal esteem of the people of the State, though he has always been known as a thorough republican and a strong supporter of the present national administration. Some of the white people here are under the impression that the "bolters" movement is a fiasco, gotten up in the interest of General Grant to divert public attention from this State during the Presidential canvass; but I am assured by those who ought to know that this reform movement has the sympathy and will receive the support of the administration at Washington. The Convention will probably be in session all night making the remainder of their nominations.

The Regular Republican Convention.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 24, 1872.

The Regular Republican Convention has completed its State ticket by nominating Francis L. Cardozo, mulatto, for State Treasurer; Solomon L. Hage, white, Comptroller; General H. W. Purvis, mulatto, Adjutant General; J. K. Jillson, white, Superintendent of Education.

Republicans in the Second Congressional district have nominated Alonzo J. Ranscir, mulatto, for Congress. A split is threatened.

The Liberals and Democrats.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 24, 1872.

The Liberal Republican Executive Committee met to-day and appointed a conference committee to meet the Democratic Executive Committee, and authorized the chairman to call a State Convention at his discretion.

JUDGE CHURCH'S ULTIMATUM.

He Cannot Accept a Nomination for the Governorship Under Any Circumstances—He Absolutely Declines.

BUFFALO, August 24, 1872.

Judge Church has addressed the following letter to Hon. William Williams, of this city, declining the nomination for Governor:—

MY DEAR SIR—Your favor of yesterday asking my views and wishes in relation to the nomination for the office of Governor, in connection with which my name has been mentioned, is received, and I avail myself of the earliest moment to answer it. I can only repeat what I have uniformly expressed to those who have spoken with me on the subject, not only that I do not desire the nomination, but that I feel it my duty to decline it. Deeply sensible and profoundly grateful for the kind and flattering expressions of confidence by those whose good opinion I value so highly, for reasons which are unnecessary to be stated, but which are imperative in controlling my judgment, I feel constrained to make this decision absolute and unqualified.

It is proper, however, that I should add that my decision has been in no degree influenced by want of interest in the pending political canvass. Vital interests, good government and constitutional principles are involved in the contest; and I am rejoiced to believe that by a union of patriotic citizens, heretofore politically opposed, a change of administration will be effected and the country restored to its normal constitutional condition. Several distinguished citizens have been mentioned in connection with the nomination for Governor, either one of whom would be overwhelmingly elected and administer the executive duties of the State with credit and satisfaction. I do not doubt that a comparison of views will result in placing one of these gentlemen in nomination, and in a harmonious and successful canvass.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The liberals and democrats of the Twentieth Ohio district, in Convention yesterday morning, nominated Selah Chamberlain, of this city, for Congress.

A special despatch from Sedalia, Mo., says the straight-out democrats held a meeting at Clinton, Mo., on Friday, at which a straight-out club was organized with forty-seven members. Resolutions were adopted favoring the Louisville Convention.

The meeting of the Democratic and Liberal Republican Conference Committee of New Orleans is postponed until the arrival of the country members summoned to meet here early next week. A conference of the Pinchback and Custom House republicans, with the view of uniting the State and electoral tickets, will take place on Tuesday next.

WEST VIRGINIA ELECTION.

Unofficial Returns and Conflicting Statements—Jacob's Majority Said to Exceed 3,000—The New Constitution Probably Defeated—No Official Count Yet.

PARKERSBURG, August 24, 1872.

A special despatch says the indications at two this afternoon are that Jacob has carried the State by a small majority. Parkersburg gives 107 majority for the constitution.

Unofficial Returns from Twenty-One Counties.

WHEELING, W. Va., August 24, 1872.

Returns from twenty-one counties give Jacob 3,800 majority, and 2,800 majority against the new constitution. It will be several days before the official vote can be given.

Reports from Greenbrier.

GREENBRIER, WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS,
August 24, 1872.

Greenbrier county official vote for the constitution is 751 majority; Camden, 451 majority; Mathews, Attorney General, 800 majority. New Richmond township, Summers county—Official returns give 60 majority for the constitution and 7 majority for Jacob.

It is thought that Summers county has gone for Camden and the constitution. A private despatch from Richmans township, Raleigh county, says that township gave majorities against the constitution and Camden, but democratic majorities in everything else.

Raleigh township, Raleigh county, gives 107 majority for the constitution.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 24, 1872.

Straight-out Delegates to Louisville.

The Straight-out Democratic Club, of the District of Columbia, last evening appointed two delegates, whose names have not been made known, to the Louisville Convention, and adopted resolutions pledging their support to Charles O'Conor for the Presidency. A committee was appointed to collect funds for the campaign.

Indian Affairs.

The Commissioners of the General Land Office to-day received from J. C. O'Connor, Indian Agent at Grand River, Dakota Territory, the following telegram, dated Fort Sully, D. T., August 23, 1872:—"The Indian delegation from here will not leave for Washington till the early part of next month, as General Corner writes from Fort Peck that he will be detained there about two weeks longer. Reports are being extensively circulated that the Sioux are on the war path, when the truth is, all the Indians of this agency were never before more peaceable or well disposed than now."

The Postal Cards.

The Attorney General gave a written opinion to-day to the Postmaster General deciding that the Post Office Department cannot make a contract for the manufacture of the postal cards—proposals for which were expected about this time—until Congress makes a specific appropriation to pay for them. By the Postal Code bill the Postmaster General was authorized and directed to prepare and furnish postal cards; but when this bill passed the Postal Appropriation bill had already been acted upon and contained no provision for said purpose. The department, however, under the direction of the Postal Card law, prepared specifications, &c., for the postal cards, believing they could be paid for out of some general appropriation; but, on the matter being submitted to the Attorney General, it is discovered that this cannot be done, and, consequently, the establishment of the system must await a specific appropriation by Congress at the next session.

Three Millions of Dead Letters.

Nearly three million letters went to the Dead Letter Office last year. They are partly classified as follows:—58,000 letters had no county or State direction, more than 400,000 lacked stamps and 3,000 were posted without any address at all. The sum of $92,000 in cash, and more than $3,000,000 in drafts, checks, &c., were found in these letters. It appears that on an average every letter that is misdirected or that goes to the Dead Letter Office from any cause contains $1.

Andrew Johnson Endorsed by an Immense Crowd at Nashville—"The Choice of the People for Congressman at Large."

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 24, 1872.

The demonstration to-night in honor of Andrew Johnson drew out 10,000 persons. After a torchlight procession the crowd assembled in front of the Court House on the public square, and a meeting was organized and resolutions adopted condemning the extravagance and corruption in the administration of the government and denouncing the Convention. Johnson was declared the choice of the people for Congressman for the State at large and W. G. Brien for Congress from the Nashville district.

In answer to calls, Mr. Johnson appeared and spoke at considerable length, announcing himself a candidate, and stated that he would stump the State and invite opposition to all the Convention nominees.

SIOUX IN WAR PAINT.

Reported Collision Between Warriors and United States Troops.

The Indians Retire with Considerable Loss.

CROSSING, JAMES RIVER, D. T., August 23, 1872.

There are rumors here that hostile Sioux Indians are showing themselves in all directions, probably originating from the fact that Colonel Baker, of the Pigan affair, is now commanding four companies of the Second cavalry with the Northern Surveying Expedition. The entire escort comprises ten companies of troops, and left Fort Rice on July 26, under the command of General Stanley.

On the 19th inst., it appears, they were attacked by several hundreds of the Sioux warriors. The reports that have reached here are meagre, but sufficient to indicate the result of the fight in the abstract. The Indians were repulsed, with a considerable number killed and wounded. The loss among the United States troops was slight.

There are many unfounded Indian rumors circulated by parties who would prejudice, it is believed, the interests of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

Fourth Day of the Science Association in Iowa—The Theories of the Savans.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, August 24, 1872.

The fourth day's session of the Scientific Congress was quite interesting and well patronized. Professor G. W. Hough, Director of the Dudley Observatory, read a very interesting theme on "The So-called Velocity of the Electric Current over Telegraph Wires," suggesting a new theme that the so-called velocity was nothing but mechanical condition; that there was no such thing as velocity of the electric wave. Professor Daniel Kirkwood, of Missouri, read a paper on "Berary Stars," illustrating his subject by diagrams. Mr. E. C. Seaman had a new theory of light, based upon principles of attraction and the action of caloric.

Mr. J. C. Swallow, of Missouri, one of the principal movers in the Maine Liquor Law, read a paper on good wine—a social and national good.

During the reading of this last-mentioned paper, the audience became very excited and turbulent, and was called to order frequently. C. H. Hitchcock, of New Hampshire, told the story of recent geological discoveries among the white hills of that State. E. B. Andrews talked upon the origin of limestone in coal measures. Miss J. Swain, of Iowa, read an interesting paper on "Why We Differ, or Love Variety." Professor G. Forshey, of New Orleans, occupied the whole evening in the reading of an elaborate and exhaustive paper on "Physics of the Mississippi River." It was principally a political appeal to the national government to repair the levees of the Delta. It had no bearing on the topographical or geological formation of the Mississippi Valley—in short, was wholly devoid of scientific principles.

A DYING CORPORATION

A Career That Has Never Given Satisfaction to Anybody.

Last Moments of the Staten Island Railroad and Ferry Company.

THE GROWLS FROM AQUEHONGO.

Why People Are Dissatisfied, Why the Concern Became Bankrupt and Why It Must Be Sold Out.

Its Effect on the Westfield Sufferers.

On Tuesday next, at noon, the entire effects and properties of the Staten Island Railroad Company are to be sold at public auction to the highest responsible bidder, in pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale given by the Supreme Court of the City and County of New York on the 27th of June last. The action in which this judgment was obtained was brought by Adolphus S. Ockershausen and Balthazer Kreischer, mortgage creditors of the company—the first named plaintiff being a well-known sugar refiner of this city, and the latter a wealthy brickmaker of Kreischerville, Staten Island. Of course such a state of affairs as this implies the virtual if not actual bankruptcy of the company, and as a consequence has given rise to much comment. The Staten Island Railroad Company, as its corporate name is styled, is the corporation which also owns the franchises and operates the ferry line running between Whitehall slip and the various landings known as Edgewater (or Quarantine) landing, Stapleton and Vanderbilt landing. The ill-fated steamer Westfield, which exploded her boiler in July, 1871, causing a loss of over one hundred and ten lives, and the injuring and maiming of a couple of hundred others, belongs to this company, and as a result of that Sabbath day disaster the company incurred liability to suits at law for damages to the amount of certainly a million and a half of dollars. This fact, therefore, very naturally gave rise at first glance to a suspicion that the proposed sale of the concern was in fact nothing more nor less than an attempt to cheat the surviving friends and relatives of the dead victims, as well as the living maimed sufferers, of the amount which they might recover as compensation for damages, and in this light generally the affair is at present viewed. In order, therefore, to present something of the actual facts in the case a HERALD reporter has, for several days past, called upon a large number of people, residents of Staten Island, to learn their views in regard to the transaction. A rather however, was encountered at the very outset of the reporter's research, and followed to the close—viz., that there is scarcely any person on Staten Island who desired that their names should appear in conjunction with this report, as giving opinions antagonistic to the company.

SINGULAR STATE OF FACTS,

"I don't mind having a talk with you about this matter, Mr. Reporter; but, then, I don't want to have my name mixed up with the thing at all," said one.

"You see," said another, "I can't afford to fight this big moneyed monopoly; and if I give you my opinion right down as I think, and you print it, this company will be down on me and can worry me in a dozen ways."

Said a third—"I've got all the property I own on earth right here, and the very minute I get into trouble with the officers of the railroad company just that minute I am putting my head in the lion's mouth. They swing the biggest influence on the island, and I have got to put up with some of their games, even if I don't respect them. I don't mind giving my views, but then I don't want to put myself on record until I see which way the thing is going to end."

"Of course, if you desire your name withheld," replied the reporter, "I promise you I shall not use it."

"Well, that's right," replied the awe-stricken islander. "My bread and butter depends to some extent on these people, and my bread and butter is everything to me and my children. I've lived on this island seventeen years, and I've scrambled a little property together, and of course I don't want to lose it now. In a year or two I shall feel myself getting old, and I must look out for my little ones the best way I can while I am able to do it.

THIS COMPANY IS A FRAUD;

that's my opinion of it. They've got a monopoly of this thing, and they know nobody else can come in to compete against them, and they mean to make money out of us. We people living on this island have got to depend on this company for our means of bringing goods here, and we can't get away or come here ourselves without being to a certain extent dependent on their good will. The fact is it's just a little "ring," this ferry company is, with the stock all owned by that "ring." They've got a fat thing, and of course they're right in holding on to it. I would be one of the same "ring" myself if I could get in and afford to stay in; but that's neither here nor there. So far as this sale is concerned, that is a put up thing, and you'll find that the concern or some of their own bondholders or some half-way man of their own will bid the property in for them. They've got all that cut and dried and, you mark me, the bids won't amount to anything in comparison with what their property and franchises are worth."

"Well," asked the reporter, "do they actually do any business?"

"Do business? Why I think they do, rather. You just see the passengers pile into their boats morning and evening and see the car loads that come over the road, and I think you'll say they're doing a very good traffic. You asked me if I thought this sale was a bona fide affair. I don't think it is. I think it's just

of the Westfield explosion out of the damages they may recover, and everybody on the island I've talked to about it expresses the same opinion. The way I look at it is this. This company have got certain privileges from the people to run this line, and if it didn't pay they wouldn't have kept on running it for going on twenty-five or thirty years. They'd have given up the thing long ago. Of course, you talk about it to any of the directors or the stockholders and they'll tell you that it's making beggars out of the whole of them; but a good many of them live down here, and they drive better horses and live in finer houses than the common run of beggars do, that's all. It don't hurt them bad."

Another of the residents of the island whom the reporter called upon for "points," said, "This company knows they have got the thing in their own hands. They don't pretend to run this ferry line between here and New York as a ferry line. They run it as a railroad connection for their miserable line of road. Why they stick up in the ferry house a thing they call their "time table," but everybody round here will tell you you can place no dependence on that table. If they make up their minds that they won't run a certain boat, particularly if it is a night boat, they won't do it. I've seen fifty people left at night at a single landing, with just five minutes' notice that the boat they expected to get to New York in was hauled off and wouldn't run on her regular time table trip. This is in the Winter, and I have known hundreds of people who wanted to return on special business to the city to be left here all night, and have to run round to the different hotels to get lodging under great difficulties. For myself, I know that two or three times at least I've been compelled to take a sailboat and go around to New Brighton and take a North Shore ferryboat, or to Bayonne or Pamrapo and take the railroad, so as to get to the city to transact important business. This most frequently happens in the Winter. As soon as a little floating ice gets adrift in the bay look out for trouble. The company hauls off its boats because, as they say, the floating ice will cut them through at the water's edge, and it will be risking too much to attempt to make the passage. Now, every sane man knows that the ice that floats in the bay is never so heavy or so closely packed as it is in the North or East Rivers. And yet this company is afraid of injuring their boats, when the Brooklyn and Jersey City ferryboats are driving through

SOLID ISLANDS OF FLOATING ICE.

In the winter months there are dozens of boatmen here who make quite a good thing of it by watching when the company hauls off the regular night boats. These boatmen are then on the look out for passengers who have urgent business in the city, and will take them across to Bay Ridge or other points on the Long Island shore for $5 and sometimes $10 a head. Now, if their frail sail boats can make the trip through the ice, I don't see what on earth there can be to prevent a steamer from making her way. No, sir. It is not a matter of consulting the public requirements but of actual incoming dollars and cents. If this company chose to do it they might enhance the value of real property on the island fifty per cent in two years. If they were to run boats at more frequent intervals and later at night, and make their time table so that people knew when a boat would actually run, thousands of New Yorkers would settle here, build their own homes, the island would become beautiful and populous, and the company would bring money into its coffers at a rate that it has never yet experienced. Why, it is a reproach that a great city like New York lies so close to us and is cramped for accommodation, and withal is so embarrassed by this ferry monopoly that they cannot avail themselves of this island as a place of residence. The people here have held indignation meetings about it, and have sent in remonstrances, but you might as well send in a petition to as to these directors. They take it cooly and blow at you, and that's the end of it. They can stand it, whether you can or not; and outside of themselves they are not interested a cent's worth. Why, sir, this company has done more to check the growth of Staten Island than all other circumstances combined."

A SHOAL OF NORTH SEA SEALS

The reporter addressed a gentleman, whose name is, for obvious reasons which follow, not given, and asked him whether he thought the sale was intended to embarrass the chances of the Westfield victims recovering their remuneration for damages at law.

"Well," he replied, "I don't know anything about it myself, but from all I hear I rather incline to think that is one of the objects of the sale. That is the way everybody talks about here, and I have actually heard a hint or two to that effect drop from the attachés of the company. I only know that the company is a kind of one-horse concern, and I think it might do better with advantage alike to itself and to the public."

IN THE COURSE OF HIS RAMBLES

over the delectable island which one fanciful but probably afflicted visitor calls the "land of the mosquito," and which the Indians three hundred years ago called Aquehongo, the HERALD reporter conversed with all classes of people, physicians, local officers, boatmen, business men, summer boarders, aldermen, policemen, old, young, ignorant and intelligent men—and found that the general feeling was one of dissatisfaction at the manner in which the company attempts to fulfil the obligations expected of it. All these views, together with their full scope of reasoning and deduction, are fairly illustrated in the foregoing conversations, as well as the prevailing opinion that the company is a great greedy monopoly, a soulless corporation, making money "hand over fist" for its stockholders and utterly heartless toward its patrons. This, of course, is not to be wondered at, considering that, even outside of Staten Island, strong prejudices exist against corporate associations, coupled with the invariable belief that they are making money on a scale so rapid as almost to amount to robbery of that long-suffering, grumbling, tyrant-bestraddled, indignation-meeting-loving agglomeration of individuals which styles itself "the public."

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY was subsequently gleaned by the reporter from individuals who are officially well posted in the actual status of this fast-expiring association of corporators.

Among others who were called upon was Mr. Louis H. Meyer, of 21 Nassau street, the receiver of the company in the present action, appointed under the order of the Supreme Court. Mr. Meyer was found busily engaged at his office, and expressed the utmost readiness to give any facts he knew of in relation to his trust that would serve to unravel the question which so befogs all who go down to Staten Island in this ferry company's ships. He said that the forthcoming sale was a bona fide proceeding forced upon the company by its creditors, the mortgagees, who were tired of waiting longer for the return of the moneys they had invested. The action is brought by Ockershausen & Kreischer, as holders of first mortgage bonds of the company, against the corporation itself and George Law, defendants. George Law is a special mortgagee of the company to the extent of about fifty thousand dollars, and is made a co-defendant so as to cover for the benefit of the plaintiffs whatever assets may remain out of the property on which the bonds were issued, after his claim shall have been fully satisfied. He is, therefore, a technical and not an actual defendant. There have been two classes of bonds issued on first and second mortgages, and these cover very nearly perhaps the entire value of the company's assets.

Mr. Meyer's actual experience as receiver shows from its ferry and railroad operations, to average from $750 to $1,000 a day, say $30,000 per month. It has, in addition to its railroad and ferry franchises, the right to the entire water front between the upper quarantine landing and Vanderbilt landing; fifteen miles of single track railroad, with a small amount of rolling stock, comprising four locomotives, four tenders, eight passenger cars, six freight cars, with machine shops, &c.; four ferryboats—the Westfield, Middletown, Northfield and Josephine, on the New York station, and a fifth, the steamboat Maid of Perth, running between Tottenville, the terminus of the railroad and Perth Amboy, N. J., together with the necessary piers, bulkheads, docks and slips, and a four years' lease of the Whitehall slip ferry and considerable real estate in the vicinity of all the landing places of its vessels. Neither the boats nor the railroad are as well equipped as they should be, and the gross sum distributed in dividends annually does not reach $60,000 per year.

Mr. Meyer states that if the stockholders were to insure their stock they would not receive a cent in dividends. Last year the railroad was in such a poor state of operation that it had its turnout switches only at the extremities of the line, and as a consequence, if a train started from the Vanderbilt Landing station no train could leave Tottenville coming north until the south bound train had reached its destination. This year, by dint of exertion, the company has managed to build a turn-out about the middle of the length of the route, and now trains may pass at that point.

In reply to the question whether he thought the sale would realize $1,000,000 for the entire property of the concern and its franchises Mr. Meyer said he thought that not more than and perhaps not that, could be obtained for it. He knew there was a great deal of talk about the enormous profits of this line; but it was an easy matter for half a dozen or a dozen men whom he could name, residing on Staten Island, to subscribe half a million or even a million of dollars to experiment with, and they will have a fair opportunity to compete at the sale Tuesday next. Let them do so, and if they can run the road and ferry to better advantage than it is at present done, and make this large profit they talk so freely about they will be doing a good thing for themselves and for the community likewise. He found, in his present capacity, that he was sometimes a little straightened to find ways of paying the running debts and working expenses out of the receipts. The Westfield disaster alone, outside of the liability for personal damages incurred, cost the company $30,000 in cash. Since he has had charge as receiver he has directed and had everything put in good and safe condition, and was well assured that there is no gold mine in the operation of the concern.

Mr. Meyer is himself a resident of Staten Island, and confesses to having felt the

as at present maintained, and was well aware of the amount of dissatisfaction regarding it. Said he:—"Only a few days ago I was talking with a friend on board one of the boats, and he told me he knew of a man who said the stock was worth fifty cents on the dollar. Now it so happens that being a resident of the island, and desiring to see things prosper about it, I invested in a little of the company's stock and have got it yet, and if there is any man about who is going fifty cents on the dollar I am a seller at once. The fact is the bondholders of this road have been waiting long enough for their money, and, as it is not forthcoming, they want to get out of it. Some of these bonds are held in Europe, and, finding nothing accruing, people are very naturally becoming anxious to get clear of them; and this sale is the result.

Mr. Ruggles, the referee in the action, expressed substantially the same opinion as did other gentlemen connected with the proceeding, and there is very little reason to suppose that the sale is any other than a perfectly legitimate and necessary remedy for the creditors of the company. The will be in no wise affected by this sale, as in any event the mortgage bondholders have legally the prior claim to indemnification, resting upon the priority of date of their contract with the company. The victims of the explosion only entered upon the contract which makes the company liable for compensation for their injuries at the time when they paid the proper fare and went on board the ill-fated steamer, whereas the company's contract to pay and redeem these bonds existed years previously. The proceeds of the sale will be paid into Court, over and above the amount necessary to satisfy the liabilities to the bondholders, if there should be any such excess of proceeds. It is, of course, a hard case for the sufferers by that dreadful calamity; but it is, nevertheless, justice, though, from it requires more than the average amount of philosophy to become convinced of the fact.

THE STANDPOINT OF THE MASSES,

The residents of Staten Island express a general desire to see the Union or some other of the great prompt ferry companies take hold of the Staten Island line, believing that a liberal effort for a few years to accommodate the public will largely increase the population of the island, make it convenient and consequently populous as a place of residence, and as a consequence build up a patronage for the new corporation which in a few years would prove a very profitable investment.

One of the Complaints.

NEW YORK, August 22, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

DEAR SIR—The long pent-up indignation of Staten Islanders at the disregard manifested by the Staten Island Ferry Company for their interests is beginning to give premonitory symptoms of an explosion, à la Westfield. It is a crying shame that on Sunday night our (?) last boat leaves for New York at eight o'clock, instead of ten o'clock, as on other evenings, when less needed. Now, what we want to get at is, whether the boats of the above soulless corporation were created for the people or the people for the boats? By publicly answering this question you will enlighten

MANY ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Christian Missionary Effort Impeded—The Fervor of the Lady Evangelists Cooling Off—American Naval Cruize—Parliamentary Work—Health Report—The Sugar Crop and Commerce.

HONOLULU, August 1, 1872.

The missionary packet Morning Star left on the 3d of July for the mission station in Micronesia. No new missionary material went forward for the prosecution of the work, the difficulty being to find women who were willing to become wives of the men who were desirous of going out. I can imagine that the lives of these missionaries must be one of self-denial and very monotonous, particularly for the wives. This being away from the busy world for twelve months without even a hint of what may be going on outside of one's coral island is particularly trying at this stage of the world's history.

UNITED STATES NAVAL CRUISE.

The United States ship Narragansett also sailed for a cruise through the groups to the westward and southward on the 6th of July. It is well that the United States government is alive to the necessity of keeping vessels cruising among these islands. A vast deal of information is to be collected that will be very valuable to the merchant marine, while the periodical visits of ships-of-war will give the untutored savage a wholesome regard for the American people and their interests.

HEALTH REPORT.

The smallpox still lingers with us, although its ravages have been kept well under by the prompt and efficient measures of the Board of Health. Thirty-five cases have been reported and isolated. It is now well established that the disease was brought here by the steamer Nebraska, and a suit is now pending in admiralty with a view to make the steamer responsible for the expenses of the Board of Health. The Captain and Surgeon of the ship were before the Custom House and Court authorities with a view to clear the ship; but, unfortunately, evidence is coming in every day which fastens upon the ship the responsibility. The New Zealand authorities are also awaiting her return to libel her for carrying the disease to their ports. Bonds have been given by the steamer's agents here amounting to $10,000, to make good any awards made by our Courts.

PARLIAMENTARY PROGRESS.

The Legislative Assembly was prorogued on the 29th of July, after a session of seventy-five days. His Majesty the King being unwell the Chancellor received a commission authorizing him to dismiss the Assembly. An address was delivered, thanking the members for their Parliamentary attention and care for the rights of the people and the prerogatives of the Crown.

Among the acts passed by this Assembly is one making liquor dealers responsible in damages for injuries inflicted by persons to whom they sell liquor. It is framed after the Ohio law, and has met the approval of the King. A resolution awarding compensation to American shipowners whose vessels brought Hawaiian seamen to this port from the Arctic Ocean after the disaster of 1871 has also passed. Fifty cents a day is to be allowed for each person for every day they were on board of the rescuing vessel. This is not quite so liberal as the United States were to Hawaiian shipowners for the rescue of American seamen, but it is a just and proper allowance.

The Appropriation bill for expenses for the coming two years foots up $1,130,244, or about three hundred thousand dollars over the estimated revenue for the same period. To make good the deficiency an act was passed authorizing a loan of $250,000. This is the commencement of a debt that will eventually place the kingdom at the mercy of its bondholders.

CROPS AND TRADE.

The sugar crop is not up to expectations, and in fact not up to the figures of last year, if, indeed, of the year before. This is to be accounted for by the long drought in the opening months of the year. Trade is below par; very few goods being disposed of, even through the auction rooms, in former years a never-failing method of raising funds in a dull market.

FATALITIES IN WESTCHESTER.

At Yonkers, Westchester county, yesterday, Coroner Smith held an inquest on the remains of Mrs. Sophia Davis, an elderly lady, whose death was occasioned by falling into a well on the premises of her son-in-law, with whom she resided in Palisade avenue. It seems that the deceased had only been absent from the house a few minutes, when she was missed by her relatives, who, on looking through the grounds, found that she had fallen into an imperfectly guarded well. When taken out life was found to be extinct. A verdict was rendered accordingly. Deceased was nearly ninety years old.

The same official also held an inquest at Sing Sing on the body of a colored man named Hiram Ransom, who was accidentally drowned on Friday in a mill pond at Brandreth's Bridge. Deceased was engaged pulling out some old timbers which had fallen from the bridge, when he lost his balance, and, falling head foremost, stuck fast in the mud at the bottom of the pond. When extricated he was a corpse.

On Friday the mutilated remains of an unknown man, dressed in the garb of a laborer, were found on the Hudson River Railroad, near Peekskill, having evidently been run over by a train during the previous night. Nothing was found on the body which could lead to its identity. Coroner Smith held an inquest, which resulted in a verdict of accidental death being rendered.

GALLANT TOM WILLIAMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I witnessed last evening one of the most gallant actions I have seen for some time, the more so as the principal actor was a young gentleman of about eighteen years old. There were a carriage and a pair of horses standing a little way up Bond street from Broadway, with one occupant (a lady), and no driver in attendance, when an alarm of fire was sounded. On the approach of a fire engine the horses started at full speed for Broadway, and, before I could understand what was the matter, a young gentleman, seeing the danger of horses, carriage and occupant, rushed to the rescue of the fair individual and succeeded in stopping the horses after one and himself had fallen. The coachman then came up and hurriedly drove off, and no one as much as turned round to thank this gallant fellow. The probabilities are that both horses and occupant would have been killed. On some gentleman inquiring his name, &c., he said, "No more, sir, but Tom Williams, of Staten Island, at your service."

AUGUST 24, 1872. AN EYE WITNESS.

LONG BRANCH.

THE GAY SEASON AT ITS HEIGHT.

How the Belles of the Season While Away the Time—Match-Making Mammas and Marriageable Daughters—Scenes in the Hotels, on the Beach and in the Water—Stampede of the Politicians—Gossip About the President.

LONG BRANCH, August 24, 1872.

Though the season at Long Branch is now far advanced and the close of the heated term rapidly approaching, there is as yet no visible diminution in the number of aristocratic visitors who are flocking to this beautiful seaside resort. Notwithstanding the counter attractions of Saratoga and its springs and Newport, which is supposed to be the favorite Summer home of the élite, the Branch still maintains the reputation of being at once the most fashionable and the most cosmopolitan of the watering places of the Continent. There are many reasons why this should be so. The near proximity of its situation to the Empire City and Philadelphia, its incomparable surf, its long-established reputation, and the fact that the President and head of the nation lives here, as the great lion of the place, all constitute claims to public favor which no other watering place possesses.

On arriving at the railroad depot, when you take your first look at the Branch you would, in the first instance, be likely to be disappointed with the view. A long row of frame cottages, fronting upon the sandy shore, upon which the waves eternally beat, with here and there the flagstaff of a hotel flowing to the breeze, would lead you to believe that you had got into a straggling country village. On a nearer approach all such ideas will be agreeably dispelled. The cottages assume a gayer appearance, the lawns fronting the ocean present a more charming aspect, and the evidences of fashionable society, in the shape of aristocratic carriages, which momentarily dash by filled with richly dressed ladies, will force you to retract your first hastily formed impression. The numerous great hotels and boarding houses swarm with life, the surf is crowded with bathers the lawn with spectators, and the Summer houses with lovers, and on every side the evidences of life and fun and enjoyment are visible.

At the commencement of the present season croakers predicted that the Branch would lose caste, and that the attendance would greatly fall off. The reverse has been the case. Long Branch has never had a more successful Summer; the leading hotels have, in many instances, been unable to accommodate their guests, so great has been the rush, and every cottage and boarding house which had room to spare has been filled to overflowing. The visitors have come from every part of the Union—North, South, East and West—the Branch in particular seeming to be to the Southern people what Paris is to Americans in general. Dark-eyed haughty belles, stately dowagers and knightly gentlemen, the representatives of a cause that is lost and a chivalry that is decaying, meet in bonds of amity and peace with their ancient enemies; the Louisianian, the Carolinian and the Yankee cordially unite in "shaking hands across the bloody chasm," and in a spirit of mutual forbearance and forgiveness drown all bitter memories of the past in the happiness and enjoyment of the present. Prominent among the representatives of Southern wealth and fashion have been the visitors from Texas—splendid-looking fellows, with hardy look, eagle eye and manly form—polished gentlemen, though exposed to ordeals in their wild frontier State which would draw the gentility and good breeding out of most men of an ordinary mould. They are decided favorites with the young ladies of the romantic school, and many a sly flirtation takes place in the moonlight under the verandah or along the beach, in which they figure as principals and in which muslin and broadcloth happily mingle together.

One great advantage which a watering place possesses over a city is the habit it teaches lazy people of rising early. Those who will tear themselves from their beds about sunrise will be amply rewarded for the sacrifice. At that time the air is deliciously cool, the dew of the night still lies upon the grass, and the view seawards, as the rising sun tints the waves with all the colors of the rainbow, is lovely in the extreme. The white masts of the schooners stand out in the imperfect light like sentinels of the sea, while every now and then a pleasure boat, filled with a group of early risers, will dart out to inhale the invigorating breezes of Old Ocean. This is the hour par excellence for a delightful bath—the water is of the proper temperature, the waves are neither too high nor too low, and the cool wind of the morning is an admirable bracer for the balance of the day. Very few stir abroad at this early hour, but by six o'clock groups begin to pour towards the beach, the ladies in thin costume of simple white, looking perfectly bewitching, a fact of which their attendant cavaliers seem to be fully aware. In a few minutes the ladies reach the bathing boxes, and after an interval emerge completely metamorphosed. Part of the luxurious heads of hair have for the time been carefully laid aside; the balance has been gathered into a tight knot; the little bare feet are encased in tiny slippers, and a bathing costume is loosely drawn around the form,

Leaving every beauty free
To sink or swell as Heaven pleases.

An hour's tossing in the waves gives everyone a splendid appetite for breakfast, and on the return to the hotel the morning meal is eaten with a zest to which the city belle while in the city is an entire stranger.

The hour between bathing and dinner is the most dreary part of the day, and the worst qualities of human nature develop themselves in the interval. It is too hot to boat, too hot to ride, the children are peevish and their mammas unusually cross; servants are rebellious, hotel clerks ill tempered and colored waiters overbearing. There is nothing left for the women to do but discuss the fashions, and the dresses of rivals are criticised with savage severity, while the sterner part of the population crowd the bar-rooms and discuss the merits of Grant and Greeley with a degree of spirit which, under other circumstances, would seem wholly unnecessary. The consumption of brandy punches, sherry cobblers and mint juleps is enormous, the bartender standing out a picture of happiness in the midst of the surrounding misery. At the risk of being slighted by their beaux, fashionable young ladies will appear in the plainest dishabille, the quantity of muslin dresses they spoil in a day being enough to make the fortune of the Long Branch laundresses. Nobby young men, who are the very glass of fashion and the mould of form, in the evening lazily recline upon lounges, endeavoring to smoke cigarettes; but the effort is too much. The cigarettes are thrown away, and they look the very picture of helpless imbecility.

At four o'clock matters begin to wake up a little, the ladies recover their temper and hurry off to dress for the early dinner, the gents throw off their lethargy and exchange their linen suits for costumes of a more conventional gentility, the air is becoming gradually cooler and life becomes much more enjoyable. Full dress is not much affected at the hotels at the Branch, but now and then a fashionable belle who cannot consent to conceal the glowing beauties of her form will appear in all the unadorned beauty of low neck and short sleeves, the observed of all observers. A dining room at the West End or the Ocean House is an interesting study. Here may be seen every type of beauty and ugliness—the brilliant brunette and the soft-eyed blonde, "the fair, the dark, the stout, the tall"—young girls just on the verge of womanhood and young ladies who cling desperately to a girlhood which is rapidly passing away. In looking over the dining room at the West End Hotel yesterday I saw many such, the two kind being frequently members of the same family. The elder sister, whose beauty is fading, will look with envy upon the younger, whose charms are just in the bud, and recalls with a pang of bitter regret the days when she, too, was young and beautiful. Here may be seen a widow lady and her three marriageable daughters, who should have long since been matrons, but who still believe in the potency of their charms, and look out for the coming man with more money than brains, who will rescue them from a life of bitter humiliation and constant misery. They have haunted the various watering places for years, but he has not come yet. Sometimes a golden chance is thrown in their way, but a younger and fairer rival carries off the prize from under their very eyes, and the hopes which are fondly raised are suddenly dashed to the ground. They still laugh and chat gaily as of yore, but a cold feeling gathers about the heart when the thought comes on that, neither cosmetics, false hair nor false teeth will be able to long stem off the rigors of approaching age. There are many of these Dalrymple girls in the world. They have come to be inseparable from watering places, and it is sad to witness how many natures have been hopelessly soured, who if they had worked out their manifest destiny would have made loving wives and happy mothers.

At five o'clock life at the Branch is again in full blast. Groups gather upon the piazzas of the cottages and hotels to look out for the last arrivals by the evening train, the leading belles, queens of beauty and of fashion, anxiously waiting to see will some new star come upon the scene to supplant them, the ladies, who want to get married, wondering will fate direct the wandering steps of some unhappy victim who might prove an eligible match to their vicinity. The omnibuses roll up, empty their loads, and everything is quiet again, save when the sound of happy greeting and smothered kisses is heard from lovers who have been separated from each other for weeks. The beach again becomes crowded as the shades of evening begin to fall, and as if by mutual arrangement, it is discovered that it is not good for man (or woman either) to be alone, and parties of two can be seen promenading far into the night. The amount of flirtation carried on is incredible, and while some of the love passages end just where they began, others bear better fruit, and the courtship of the watering-place in the Summer ripens into an engagement in the Autumn and a marriage in the Winter. In the spacious parlors of the West End, and on the verandah, those who do not care to roam by the "sad sea waves" form themselves into groups.

Soft eyes looked love to eyes that spake again, and song and story while away the long Summer evening. The gentlemen who do not care for ladies' society stroll across to John Chamberlain's luxurious club house whose doors are "ever open to the stranger," and over cold chicken and champagne discuss the forthcoming races, the sport at Saratoga, the beauties at the Branch and other kindred topics which fast young men usually indulge in.

By midnight most people have retired to bed; those who are fortunate enough to have engaged rooms early being well accommodated, while the unfortunate wights who arrived late have to content themselves with cells large enough to hold a small bed, in which you sit and use your washstand as a writing desk. Such is a day's life at the Branch, and it is the same at all other great watering places.

The presence of General Grant is the great magnet of attraction for most people, and no day passes but he has crowds of callers. He has the reputation of being a good listener, and he must be possessed of considerable patience to give an ear to all who wish to talk to him. He has won golden opinions from the pious at the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting, and it is not too much to say that his visit to the tents of the godly has secured the Methodist vote beyond the shadow of a doubt. He will remain here until the close of the season, and will then return to his arduous duties in Washington, which he is to perform for four years longer, if Greeley does not relieve him of the task.

Very few political celebrities remain here now; they have all departed, and others will soon follow them. In a few weeks the beach will be desolate, the corridors of the hotels will be deserted, the aristocratic turnouts will have disappeared, and the gay crowd who have made the Branch attractive and lively

Will fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And silently steal away.

FORGERY IN JERSEY CITY.

A man giving the name of Roger E. Boyle was arrested in Jersey City yesterday on the charge of presenting a check of $400 for payment on the Hudson County Bank, which was drawn by D. W. Oliver, of Bayonne, and endorsed by Mr. B. F. Woolsey. The teller suspecting a fraud refused to pay the amount and the stanger was arrested. It was then discovered that the signature was a forgery. The accused is a respectable looking man, but his conduct was so strange that there are grave doubts of his sanity. He is a native of England, and resides in Bayonne. A card found on his person bore the name of a nymph in Greene street, New York.

THE IMPORTS OF THE WEEK.

WALL STREET,
SATURDAY, August 24—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was firm and flour steady. The cotton market was quiet and unchanged.

THE COTTON MOVEMENT.

The receipts of cotton at all the ports for the week were 3,228 bales, against 2,472 bales the previous week. The total receipts since September 1, 1871, are 2,716,696 bales, against 4,002,461 bales for the corresponding period of previous year, showing a decrease in the present crop of 1,285,765 bales. The exports from all the ports for the week were 5,570 bales, against 14,888 bales at same date last year. The total exports for the expired portion of the cotton year are 1,954,439 bales, against 3,152,538 bales for the same time last year. The stock at all the ports is 57,273 bales, against 105,829 bales for the same date in 1871.

THE IMPORTS OF THE WEEK.

The total imports at this port during the past week were $9,162,526, representing $4,140,711 of dry goods and $5,021,815 of general merchandise.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

The weekly statement of the associated banks is quite unfavorable, owing to an impairment of the surplus reserve to the extent of about a million and a half of dollars. The heavy movement of currency to the West in connection with the Chicago wheat "corner," and the natural demand for money at this season in the rural districts are reflected in a reduction of over nine millions in the deposits. As the loss in legal tenders is only about a million and a half, and the contraction in loans about three and a quarter millions, the difference must have been shipped in national bank notes. A decrease in specie of two millions is a relic of the futile "bull" speculation in gold when the cliques were holding the coin off the market. The gold which they have since returned to the banks makes little or no show in the present week's averages, but will appear in all its volume next week, doubtless. Hence the specie average is a rising average, and the banks are really stronger than the analysis of their statement makes them out to be, especially as the movement of currency has greatly abated with the fall in the price of wheat. It was the greater consideration paid to these latter facts rather than to the absolute statement itself that explains the firmness of the stock market after so bad an exhibit. Indeed, with the fall in the price of wheat and with the great accumulation of grain in Chicago, it would not be surprising if the further movement of money, at least in an active degree, should be deferred until much later in the season, or until the farmers have got accustomed to the lower prices prevalent since the failure of the wheat "corner." The statement compares with its predecessor as follows:

	August 17.	August 24.
Loans	$295,802,800	$292,428,600
Specie	20,399,300	18,207,200
Circulation	27,290,600	27,371,700
Deposits	235,757,600	226,449,300
Legal tenders	52,533,400	50,869,000

—The changes being in detail as follows:—

Decrease in loans	$3,374,200
Decrease in specie	2,192,100
Increase in circulation	81,100
Decrease in deposits	9,308,300
Decrease in legal tenders	1,664,400

An analysis of the above figures shows that the banks now hold as surplus reserve $5,620,950—a decrease for the week of $1,549,700.

DECLINE IN GOLD—113½ a 112⅝.

The reversal of the speculative sentiment of the Gold Room was still more conspicuous to-day, and the conversion of "bulls" to "bears" went on so rapidly that the price declined from 113½ to 112⅝. The closing dealings were at 112¾. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	113½	12 M.	113
10:08 A. M.	113⅜	1 P. M.	112⅞
10:09 A. M.	113¼	2 P. M.	112⅞

11:02 A. M.	112⅞	4 P. M.	112⅝ a 112¾

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from 2 to 4 per cent for carrying. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$74,763,000
Gold balances	2,909,559
Currency balances	3,243,392

GOVERNMENTS LOWER.

The decline in gold wrought a corresponding decline in government bonds, which went off to the lowest figures recorded since last Spring. The market was dull at the decline and closed as follows:—United States currency sixes, 112¾ a 113; do. do. sixes, 1881, registered, 114½ a 115; do. do., coupon, 116⅝ a 116⅞; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 114⅝ a 114⅞; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 114⅝ a 114⅞; do. do., 1864, do., do., 114⅝ a 114⅞; do. do., 1865, do., do., 115 a 115¼; do. do., registered, January and July, 113⅝ a 114; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 113½ a 113¾; do. do., 1867, do., do., 114½ a 114¾; do. do., 1868, do., do., 113⅞ a 114⅛; do. ten-forties, registered, 108⅝ a 109; do. do., coupon, 111¾ a 111⅞; do. fives of 1881, registered, 111¾ a 112¼; do. do. do., coupon, 111¾ a 112¼.

MONEY 3 A 5 PER CENT.

The bank statement induced at first a firmer feeling in money as contrasted with the close last evening, and the earlier business of the afternoon was on the basis of 4 a 5 per cent. But a better supply was developed as the afternoon wore on, and transactions occurred at as low as 3 per cent. It would be fairest, however, to quote money as worth just about 4 per cent on call and in good demand. Paper was unchanged at 8 per cent discount for prime names.

ADVANCE IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The decline in gold induced a heavy demand for bills on Europe, and the Exchange place brokers had an unusually lively Saturday of it. In addition to new business there were a good many orders standing on the books, which came within the possibility of execution by the sudden fall in gold. The advance in rates was fully one quarter per cent and sales were reported at a further advance. The market left off strong on the basis of 109 a 109¼ for prime bankers' sixty day sterling and 109¾ a 109⅞ for sight bills.

STOCKS STEADY, DULL AND FIRM.

The stock market was better to the extent of an average of just about a quarter per cent, taking the general list, but quiet and dull. Erie was unsettled and weak in sympathy with the London market. The first sales were at 48, whence a slow decline to 46 ensued, the stock rallying to 46⅝ temporarily, but closing finally at 46¼.

The Southern State bonds were neglected. Tennessees were steadier and new South Carolinas weak and ½ per cent lower.

We offer for sale a limited amount of the Leavenworth, Atchison and Northwestern Railroad Company's First Mortgage Seven Per Cent Bonds, interest guaranteed by the Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri.

The Bonds are due October 1, 1889; interest payable April 1 and October 1 at the National Bank of Commerce. Whole amount of the loan $500,000.

The road runs from Leavenworth to Atchison, Kansas, 21 155-1000 miles, and is leased to the Pacific Railroad of Missouri until December 31, 1889. By the terms of this lease the Leavenworth, Atchison and Northwestern Railroad receives 45 per cent of the gross earnings, but never less than $42,500 per annum. THE JERSEY BIRMINGHAM.

The Industrial Exhibition in Newark an Assumed Success—Slow-Coach Manufacturers—The Machinery Department.

The Newark Industrial Exhibition is now fairly on its legs, and it may even be regarded as an assured success as a show of really creditable home productions. Whether it will prove equally successful in a financial light is still, of course, problematical; though everything goes to show that such will be the result. From the variety and display of goods now on exhibition, saying nothing of more which are to come, it is truth to say that Newark has ample reason to be proud of her industrial superiority over her sister cities in the Union, great or little. Indeed, it is claimed by those who profess to be instructed on the subject that there is no city in the world which could equal, let alone excel, Newark in the number as well as in the quality and finish of the articles displayed. This is saying a great deal; but it is saying no more than the truth if those who profess to be industrial exhibition experts are correct in their statements. Although the exhibition has been opened four full days, the exhibitors have not yet got their goods in position. The display in the main building is very nearly finished, but in the machine department, though much has been done in the last few days and now there is some attraction there, the arrangements will not be completed before the middle of the coming week. In conversation with one of the committee yesterday, the HERALD reporter was informed that manufacturers who before the opening declared the enterprise would be a fizzle and that the idea was bosh are now begging to be admitted into the large family of exhibitors. Others have held back for the very narrow-minded season that their patterns and designs might be stolen by rival tradesmen. The building cost for its improvement and addition about five thousand dollars, considerably less than was anticipated. The value of the goods in the Rink is estimated at about a quarter of a million dollars. One jewelry firm alone exhibits over one hundred thousand dollars' worth of goods. The art gallery forms an amusing side show which it is best not to criticise. Connoisseurs will at least admit that Newark has the ambition, if she has not the talent, to excel in the fine arts as well as in the mechanical arts.

The attendance on Friday evening, thanks to the cool weather, was quite gratifying to the management, as was likewise the case last evening. During the evening a fine brass band played an enjoyable programme. Thus far the number of visitors from cities outside of Newark or States outside of Jersey has been extremely limited. Possibly people are hanging back until the show is entirely complete.

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

Wm. Hogan was overcome by the heat in Hudson avenue yesterday and removed to the hospital.

Four hundred and fifty-nine people were taken into custody by the police during the past week.

Tax Collector Burroughs reports having received taxes last week amounting in the aggregate to $43,303 02.

Charles Dugan, residing in Van Brunt street, was overcome with the heat in Clinton avenue yesterday afternoon and removed to the hospital.

Peter McNulty, residing at 369 Hudson avenue, was sunstruck at the corner of Court and State streets yesterday afternoon and taken to the Hospital.

Hugh Maloney, a conductor on the Flatbush avenue car line, was thrown from a car as it was turning the corner at the junction of Fulton and Flatbush avenues yesterday, and severely injured. He was taken to the hospital.

Seven hundred dollars' worth of hams were destroyed by fire yesterday forenoon at the pork packing establishment of Joseph Lockitt & Co., Raymond street, near Myrtle avenue. The fire originated in the smoke house. Fully insured.

A case which promises to be of considerable interest has just appeared in Justice Delmar's Court, in the shape of a warrant issued for the arrest of a liquor dealer named William Nelson. The day before yesterday the Justice issued a warrant on the complaint of Ann Assler, who charges Nelson with having violated section 20 of the Excise law by selling liquor to her husband, who is a habitual drunkard, after she had notified him not to do so.

Mrs. Edward Perry and Mrs. Russel, residing in tenement house, 28 Carroll street, were arraigned yesterday before Justice Delmar, on charge of feloniously assaulting a Mrs. Nagle, whose injuries are of a very serious nature. The parties dwelt beneath the same roof and frequently quarreled because of the taunts which the victim, Nagle, cast at her assailants. Finally, on Friday night the prisoners beat her in a shocking manner, so as to necessitate her removal to hospital. The Court committed them to await the result of the injuries inflicted on Mrs. Nagle. Mrs. Perry is the wife of Edward Perry, the river thief, who shot John Hayes, watchman at Harbeck's stores two years ago. Perry is undergoing imprisonment for life in the Auburn State Prison.

Constable John Adams, of East New York, was examined before Justice Walsh yesterday on a charge of assaulting ex-Justice Seaman. He was fined $50 for the offence. It appears that Mrs. Adams told her husband that the complainant had called her a vile name. This so enraged the constable that he determined to punish the ex-Justice. Accordingly Mr. and Mrs. Adams repaired in consort to the domicile of Mr. Seaman one night after the latter had retired to bed and summoned him to come down stairs into the hallway. As soon as their victim put in an appearance John seized hold of the late wearer of the judicial ermine of East New York and retained a strong grip of his arm while she plied the sharp lash of a heavy English riding whip about His "ex-Honor's" head and shoulders. Mr. Seaman emphatically denied having ever applied the language alleged in speaking of his fair assailant.

KINGS COUNTY SURROGATE'S COURT.

Before William D. Veeder, Surrogate.

The wills of George Paddon and Edward Cummings, both of the city of Brooklyn, were proved this week.

Letters of administration were granted in the estates of the following named deceased persons, viz., Alwine Fuhrer, Thomas McCormick, Thomas Morris, Frederick Stertefeldt, Louisa M. Bryce, Charles Bohomon, known as Charles Alex. Bohomon Purnell, all of the city of Brooklyn.

In the will of Elizabeth Canavan presented for probate appears the following legacies:—$400 to the School of the Assumption, corner of York and Pearl streets, $200 to the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum of Brooklyn, $100 to the House of the Good Shepherd, $200 to St. Peter's Hospital, $200 to the Little Sisters of the Poor.

FIRE IN TRENTON.

A fire broke out at an early hour yesterday morning in the extensive lumber yard of Fish & Green, on the bank of the canal, in Trenton. By great exertions on the part of the Fire Department the flames were soon subdued. In the stable where the fire originated were two teams of mules and a horse. Of these one team was burned. The loss is about $2,000; insured for $20,000.

IMMORAL PUBLICATIONS.

Charge of Dealing in Obscene Literature.

Charles Mackay, who has a place of business at 88 Centre street and resides in New Jersey, was brought up yesterday in the United States Court, before Commissioner Osborn, and charged with dealing in obscene books and pictures by sending them through the mail.

General Davies, United States Assistant District Attorney, attended on behalf of the prosecution.

The prisoner, who had only just been arrested, was not represented by counsel.

Commissioner Osborn, addressing the prisoner, said:—You are charged with making use of the United States mails for the transmission of obscene literature.

The Prisoner—I am not guilty.

The Commissioner—Do you want an examination?

The Prisoner—Yes.

The Commissioner—You wish to consult a lawyer?

The Prisoner—I do.

General Davies—I want this man and all others who are charged with a similar offence to be held under $10,000 bail. I regret to say that this species of crime is growing in the city, and I am determined, as far as the law allows me, to repress and punish it to the fullest extent. It is a debasing crime, one for which no punishment is too severe—no bail too heavy. I must ask two good sureties in $10,000.

The prisoner again asserted his innocence of the charge, and was understood to say that the bail was too heavy.

The Commissioner—That is a matter that your lawyer can discuss when the question of bail comes to be argued.

The prisoner seemed disposed to talk much.

The Commissioner—I will hear any statement you desire to make.

The Prisoner—I have been dealing in books at 88 Centre street for some ten or eleven years, but I have not dealt in obscene books.

The Commissioner—We have the evidence of a man who has been working up this case for some time; and the evidence which he has furnished, and upon which we think we can rely, goes to fasten this charge upon you. This is a disgraceful offence, and, if it be proved that you have committed it, you should be punished to the full extent of the law. I have been informed that these disgusting publications have been sent into some of our seminaries. It is time that this degrading crime should be stopped. From the evidence presented to me through the District Attorney I must hold you in the bail he requires until you have an opportunity of an examination.

The prisoner was then remanded to jail. His examination was fixed for Tuesday next. After the prisoner had been removed upon commitment Mr. Ned Price appeared and asked the Commissioner if he had jurisdiction of an offence of this kind.

The Commissioner replied by showing counsel the law of 1864, which the counsel read, and answered his own question by saying "yes," and retired.

The arrest of the prisoner at 88 Centre street and the seizure of a quantity of obscene goods at the same place were made by Deputy Marshals D. H. Crowley and John Robinson.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT

The Watch Returns—Robbing Pretty Waiter Girls—Stabbed with a Knife—A Notorious Shoplifter Arrested.

There were fifty prisoners disposed of by Justice Ledwith at the above Court yesterday morning, the majority of whom were charged with minor offences, such as intoxication and disorderly conduct, brought on by imbibing too much of the ardent. Thirty-three of these were males and seventeen females. Twenty were arrested for intoxication, eleven for being drunk and disorderly, ten for disorderly conduct, three for petit larceny, two for grand larceny, one for felonious assault and one for reckless driving. Thirty-seven of these were locked up and thirteen discharged.

ROBBING PRETTY WAITER GIRLS.

Edward Kingsley, a brunette, with curly hair, hailing from Philadelphia, was arrested Friday afternoon by Detective Henderson, of the Fifteenth precinct, on complaint of Minnie Rich and Mabel Clifton, residing at 51 Bleecker street. The complainants are pretty waiter girls, employed at the Canterbury Saloon, on Broadway. They charge that while absent from their room Thursday afternoon the prisoner entered and carried off their costumes. He denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

STABBED WITH A KNIFE.

John Ramsey, a colored individual, residing at 57 Thompson street, is a notorious and dangerous character when under the influence of liquor, in consequence of which he spends the greater portion of his time on the Island or in the Jefferson Market Prison. Thursday evening he called on a colored female named Fannie Wright, at 22 Clark street, the latter being four months in the family way. Ramsey being under the influence of liquor, kicked the woman in the stomach. The latter in order to defend herself took a knife from her pocket and stabbed Ramsey twice in the arm with it. Ramsey, after being wounded, ran into the street and, securing the services of Officer Calhoun, of the Eighth precinct, caused the woman's arrest. Yesterday morning upon appearing at Court the woman was scarcely able to stand from the effects of the kick administered by Ramsey. Counter complaints were preferred and both parties were committed to answer charges of assault.

A NOTORIOUS SHOPLIFTER ARRESTED.

Mary Ann Slavin, twenty-three years of age, dressed in a widow's garb and claiming to reside on Staten Island, was arrested Friday afternoon in Harris Wills' store, 259 Sixth avenue, by Officer Robinson, of the Twenty-ninth precinct, on a charge of shoplifting. One of the saleswomen in the store testified that the prisoner came into the store and desired to look at some samples of lace. While examining them she detected her in the act of concealing two pieces under her shawl. The officer being called she dropped the lace at her feet, where it was found. The prisoner is known under the aliases of Ellen Kelly and Mary Ann Dooley, and has just come from Blackwell's Island, where she served a sentence of two years for a similar offence. She has also served two terms in the New Jersey State Prison for offences committed in that State. She denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

GUILTY BURGLARS CAGED.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 24, 1872.

Henry Tilghman, Henry Johnson and Henry Thomas, negroes, were arrested yesterday charged with committing a burglary at the house of Job F. Angell, in North Providence, on Monday night, when Mrs. Angell was shot and her daughter severely beaten, and were arraigned this morning. They all pleaded guilty, and have been committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The Honors to the United States Fleet in British Waters.

The Visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the Fleet—Reception on Board the Flagship—General Sherman and Admiral Alden as Guests on Board the Royal Yacht—The Midshipman and the Marquis—Luncheon at Osborne House—Festivities at Southampton—The Ball on Board the Wabash—Brilliant Scenes in the Harbor of Cowes at Night.

UNITED STATES FLEET,
COWES, ISLE OF WIGHT, August 9, 1872.

The stay of the American fleet in British waters was without event until a friendly game was arranged. Cousin John made the first move and sent his Queen's pawn to the front. The Admiral then led out on the American side and despatched a pawn to meet him. This opened the way; John Bull followed up with his knights and the Prince himself, the Admiral receiving the friendly advance with his best men about him. John Bull then castled his queen in Osborne House, and the Admiral and his men moved on to the English side in return. Knight Schenck moved up from his Portman square, followed by a pampered pawn; Knight Sherman, of Atlanta, ranged alongside and a bishop (McIlvaine, of Ohio) pawned his watch and moved up. All the pieces then took each other (by the hand), the pawns waltzed off the board and thus ended the game in a pleasant draw.

VISIT OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

As you have no doubt had accounts of the visit of the Prince to the fleet, a few particulars and the subsequent festivities are left to be stated. The steam yacht Alberta, commanded by Prince Leiningen, brought the Prince and Princess, the Countess of Carmarthen and others from Osborn Pier to the anchorage of the fleet below Southampton. The Prince was dressed in plain clothes; the Princess was in white, with a broad blue sash and small bonnet.

A royal salute was fired by all the vessels and the yards manned. The English papers criticize the blue clothes of the American sailors in comparison with the white clothes of the Ariadne's men, but they seemed much more appropriate for the cool day, the Ariadne appearing to shiver from deck to truck.

The clouds and rings of smoke hid the Alberta from view. When it had cleared away the barge, with the royal standard, was seen pulling for the Brooklyn, where the royal party was received by Rear Admiral Alden, who escorted the Princess to the cabin. The Prince shook hands with all the officers, and several American citizens were presented—the Prince said "the more the better." After a lunch the royal visitors witnessed a fine drill at great guns, and then went on board the Wabash, accompanied by Admiral Alden. Before returning to the Isle of Wight the Alberta steamed past each vessel in the fleet, the Prince and Princess standing upon the upper deck bowing in return to the salutes of the officers and marine guards.

"THE ROYAL YACHT OF THE AMERICAN FLEET."

Soon afterwards the Admiral transferred his flag to the Wachusett, which beautiful little ship is called the "Royal yacht of the American fleet" by the English here. General Sherman, Ministers Schenck and Curtin, Colonel Audenried and the captains of the several vessels repaired on board, having been invited to dine with the Prince on the royal yacht Victoria-Albert at Cowes. The little ship hove up her anchor in racing time, the fiddler riding around on the capstan. She passed the Ariadne, which vessel was doing her best, with steam to spare, and the rapid pulsations of her iron heart could be felt as she kicked up her heels and soon left the English vessel far astern. At Cowes the party went on board the Royal yacht. Passing the Prince's barge General Sherman and Admiral Alden tossed oars to Royalty. Something seldom seen, a full General and a Rear Admiral tossing oars to anybody.

THE ROYAL YACHT

is a large and handsome vessel, her side is kept polished like ebony, with two lines of gilt scroll-work fore and aft; her boats are burnished blue. The interior fittings are very elegant, the entire after part of the vessel and a saloon on deck are the royal quarters; there are several chambers, or large state rooms, smoking room, parlors, &c., like a hotel. The officers' quarters are forward, and but little space is left for the crew, who are on board but three months in the year, however, and are mostly petty officers of the dock yard. She has two ninety inch cylinders, and has made the circuit of the Isle of Wight, a distance of sixty-two miles, in three hours and twenty minutes, keeping with the current, however, all the way, which can be done at change of tide.

SCENE IN THE HARBOR AT NIGHT.

The Queen's band played delightfully during the dinner and evening. After dark, which occurs at nine o'clock here, all the yachts and steamers in harbor burned lights and sent up rockets, the Sappho and Enchantress keeping rows of colored lights burning that reminded us of some of the New York theatres. At half-past ten, after the conclusion of the dinner and speeches, and when many were smoking upon the upper deck, a quiet signal was heard on board the Wachusett, and a number of men ran aloft on each mast and yard; each was smoking a cigar, enjoying the novelty of smoking aloft, and carried in his hand a long stick. At a signal of a rushing rocket the cigars were applied to the sticks and the ship burst into a blaze of blue lights below and aloft, from each yardarm, the jibboom end and the spankerboom. They burned for some time and produced a fine effect. When the Prince left the yacht to pull ashore she was illuminated from stem to stern with an immense number of purple and green lights, and thus gave the barge light to navigate in.

THE ADVENTURE OF A YANKEE MIDSHIPMAN.

An hour before a live Yankee midshipman, from the interior of Vermont, was sent alongside the royal yacht in charge of one of the boats for the Americans. Hearing the exhilarating and suggestive sound of popping champagne corks, he proposed to another midshipman that they should toss up who should go on board and join in the fun, the other remaining in charge of the boats. Vermont won, and immediately jumped up the side of the yacht and sauntered aft near the saloon and deck where the party was scattered about, smoking, talking and drinking champagne. The first one to address our friend was a Captain in the English navy, who asked him if he found the climate unpleasantly moist? Vermont replied that, on the contrary, it seemed to him dry, very dry, indeed. "Is it possible?" said the captain, and then, a light breaking upon him, he added, "Ah! ah! You will champagne with me?" Vermont said he wouldn't mind if he did, so they tossed a glass, which the captain assured him was fine dry Lac d'Or. Middy smacked his lips, and the captain, smiling, branched off to entertain others. His place was immediately supplied by another gentleman, who noticed the midshipman's isolated position. He asked him if he had had any champagne, and replied that he had, but they told him it was very dry, and he reckoned it was, as his mouth was quite parched, he didn't care if he drank something wet. The gentleman at once called for another bottle, and as they raised their glasses he said, "Mumm." Vermont said he wouldn't say anything about it, and drank it off in navy style. He asked the gentleman the names of different personages in the room, and finally said,

"WHO ARE YOU, ANYWAY?"

The gentleman said he was not much there; he was only a Duke (the Duke of St. Albans). Mid said, "Well, I'm not a Duke, but we're all sovereigns in the States, so we're not much out." Mr. Moran, the Secretary of Legation, then joining them, Mid asked, "Who is that young fellow with light hair, talking with General Sherman?" "That," said Mr. Moran, "is the Marquis of Lorne; I have known him since he was a boy." "Won't you introduce me?" said Mid. "I'll go speak to him," replied Mr. Moran, and he soon returned with the Marquis, presented the midshipman and left them together.

THE MIDDY AND THE MARQUIS.

"Well, Marquis, how do you feel?" said Vermont. The Marquis laughed heartily and said he felt well if he felt at all. He then asked the Mid if he had been offered any champagne. Mid said "Yes, he had, but quite a while ago," so they tipped glasses together. Vermont began a chat by saying, "Marquis, I suppose you've travelled pretty much all over Europe?" Yes, he had. "Been to Monaco?" Yes. The Marquis then entertained the Mid with anecdotes of travel and society; he had spoken of Duchesses and Lords and then said:—"The King of Belgium was saying to me the other day"—when Vermont interrupted him with "Hold up, Marquis, that is getting beyond me, when it comes to Kings and Princes I'm let out, I don't know those fellows."

The Marquis laughed and offered him a cigar. Mid said, "You Dukes smoke real Havanas, I suppose; but don't let me keep you all the time, Marquis, as there are lots of big guns around." The Marquis said he was satisfied if Midshipman was, who replied that he could stand any amount of it. "What's that fellow's name?" said Mid. "Leiningen." "What is he?" "A Prince." "Oh!" "I say, Marquis," said Vermont, "suppose you introduce me to the Prince of Wales." "All right." So off they went arm in arm to look for him, to the surprise of the "big guns" who frowned and nodded at him, but Mid. looked unconsciously into distance. The Prince had gone below and they could not find him, so the Marquis bade the Midshipman good evening and said he never would forget him. It is probable he will not. The last exploit of our friend was to bump into the Prince as he was going out the saloon door. "Beg your pardon, Prince," said he. "That's all right, youngster," said the Prince. Vermont now goes by the name of "Wet Mumm, or the Champagne Duke."

A VISIT TO OSBORN HOUSE.

The following day the same party embarked in the Wachusett for Osborn Pier, Isle of Wight, to partake of a luncheon at Osborn House, and afterwards to be presented to the Queen. General Sherman was a passenger on the Plymouth, which vessel saluted the Queen off Osborn, and after the presentation took the General to Gravesend, up the Thames. The party seemed to be much pleased with their visit to Osborn House. The ship returned to Southampton in her usual rapid manner, the band of the Wabash on board playing lively airs, and the yachts and steamers all dipping their colors to the little flag ship.

THE WACHUSETT

is the vessel in which Rear Admiral Alden recently went to Antwerp, a saving of coal being effected by using a small and fast steamer. She is looking remarkably well, having been recently much improved, and is a favorite. Her officers are:—Lieutenant Commander Thomas L. Swann, of Baltimore, commanding; Lieutenant Commanders, Albertus Barker and Jim Glidden, of Boston; Lieutenants, Wally Graham, Skip Arnold, Blivvins Bleecker, Fred Paine and Charley Cornwell, all of New York city; Chief Engineer, Magee, of New York, and Assistant Engineer, Grey Alden, of Baltimore; Surgeon, David Kindleberger, of Ohio; Paymaster, Leonard Frailey, and Assistant Surgeon, William Dixon, of Washington; and Lieutenant of Marines, Clay Goodloe, of Lexington, Kentucky.

SOUTHAMPTON HOSPITALITIES.

Festivities having commenced "His Worshipful" the Mayor of Southampton extended to Admiral Alden and his officers an invitation to a soirée at the Archæological Hall, to which quite a number of the navy boys repaired, with their dancing shoes on and their joints limbered up for that pleasant exercise. Alas! It was only to hear music in the lecture room, where everybody sat looking very grave and demure. A few choice spirits gathered around the punch bowl in the refreshment room; but the soirée broke up at an early hour. Next day the Mayor invited the officers to

A DEJEUNER AND GARDEN PARTY AT NETLEY ABBEY,

and it proved a success. The banquet under a tent in the old ruin was very fine, toasts were drunk and responded to, and good feeling prevailed. The toast "The Ladies" was responded to by Captain Swann, of the Wachusett, in a little speech, wherein a few appropriate anecdotes happily supplied the place of a labored address. After the déjeuner, croquet was enjoyed by many, while others wandered about the ruins and the castle grounds opposite

JARBOE'S GLOVE.

Lieutenant Jarboe, of the Brooklyn, who was wearing a glove that the Prince of Wales had clasped the day before, was begged by many young English ladies, in almost tearful entreaty, to give it to them; but as Jarb. objected to giving away his glove without that which it contained, and not feeling that strange sensation in the breast which prompts one to the latter act, he formally drew the glove and placed it in his after pocket. Dancing was indulged in on the lawn and enjoyed, notwithstanding the difference between the English and American step.

AMERICAN TARS AT THE OAR.

On the same day a yacht race came off in the river in view of the Abbey, and was a pretty sight. A cup valued at £15 was also offered by the city of Southampton, to be pulled for by a cutter from each ship in the American fleet. The race was an exciting one, the boats of the Congress, Wachusett and Wabash pulling very nearly together and loudly cheered by the ships and excursion steamers. The race was won by the Congress' old race boat, which gained so many laurels in the North Atlantic fleet. The crew is a fine one. They can pull seven miles without relinquishing their stroke. The Plymouth has the champion boat of the fleet, but she had gone to Gravesend.

THE BALL ON BOARD THE WABASH.

Promptly after the courtesies extended by the good people of Southampton to the fleet the Admiral requested the Mayor to issue invitations for a ball on board the Wabash on Friday, as the fleet would leave for Cowes on Monday. Three steamers were chartered for the occasion and brought the large number of people who attended from the city pier to the Wabash at her anchorage, three miles down the river. The steam launches and gigs assisted.

The ship was handsomely decorated. The bands of the flagship and Shenandoah were in attendance. At the last note of the waltz by the spar-deck band the band on the gundeck would strike up their galop or polka, and so kept up the interest and fun, and promoted a constant change from deck to deck and from partner to partner. There were a few American ladies present:—Miss Minnie Davis, of Virginia; Miss Ellie Wells, daughter of Captain Wells, of the Shenandoah; Miss Hilliard, of Baltimore; Miss Van Zandt, of New York, and Mrs. Lieutenant Buford, of Erie. Their dancing was much admired by the English, who gave free vent to their expressions of surprise and commendation of the graceful American step and the beauty and style of the dancers. Mrs. Scott-Siddons was present and thoroughly enjoyed the dancing. As one cannot dance forever, the intervals of rest were improved by a stroll through the different decks, the officers' quarters and the poop. Music, laughter and fun were the signs of the weather until after seven o'clock in the evening, when "God Save the Queen," by the gundeck band, was the signal for cloaks and wrappings, and "God Save the Prince of Wales" by the spar-deck band, the signal for embarkation in the steamers. As the steamers left the side they gave three hearty cheers, which were returned by the crew of the Wabash, the 600 sailors sending up a shout that would have raised the roof off the Boston music shed and put the united Lynn howlers, Salem screamers and Lowell chanters in chancery. As the steamers passed the other vessels of the fleet the cheers were given and returned, the crews manning the rigging. The affair was enjoyable, to say the least.

AT COWES.

On Monday the fleet steamed down to Cowes and came to anchor in good line outside the Hotspur and Royal yacht. There are one hundred and eighty yachts in the harbor, the majority of which are small cutters like Down East fishing boats and more like pleasure boats than yachts, but there are many fine schooner yachts and large cutters. The scene presented is very lively. Many of the yachts have miniature steam launches. The Shamrock, the Egeria, the Vanguard, Arrow and Livonia are all here winning races. Beautiful among them all and queen of the surf, the Sappho, small as she looks in the water, points her tall graceful spars above the rest.

THE YACHT SAPPHO AND HER CAPTAIN.

Tuesday she was sailing about while the cutter race was in progress, her tall spars, her immense white mainsail, low rail and graceful sheer contrasting strangely with the thick spars, straight rails and narrow sails of the English vessels, and the admiring eyes of all the fleet were upon her as she sailed past each ship. Commodore Douglass then lowered his gig and visited the Wabash: he was received with side-boys and piped over in navy style.

A GRAND ILLUMINATION.

In the evening a grand illumination was joined in by all the ships and yachts in the harbor and by the club house on shore. All was dark in the fleet until the mystic hour of ten, when at the signal every vessel was lit up by blue lights from each yardarm and mast, a hum of joy came over the waters, and when these had burned down, and just as the "Ah-h-s" of the spectators were becoming yet fainter, rockets screamed away from each ship, and the blue lights were replaced by colored ones from all points. The effect was brilliant. The light spars of the Wachusett seemed to be made of amethyst and amber, and trembled like a thing of life when it is scared. The burning cases were then thrown from aloft and fell like a shower of fire into the water; the sailors tumbled down on deck, each puffing his cigar, they were replenished with light, and the final illumination was a row of lights along the rail of each vessel and a spirt of rockets. We then hauled down our distinguishing lights, and were just congratulating ourselves on having "laid the deck" for brilliancy, when a rush as of a mighty number of shrieking eagles was heard, and hundreds of rockets flew up from the Hotspur; they seemed to vomit forth from the smokestacks and turret, and then burst into a million stars of varied hues. Had we done such a thing in our navy all the navy would have laid down and died, the naval appropriation have burst cold and the national bank have gone up in smoke; economical spirits in Congress would have been last seen up there somewhere, clinging to a rocket stick; we would all have "gone up" like a rocket, and—you know the rest of the story. Well, this wasn't the last time the Hotspur vomited appropriation for night signals. She sent up willow trees of golden fire and bombs, and burned whole rows of colored lights and rockets, and made it lively for us dodging the sticks. Then she hauled down her lights and kept still a minute and sold us, for of a sudden she became a fountain of rockets, blue lights and bombs; she was in a frenzy of firework, and we could hear the sailors yell with savage delight as they burned their fingers in their haste.

It was fine, but hot—the sticks were thick.

Notwithstanding the lavishness of this display, the simple and tasteful illumination of the American fleet must have been nearly as pretty and far more economical. This pleases Congress.

DINNER AT THE ROYAL YACHT CLUB HOUSE.

On Wednesday Admiral Alden dined at the Royal Yacht Club House, the Prince of Wales being present, and on Thursday he dined with the Queen. The yachts are having high carnival, and on shore all is life and gayety. The Princess Louise was out driving her four-in-hand ponies on Thursday. She bows at every twenty yards. We happened to strike her at the twentieth yard, and, on doffing our hat, we received a small nod.

THE GAYETY OF COWES

is not genuine, like our own Newport; everybody looks more or less severe. The weight of the upper layers of society is too great for the ordinary mortal, and if he smiles on the promenade it is in a sickly way. Unless a person is a titled landholder he should at once seek another clime where he can walk erect without being a spile for the platform of his betters.

UTAH AFFAIRS.

SALT LAKE CITY, August 24, 1872.

Soda Springs is becoming the Saratoga of Utah. Quite a number of prominent citizens and strangers are there for health and pleasure.

Immense herds of cattle from Texas are passing westward.

The fires in the timber east of the mountains are still raging furiously, and are very disastrous to the interests of the Territory.

The thermometer marks 98 degrees in the shade.

FIRE IN SOUTH STREET.

At half-past eleven o'clock last night a fire broke out in the liquor store of Thomas McLoughlin, 256 South street, and before it was subdued damaged his stock to the extent of $600. Insured in Rutgers Insurance Company for $500, and the stock of paints belonging to David Clark, who occupied the second and third stories, to the extent of $500; insurance unknown. The building was damaged $1,000, and is owned by James Freeborn, of No. 24 Montgomery street.

THE FIRE FIEND IN MONTANA.

HELENA, Mont., August 24, 1872.

A fire here last night destroyed the North Pacific Hotel, the Gazette printing establishment and every building on the block bounded by Jackson and Grand streets, Broadway and Court House square, besides other buildings on adjacent blocks. The loss is about $70,000, with a small insurance.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A.—A—HITCHCOCK'S CORONA PARK,
Adjoining the village of Corona, formerly West Flushing, affords a fine opportunity to invest money and OWN YOUR HOME.

The prices are as follows:—
Corner Lots, $500; all others, $400, on Hitchcock's popular plan, which enables you to select your Lot and pay for it in TEN DOLLAR MONTHLY INSTALMENTS,
WITHOUT INTEREST.

You can now choose Lots near the depot, and by going at once
SECURE THE CHOICEST.

Now in progress are SPLENDID IMPROVEMENTS,
among which are a magnificent depot, a pretty public schoolhouse, with fine shade trees and elegant shrubbery for every lot, without extra cost.
Around each block will be laid the ARTIFICIAL STONE PAVEMENT, such as on the Battery and Madison square, New York, with splendid terraces and drives.

CORONA PARK,
five miles by steam from New York city,

Is situated on the new line of railroad between Hunter's Point and Flushing, with a fine depot on the property, adjoining the prosperous village of Corona, which has a population of over 1,000, with churches, schools, factories, workshops, post office and stores aiding its rapid growth—where already 2,500 lots have been sold to persons mostly engaged in business (mechanical and otherwise) in New York city. Half a mile distant from the village of Newtown, and but one mile from Flushing, with its 10,000 inhabitants. Only 45 minutes by steam from the New York City Hall, via James slip ferry, and but 22 minutes from Thirty-fourth street, New York, with commutation for both railroad and ferry costing but $64 per year, or 10½ cents a trip. This favorite Park affords an opportunity for residence and daily attention to business unsurpassed within the suburbs of New York. Located on remarkably high ground, gently undulating and sloping southward to Mill Creek, which has its outlet into Flushing Bay and Long Island Sound, Nature has supplied it most effective drainage. From Corona and Highland avenues a broad expanse of varied scenery is presented to the eye, and for miles the adjacent villages attract attention.

Until quite recently the beauties of Long Island have been comparatively unknown to most of New York city's overcrowded inhabitants. Excellent railroad facilities in certain portions of New Jersey, aided by the inadequate accommodations and uninviting methods for travelling on Long Island, induced many to seek homes upon the cold, damp, clay soil of that State, instead of the salubrious, dry, sandy loam of Long Island, which has long been recognized as the "garden spot" of America.

Thanks to genius and enterprise, a new order of things exists. Stewart's Garden City, which calls for an expenditure of millions, looms up on Hempstead Plains. Nearer are Jamaica, Whitestone, College Point and Flushing, almost interwoven by lines of rail, which pass through Corona and Corona Park with thousands of passengers daily. Forty-two trains daily, where but six ran ten years ago, and two more lines of railroad and two more depots argue well for Corona's future. Land has increased in value from 100 to 200 per cent per annum for the last five years; and as Kings county, on the south of Newtown Creek, is built solid further from the East River than Corona is situated, it is but fair to calculate that, with its additional advantages, the north side of the creek will be still more rapidly occupied. In fact, by the building of the bridges across Blackwell's Island (companies now chartered), Corona, with the rest of the township of Newtown, will soon be a ward of the city of New York.

Corona Park has a dock upon which to land coal and building materials brought from the Sound. Boating and Fishing can be enjoyed by its population, while the celebrated "Shady Lake Farm," adjoining, will afford choice vegetables and its lake splendid ice for Summer use.

It is well conceded that the nearer to New York the faster will be the increase in the value of property; also, that it is better to pay a fair price for improved property near the city than to buy what seems cheap land at a greater distance and pay higher fare and lose time daily, which soon will amount to more than the necessary outlay for land which will constantly increase in value from its nearness to the great metropolis.

In conclusion, attention is called to the fact that the undersigned resides at Corona and is largely interested in its prosperity. Having devoted several years past to the establishment of villages for the benefit of persons possessing but moderate means (which inaugurated the $10 monthly payment plan), and having sold thousands of lots to residents of New York city, and having assisted in making vast improvements through the section where his home is located, he now brings to bear his past experience with renewed energy to improve and render Corona Park, as its name implies, the crown locality among places for suburban residence.

To Manufacturers.—Several large plots of ground, well situated for Factories, will be sold on terms to assist manufacturers. Large and small plots, on long time without interest, to those who will build at once; or, large plots with a liberal advance of money, for the erection of suitable works.

VISITORS' GUIDE.

Persons in the lower part of New York city can go to Corona by the James Slip ferry boats, foot of Chambers street, East River, which connect with the Flushing cars at the left of the ferry house at Hunter's Point each day (excepting Sundays), and Sundays and other days from foot of Thirty-fourth street, East River, which will be more convenient for uptown residents. The land office at Corona is opposite the railroad depot, and open daily from 7½ A. M. until 6 P. M., with attendants to show visitors the lots, free of charge. Corona is one mile short of Flushing, being nearest to New York city.
